Red Control Bill Passed; Truman Has Veto Ready

Senate's Vote Is 51-7; House Count 312-20; Overriding Likely, Is View at Capitol

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Congress yesterday overwhelmingly passed and sent to the White House the so-called Wood-McCarran Communist control bill, imposing rigid restrictions on Communists and "front" members and providing for their mass round-up in wartime.

A source close to the White House, who asked not to be identified, said Mr. Truman has a quick veto waiting for it. Instead of curbing Reds, Mr. Truman is said to feel some provisions of the measure will serve as a virtual handbook for Communists.

The President has already instructed his White House staff to go to work on a veto message, and barring an unexpected switch in plans, he will hand Congress an emphatic "no," The Post informant said.

Overriding Is Expected

Administration leaders, who predominantly urged him to sign it to meet electioneering "heat," think the veto will be quickly overridden.

The conference report on the sweeping measure passed the Senate last night by a vote of 51 to7.

Early yesterday the House voted final passage by a 312 to 20 roll call vote.

Thus far more than the two-thirds majority required to override is indicated, unless Mr. Truman's strong message sways an impressive number in both houses to change.

In a nutshell, the bill requires all Communists and officers of "front" groups to register with the Attorney General, and bars members of either from Government jobs or passports.

Bars Reds in Defense Jobs

Communists would be barred from jobs in defense plants as well and would be subject to penalties up to 10 years in jail and $10,000 for violation of registration and other provisions of the act.

Conspiracies "substantially contributing" to setting up a foreign-controled Government in the United States would be heavily punished and Communists would be quickly pulled in and "in-

Malone Filibuster Delays Action on Slot Machine Bill

Senator George W. Malone (R., Nev.), staging a "one-man filibuster," succeeded last night in postponing at least until Thursday a final Senate vote on a bill to ban interstate shipment of slot machines into places where they are illegal.

Malone, representing a State where the "one-armed bandits" are legal, talked for more than two hours against the measure Wednesday and was prepared to keep the floor Thursday. He is trying to stave final Senate action on a conference report until the Senate quits.

To make sure he would have the floor when the Senate meets Thursday, he moved late Wednesday to send the bill back to the conference committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dickinson talk to President Truman

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Sept. 20.—Ten thousand persons turned out here today to celebrate because Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dickinson of Five Mile Forks have at last got a telephone.

They weren't the only ones who celebrated the event. In Washington the White House stopped activities long enough for President Truman to telephone his personal congratulations to the Dickinsons.

The conversations between Mr. Truman and the Dickinsons was important because it marked the first installation of a rural telephone by the Rural Electrifiction Administration under the new REA telephone loan program.

A sudden quiet fell over the large crowd the moment the conversation began with "Hello Mr. Dickinson, this is Harry Truman at the White House." For two minutes Mr. Truman discussed the need of good telephone service on the farm, and the value of Guernseys as dairy cattle. When Dickinson told the President that he and his father had 90 head of Guernseys, Mr. Truman exclaimed: "They are a good breed." He added that some nephews were milking 40 to 50 head on a farm Mr. Truman "happens to own" in Missouri.

Dickinson told Mr. Truman that a telephone is unusually important to a diary farmer. He practices artificial insemination in his herd, he said, and there are times when it is necessary to get a veterinarian in a hurry. "We've had to load up and drive in to town up to now," he explained.

Mr. Truman expressed interest in the prizes that Dickinson's cattle won only this morning at the Fredericksburg Fair. Dickinson's made almost a clean sweep of that division, taking four firsts,

Tax Raise Bill Ready; Recess Set Saturday

Congress Will Return Nov. 20 or Nov. 27, Party Chiefs Agree

Complete conference agreement on a compromise 4.7 billion dollar increase in individual and corporation income taxes yesterday sparked a leadership agreement to wind-up Congressional business Saturday and then recess until after the elections.

Leaders were divided only on whether to bring Congress back Nov. 20 or Nov. 27, with the Senate favoring the later date and House leaders likely to go along.

Some still had their fingers crossed on whether Congress can get away Saturday but the tax bill settlement and the agreement to recess for two months removed two major obstacles.

Proponents of excess profits taxation, who have threatened to fight any formal adjournment, were assured of a post-election opportunity to tax surplus corporate earnings retroactively before the Eighty-first Congress expires.

Statehood Bills Up Later

Advocates of Statehood for Alaska and Hawaii, who similarly have tried to hold Congress in session, received a pledge taht both bills will have Senate priority when Congress returns in the fall.

Yesterday's anticlimatic conference agreement on a tax bill acceptable to the President ended any lingering doubt that individual withholding taxes will scoot upward on October 1 from 15 percent to 18 percent.

The completed revenue measure, slated for House and possibly Senate floor action Friday, would:

1. Raise about three billion dollars by increasing income tax rates on more than 50 million individual taxpayers to near World War II peaks Increases, amounting to about 20 percent for most persons in the middle and lower brackets, would apply to one fourth of their 1950 income and take full effect in 1951.

2. Collect another $1,500,000,000-a-year from corporations by raising the top corporate income tax rate from 38 percent to 45 percent, retroactive to half of 1950 income, and fully in effect thereafter. Starting January 1, corporations will pay 25 percent on earn-

Meteor Blazes Across 5 States, Hits in Southeast

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 20 (U.P.).—A meteor perhaps "as large as a small room" blazed across five States early today and plunged to earth in western Tennessee or Kentucky. A piece "about the size of an ink bottle" was found near Murray, Ky., along the Tennessee border.

Dr. Carl Seyfert, director of the Barnard Observatory at Vanderbilt University, said reports indicated the meteor may have been "as large as a small room—several cubic yards."

In Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, southern Illinois and southern Indiana, observers reported seeing a white and reddish streak across the skies or feeling shocks as the meteor crashed.

The meteor first was reported about 1:30 a. m. by an American Airlines pilot, Capt. H. J. Jarman, who was piloting a DC-6 from Washington with 41 passengers. He said he saw it some 50 miles east of Nashville, and that "it lit up the whole sky."

Sharing Diet of Zoo Gorilla Makes Monkey of Director

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—Zoo Director Fletcher Reynolds wishes he had never heard of bananas, or roast beef, or plums and pears for that matter. And all because of a little girl gorilla.

The baby ape, Yokadouma, was brought back from Africa earlier this year by Reynolds weighing a healthy 80 pounds. Several weeks ago, Yokadouma stopped eating and all efforts to feed her failed.

In desperation, Reynolds climbed into her cage with two bananas. He ate one; the other he offered Yokadouma.

Watching him eat, the gorilla ate also. But she would only take a bite when the zoo director did. For two weeks Reynolds ate his own meals and then would get into Yokadouma's cage to set an eating example for her.

Finally fed up on bananas, Reynolds tried roast beef. Yokodouma liked hers well done. When meat began to pall on Reynolds he switched to plums and pears.

Reynolds gained 10 pounds in his "do like me" diet. Yokadouma is still 15 pounds under her normal weight.

Unable to take it any longer, Reynolds slowly introduced one of his keepers into the gorilla's cage to join the eating party. As soon as Yokadouma will eat with keeper Leonard Stenzen. Reynolds plans a three-week banana-free vacation.

Make Court Supreme, Bar Urges

(Related Stories, Page 2)

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

The United States Constitution should be amended to take from Congress power to forbid the Supreme Court from deciding the validity of laws, the American Bar Association House of Delegates declared yesterday.

The association's policy-making body acted after a stirring plea by retired Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts. He said that lawyers must take a stand for the amendment now and risk the possibility that they be branded "subversive" for doing so.

Restriction Is Quoted

Article 3, Section 2 of the Constitution now gives the Supreme Court jurisdiction over appeals in all cases involving Constitutionality "with such exceptions and under such regulations as the Congress shall make."

The amendment proposed by the bar association would take away the congressional power to make exceptions and regulations.

Roberts and others at the meeting cited two instances when Congress had deprived the Supreme Court of jurisdiction over cases involving the Constitution. The most recent was during World World II, when the Administration set up the Emergency Court of Appeals to review regulations under the OPA, and Congress took final judicial review away from the Supreme Court. The other case occurred shortly after the Civil War when Congress passed an act that stopped the Supreme Court from considering a case then before it.

Roberts said that particularly in times of peril, the Administration might decide to pass laws of "doubtful validity" and then could man a new court just to make sure the law would never be invalidated.

Down To Business

The American Bar Association convention, in session here this week, was getting down to its internal business, with its educational and social program on the wane.

In the Government field, the House of Delegates passed a resolution condemning Civil Service veterans preference of such magnitude as to "interfere with the proper workings of the merit system and cause discouragement" of career workers.

Also, the delegates recommended that the Postmaster General should not be an official of a political party. The Post Office should be taken out of politics, they said.

In the international law field, the House approved resolutions that international treaties should not automatically become the domestic law of the land. Instead, there should be congressional enactment for this, they said.

Race Amendment Rejected

Achesons Asks U. N. to Raise World Army

Vishinsky Seeks Peace Pact, Cut in Armed Forces, Ban On Atomic Weapons

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—Secretary of State Acheson today called for United Nations members—Communists and non-Communists alike—to furnish units for an international army to smash aggression anywhere in the world.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky followed Acheson before the United Nations Assembly with a renewal of an old Russian demand for a big five peace pact, prohibition of the atomic weapon and reduction of the armed forces of the big five by one third. These proposals were turned down at previous Assemblies.

"I must say here and now that the Soviet Union will not take the path which the Secretary of State of the United States tries to divert the General Assembly," Vishinsky said. He submitted a revised list of alleged warmongers. To his old 1947 list of Winston Churchill and John Foster Dulles, Vishinsky today added Gen. Omar Bradley, Navy Secretary Francis P. Matthews, former Defense Secretary Louis A. Johnson, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Dulles Laughs at Charge

Dulles, sitting as a Republican member of the American bipartisan delegation, laughed when he heard his name again. Later he told reporters that he frowned the first time Vishinsky called him a warmonger three years ago. "Now when he does it I laugh and go on with my business," he added.

Acheson, in a 40-minute, 6000-word speech, demanded that the Assembly seek a peaceful solution of the Formosa question. The Russians tossed before the Assembly a complaint charging the United States with aggression against China. This complaint already has been made in the Security Council and its appearance here means the Formosa question will get a full hearing before the 59 U. N. members.

Acheson said the world wants a peace that is free from fear, "the fear of invasion, the fear of subversion, the fear of the knock on the door at midnight."

The first of the great power delegates to speak, Acheson also proposed a roving peace patrol to seek out international trouble spots and called on the Assembly to clear its decks for action against aggression, if necessary, on 24 hours notice. He drew loud applause as he concluded.

In a general review of the tense times, Acheson said there is no longer any question whether the U. N. will survive:

"This question has been answered. If by nothing else, it has been answered by United Nations action against aggression in Korea. Blood is thicker than ink."

Acheson said the world has confronted many and complex problems "but the main obstacle to peace is easy to identify; and there should be no mistake in anyone's mind about it. That obstacle has been created by the

Reds Cut Off Power to West

British Troops Rout Russians In Berlin Zone Grab Attempt

BERLIN (Thursday), Sept. 21 (U.P.).—The Russians cut off their supply of electricity to the western sectors of Berlin at midnight Wednesday.

The move followed action yesterday in which the Soviets seized 150 yards of British sector territory near Gatow Airfield, but were routed by British troops supported by armored cars and machineguns.

A West Berlin power company official said, however, that the new Soviet move would not affect the actual power supply. Seven generators in the western sectors are meeting the shortage "at least for the time being," he said. An East German announcement said the power was being cut because of deadlocked contract negotiations.

The Soviet move had been anticipated during a day of action in which this four-power capital again became the hot spot of the "cold war."

Competent Western authorities believed the Russians had renewed their maneuvers to squeeze the Allies out of this city.

The two developments came as a climax to three wild days of mass arrests of policemen and reprisals and the kidnaping of two American military policemen near the United States-Russian sector border.

The Russians unexpectedly appeared at the boundary line that separates the British sector of Berlin from the Soviet zone of Germany, pushed 150 yards into British territory and erected a new barrier.

British officers and 100 armed troops rushed to the scene and tried for several hours to talk the Russians into pulling back. Finally, the Tommies lifted the barrier and set it back on the rightful boundary.

The Russians claimed they took the land to give them access to a street that now crosses the British sector for about 100 yards.

The American MPs were identified as Pfc. Kenneth I. Christman, Huntington, Ind., and Corpl. Peter J. McSweeney, Newark, N. J.

They radioed that their jeep was being stopped by East German police. They said they were in the American sector. Then their radio went dead.

United States authorities immediately demanded that the Russians intervene and release the soldiers. The Russians promptly agreed to investigate.

Old and New Peace Drives Vie in U. N.

Acheson Emphasizes Welfare; Vishinsky Softens His Attacks

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Two peace campaigns competed for the favor of the United Nations today. One of them was familiar; the U. N. had encountered it before.

In 1946, from the same rostrum, the Russians called for banning the atomic bomb; in 1947 for suppressing "warmongers;" in 1948, the year of the Berlin blockade, for a one-third reduction in armed forces, and last year for peace talks among the five great powers.

Today, in a strangely subdued speech, Andrei Y. Vishinsky tossed all these ingredients into a single stew without seasoning it with a single new idea. He gave no hint of any change in Soviet policy or tactics except that his language was less peppery and his insults less biting than they used to be.

The other peace offensive today came, unexpectedly to some delegates, from Secretary Acheson. They had expected him to outline a resolute program to guard

Patrolman Halts Vishinsky's Auto For 60-Mile Speed

GLEN COVE, L. I., Sept. 20 (NYHT).—Patrolman Timmy O'Neill, who has long been plagued by a predilection for reckless driving on the part of Russian diplomats, gave chase today to a shiny Cadillac with license U. N.-12, racing through a 20-mile-an-hour zone at an estimated 60-mile clip. He caught the car at a stop light.

Inside were Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Foreign Minister, three colleagues and the driver. Vishinsky said he was going to the United Nations.

"I don't care where you're going, you'll have to take it easy in these parts," said the patrolman. Before he let the driver go with a firm warning, another car drove up and stopped. It contained Vishinsky's police escort of two New York and two Nassau County detectives. They told O'Neill they could not keep up with the Russians.

Senate Votes Approval for Gen. Marshall

57-11 Tally Confirms New Defense Secretary; Some GOP Opposition

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Gen. George C. Marshall was confirmed late yesterday as Secretary of Defense and today will assume direction of the Nation's vital preparedness program.

Senate approval of the 69-year-old former Army Chief of Staff and Secretary of State came on a 57-to-11 rollcall vote. Immediately afterward, the Senate unanimously agreed to waive the usual red-tape of notification to allow him to be sworn in without delay.

It is expected that the oath-taking ceremony will be brief and take place at the Pentagon instead of the White House sometime today.

The eleven Senators voting against confirmation were all Republicans and those who spoke in opposition yesterday said they did so because they felt a professional military man should not be Secretary of Defense.

But Democrats and several Republicans urged Marshall's confirmation on the ground he was the best man available.

Chairman Millard Tydings (D., Md.), of the Senate Armed Services Committee called the general a "walking eulogy of everything that is best in America." Senator Lyndon Johnson (D., Tex.), urged his approval by an overwhelming majority as a sign of unity, and chided Republican opponents for seeking to make Marshall a "political whipping boy."

Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.), praised Marshall for his willingness to come out of retirement to take on the difficult Defense post, but expressed concern that his age and physical condition may not permit him to serve very long.

The Senate yesterday also approved the promotion of Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to five-star general's rank.

Those voting against Marshall's appointment were: Senators Hugh Butler, Nebr.; Harry P. Cain, Wash.; Zales Ecton, Mont.; William E. Jenner, Ind.; William F. Knowland, Calif.; William Langer, N. Dak.; George W. Malone, Nev.; Eugene D. Millikin, Colo., Arthur V. Watkins, Utah; Kenneth S. Wherry, Nebr., and Milton R. Young, N. Dak., all Republicans.

Bitter Fight Within City Is Expected; Allies Gain

South Koreans Take Samchok on East Coast; Southern Perimeter Collapses

TOKYO (Thursday), Sept. 21 (AP).—United States Marines crashed into Seoul from the northwest Wednesday night.

Other Leathernecks formed the lower jaw of a vice by lunging southwest of the city proper through an industrial suburb and airfield on the Han River's west bank.

Battle for Seoul Impending

A battle for Seoul appeared to be impending. The United States Tenth Corps said a tank-supported Red column from Chinese Communist Manchuria was spotted moving south from North Korea. The column originated at Antung, just across the border in Manchuria, the corps said. An Air Force spokesman said it was first sighted 20 miles south of Antung, Manchuria, across the Yalu River boundary from North Korea.

[Manchuria is a part of Communist China and Soviet Russia holds bases and installations there. There was nothing in dispatches received here to indicate whether the troops moving South were Chinese Communist forces or North Korean troops who have been on duty in Manchuria. Many North Korean troops, as units, have served with the Chinese Communist army.

[The United Press said that 40 tanks were in the column and added that the 200 trucks with the advancing enemy column were capable of carrying perhaps 6000 troops.—Editor's Note.]

Other Reds Rush to Scene

Other Red reinforcements were rushing up from the South. But the main road leading south from Seoul toward Suwon was cut last night by the Marines who overran the suburb and the air field. And U. S. Seventh Division troops also were moving toward the highway. Artillery on high points controlled the road.

The Marines who entered Seoul proper had crossed the Han Wednesday morning eight miles northwest of the city. They covered the eight miles to Seoul and entered the outskirts at 6 p. m. Wednesday (5 a. m. EDT).

The Leathernecks, operating under a big umbrella of planes, were expected to reach the heart

Price, Wage Curbs Go Together, AFL Is Told by Tobin

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 20 (AP).—Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin today said inflation is the greatest danger facing American labor.

He told the American Federation of Labor convention the Government intends to keep a lid on rising living costs but that it is not yet clear "how far we shall have to go in pulling in our belts."

Tobin added:

"If wage increases can be confined to those accompanying cost of living we'll have some means of controlling inflation."

"There is no doubt an effective over-all stabilization of prices must inevitably carry with it stabilization of wages," he said. "Whether these controls will have to be used will depend on what labor and management do within the period that lies immediately ahead."

Wage and price controls, he said, "must be used together."

Charles J. MacGowan, president of the Boilermakers Union, said recent unity conferences with CIO repreesntatives on organic unity between the CIO and the AFL were suspended only because of the current conventions and other union meetings.

"We have high hopes and we shall work diligently to bring about what the rank and file of American labor wants — organic unity," he told the convention.

Seven Children Hurt

Charles County Farmer Killed When Truck Hits School Bus

A Charles County farmer was killed, a truck driver was seriously injured and seven Charles County school children were shaken up yesterday afternoon.

The accident occurred when a pickup truck plowed into the rear of a school bus as it was making a routine stop for a Pennsylvania Railroad crossing in Faulkner, Md. about 3 p. m.

Maryland State Police at Waldorf said the school bus had left LaPlata after picking up children at LaPlata High School and at the Sacred Heart parochial school, which serves the Holy Ghost parish at Issue, Md.

Five of the injured children were from the parochial school and two from the high school, officials said.

The dead man, Claude Eugene Mudd, 43, a farmer of Newburg, a passenger in the pickup truck was taken to Casualty Hospital, where officials said he had suffered a crushed chest, broken legs, broken jaw and a skull fracture. He died at 8:10 p. m.

Driver of the truck was James Purcell, 27, of Newburg, a restaurant owner. He was admitted to Physicians' Memorial Hospital in LaPlata in serious condition, suffering from a possible brain concussion and lacerations to the left eye.

The school children, all of whom were treated at the Hospital and released, were Shirley Burroughs, 6, of Tomkinsville, stomach bruises; Nata Catami, 16, of Cobb Island, back bruises; Janet Edwards, 11, of Issue, and her brother, Daniel, 14, bruises; Carolyn Bridgett 10, Newport, minor bruises, all of the Sacred Heart School; and Barbara Wise, 17, and her twin sister Marion, both of Rock Point. Barbara suffered back bruises and her sister bruises on the forehead and arm.

Robert Harvey Hayden, jr., 20, of Tomkinsville, driver of the school bus, was uninjured.

Police said that the truck, following the school bus on State Route 301, had apparently been traveling at a high rate of speed. They said the driver saw the bus stopping but apparently did not realize, until the bus lights went on, that the vehicle would make a full stop at the crossing. Impact of the truck plowing into the rear of the bus threw the children to the back of their seats.

Police said no charges have been placed yet.

Four Wounded Area Soldiers Find Definitions for 'Home'

By Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporter

It is a long plane flight—especially when you are wounded—from Korea to the Naval Hospital at Bethesda.

By various stages and stopovers, four Washington area soldiers have made "home" in the last five days.

Their one denominator is that they were wounded on hills.

"Home" for Sergt. 1/c Sam Rowland—World War II holder of a Distinguished Service Cross and Bronze Star and possessor of a shattered knee—was the sight of his wife Cora and two children.

For Corpl. Howard J. Wimbough, jr., it was a pipe nobody could get but his mother, and the meeting with his mother and father.

Pfc. John Walter Goodman had no real definition to give; of "home" it was the meeting with his mother—"she was just glad to see me"—and a relief that he did not put in words.

And Pvt. William G. Brownell, a good looking young kid, wouldn't recall about the meeting with his mother, or say what it felt like to be back, or have his picture taken.

M'Grath Warns Bar On Anti-Red Laws

Attorney General J. Howard McGrath warned yesterday against "vigilante" justice and security legislation "containing the same shrill overtones or hysteria."

Speaking before the General Assembly of the American Bar Association, McGrath said America's best long-term weapon against communism is the elimination of its shortcomings, including inequalities in the treatment of its people.

"Techniques of suppression and compelling adherence to the 'party line' are the very mark of communism itself in lands where it holds sway. We cannot afford to be misled into believing that we will be providing machinery to combat espionage and sabotage by adopting such techniques," he said.

Red Registration Futile, He Says

"Proposed registration of Communist Party and front organizations' memberships, and labeling of their printed political publications, count for little in fighting wily persons trained in and bent upon intrigue and deception," he continued.

McGrath said legislation was needed to extend anti-sabotage measures to include non-military installations necessary to national security.

He declared:

"We appear to be going through a period of public hysteria, in which many varieties of self-appointed policemen and alleged guardians of Americanism would have us fight subversion by prescribing an orthodoxy of opinion, and stigmatizing as disloyal all who disagree or oppose them.

"This hysteria appears in vigilante groups who decree and execute beatings of purported Communist sympathizers; or who, in more polite circles, intimidate radio advertisers into silencing performers who they say have Communist leanings.

"Another manifestation is the recent proposal to investigate the fitness of the Federal judiciary because of displeasure with a decision directing the release on bail of Harry Bridges pending his appeal of a conviction for perjury."

During its afternoon session, the assembly passed a resolution urging Congress to pass, and President Truman to sign, the Internal Security Bill of 1950, opposed by McGrath. Later in the day Congress did approve this legislation.

Also, the assembly approved a resolution that it is inappropriate at this time for any American to refuse to take an anti-Communist oath. Lawyers, according to the resolution, should be willing to take such an oath periodically.

The assembly proposed that an association committee be formed to investigate Communist tactics.

Reporting Scored

Press, Bar Censured By Jackson

Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson yesterday criticized both press and bar for the actions of some of their representatives in criminal court cases.

The justice spoke at an American Bar Association panel on criminal cases involving national security.

As to the press, the justice said that "our press takes great liberties" with cases under trial. He said it was "regrettable that many sections of the press do not show more responsibility toward the administration of justice."

Hits Comments on Witnesses

He mentioned press "comments on witnesses" during a trial. He said that if trial by jury is to be preserved "it must be protected against subtle attempts to put over the very evidence the court has excluded," such as a confession. What good does it do, he asked, for the trial judge to exclude a confession when the juror can go home and hear it on his radio or read it in his newspaper?

As to lawyers, Jackson said a "growing spirit of professional responsibility" is necessary. Then he said:

"I don't think any lawyer can stand up and say some of the recent trials have been a credit to our bar. Beyond that I will not go."

The justice also repeated much of a speech he gave last Saturday to another association section, advising against "vigilante justice" by private organizations in such times as the present. He said any evidence should be turned over to the FBI.

Loyalty Oaths Criticized

At the same session, Attorney Morris Ernst of New York said that "seldom has our Nation acted with more hysteria and less acumen" than today. He criticized mass loyalty oaths and "blanket proscriptions" in Government jobs.

United States Attorney Irving H. Saypol of New York, another speaker, discussed the recent trial of the 11 Communist Party leaders. He criticized the mass picketing and cited evidence to show its Communist inspiration.

Federal District Judge Harold M. Kennedy of New York, a former Justice Department prosecutor, said that under the law today it is necessary for FBI agents to let foreign agents under surveillance "go until they get their hands on a secret" in order to effectively prosecute the case.

James C. McRuer, chief judge of the High Court of Ontario, Canada, discussed the 1946 Canadian spy case in which eight of 16 defendants were convicted, largely because a Soviet code clerk deserted his embassy and revealed the espionage story to the Canadian Government.

fused to adopt a resolution to amend the bar association constitution specifically to admit members without reference to race, creed or color.

Association officials declared that there is at present no discrimination policy in the organization. It was estimated that more than a dozen Negroes are now members. None of them comes from the South, it was acknowledged. State membership committees pass on applicants before membership can be approved.

In a press conference, Sir Norman Burkett, of the High Court of Justice in England, proposed that a permanent International Criminal Court be established under the United Nations, looking forward to the day of reckoning after the Korean conflict.

When reminded by reporters that Russia would be a member of such a tribunal, Sir Norman replied:

"There may be insuperable difficulties. I don't know."

The criminal law section will submit a similar proposal to the House of Delegates today.

Dr. Kurt von Schusnigg, former Austrian chancellor and now a teacher of government in St. Louis University, told another association group that people in central Europe wonder whether their expression of loyalty to one government today will classify them as traitors under another regime tomorrow.

"It became a matter of good and normal personal record to have at least been once imprisoned because of high treason, because it proves that one had been at least once loyal to an established social order," he said.

528 Admitted to Practice Before The U. S. Supreme Court

ATTORNEYS GATHER TO TAKE OATH IN TWO-HOUR SPECIAL CEREMONIES BEFORE JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

By Jack Lartz—The Washington Post

Supreme Court Admits 528, Nets $13,200

The Supreme Court's cash register rang up $13,200 yesterday in what was the most successful day, financially speaking, in the court's entire history.

It all happened because the American Bar Association, now in convention assembled in Washington, requested the court to hold a special session. The idea was to make it easy for ABA delegates in town for the convention to be admitted to the high court's bar. The court's fall term won't begin until October 9.

So at noon yesterday, seven of the nine justices appeared on the bench. Only Justices Frankfurter and Douglas, vacationing abroad, were absent.

Then began a two-hour parade of attorneys presenting other attorneys and of mass oath takings.

When it ended, exactly 528 men and women had taken the oath to uphold and defend the Constitution—and handed over $25 each as the Court's fee. Total: $13,200.

In all of the 1949 court term, from October through June, 894 attorneys were admitted. The peak year was 1945 with 1644.

The money goes to defray expenses of the clerk's office which is self-sustaining (supported by fees) and does not receive a congressional appropriation. The clerk and his assistants are on fixed salaries, unaffected by the amount of fees.

French ECA Projects Aim to Help Workers

PARIS, Sept. 20 (NYHT).—Marshall Plan funds in France will be used in an increasing degree for projects designed to boost "the morale and the spirit" of French workers, Henry Parkman, chief of the Economic Cooperation Administration mission to France, told the Anglo-American Press Association today.

The projects will be carried out despite the stepped-up rearmament program, Parkman indicated. French government officials have expressed fear that social needs would be sacrificed to rearmament, with a consequent weakening of the government's position among workers.

Hoffman Proposes U. S. Spend $150 Billion in Fight for Peace

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A fight for peace, waged with the same vigor that the free world waged war, was proposed yesterday by ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman.

To 15 foreign editors visiting this country under auspices of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, Hoffman outlined a five-point program, made up in its essentials of policies already in operation, in varying degrees.

The military phases of this program, he told the group, would cost the American people 40 to 50 billion dollars a year for the next three years, in order to lift the Nation to an appropriate level of strength. His whole program included steps to:

Must Augment Forces

1. Prevent the Kremlin from going to war by amassing sufficient military strength in the United States and the Nations of the free world.

"This is a tough assignment," Hoffman said, "one which the free world cannot readily carry out."

For the United States to do its share on the military front, Hoffman estimated, it would take a military budget of 40 to 50 billion dollars for the next three years to bring our Nation up to full strength. The other free nations would have to make a proportionate financial sacrifice.

2. Help build up the economic strength of the countries threatened by communism.

"We must give the people in these countries something to live for and something to fight for," Hoffman declared.

3. Strengthen the democratic institutions and processes of the nations of the free world.

4. Hold out hope for the people of Russia and her satellites that they, too, may some day join the free world.

Hoffman estimated that 80 per cent of the people in Russia and Communist-dominated countries could be eventually reached on this front.

5. Make the people of the world understand, through "truthful propaganda," that the democratic way of life is the best way of life.

"The Kremlin has outsmarted us and outspent us on the information front," Hoffman said. In France, he said, the Communist spent 15 times as much fighting the Marshall Plan as this country did to put it over.

To skeptics who might ask: "Why should Russia wait until the free world gets strong enough to contain the Kremlin?," Hoffman replies there is no certain answer to such a question. He stressed, however, that the free world could have a "reasonable hope" that Russia would not go to war now or in the near future for several reasons:

1. The United States has better atom bombs and more of them.

2. The Korean war has shown Russia that it can't take Western Europe through a coup, but would have to engage in a long, hard war to do so.

3. The Kremlin fears that its troops might become "contaminated" by western ideas and ways should Russia send its 300 divisions into a general war with the free world.

Hoffman said he had it from reliable authority that "contamination" of Russian troops has been a serious trouble wherever they have come in contact with the free countries.

It is his belief, Hoffman said, that this is the most "potent" of all reasons as to why Russia would prefer to avoid risking a general war.

The ECA chief also attempted to answer what he called another $64 question on the part of those who would take a skeptical view toward his containment proposal. This view is summed up in the following question: "Assuming the Western world can successfully contain Russia while averting war, what's to be done about Communist Russia's attitude toward the free democracies?"

Hoffman replied to his own question that he doesn't quite know the answer to this one, but that he believes if Russia can be contained long enough, and if the West can keep throwing the Kremlin off balance, as it has with the Marshall Plan and the United Nations' action on Korea, the people inside Russia will themselves change the government.

So long as the free world contains Russia, an eventual split can be expected among the leaders of the Kremlin, Hoffman said, and a revolt can eventually be expected among the people

"The collapse of the Kremlin rulers will come before the end of the present decade, Hoffman predicted, "if we wage peace on all fronts."

It is not too much to hope for a new Russian government, a non-Communist government that can participate in a free world at peace, by 1960, he said.

The ECA Administrator emphasized there was nothing official or formal about his proposal. It's something he evolved during 30 days of hospitalization following a recent operation, Hoffman disclosed. He was not permitted to read while he was bedridden, so he dwelled on the possibilities of averting a third world war and attaining peace for the world. He spoke to the journalists at a luncheon in the Carlton Hotel.

Marines Enter Seoul From Two Directions of the city of one million some time today.

United States Tenth Corps officers estimated the Reds have about 18,000 troops available for Seoul's defense. However, these reportedly included security police and even students hastily recruited at Pyongyang, the Red capital, and given guns but little training.

The Reds moving up from the south came from the old South Korean front, 135 miles to the southeast.

From the old southeast beachhead, Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton reported that United States Second Division units opened a push at dawn today to expand bridgeheads west of the Naktong River. Some elements fought their way across ridges past an ancient ruined castle.

Associated Press Correspondent Jack Macbeth reported today from the northwest end of the Pusan perimeter that United States First Corps troops are within less than 3 miles of trapping a strong Red force in the Waegwan area.

Thousands of Marines swarmed across the Han yesterday despite heavy enemy fire. Tanks followed. Then the whole force smashed four miles southeastward to within four miles of Seoul.

A second column was even closer to Seoul on the west, but the broad Han stood between it and the capital. This Marine force was in a suburb a mile from Seoul.

A third column of United States infantry and South Koreans south of Seoul was astride the main highway leading from the old southeast Korean front, 135 miles to the southeast.

Reds Stream Into Seoul

Red troops from that crumbling front were streaming into Seoul by a secondary road farther east. A bitter battle in Seoul's streets seemed at hand.

General MacArthur, who directed the seaborne landing of 40,000 men at Inchon Friday, visited the Han River front. He watched Marines clearing out the enemy along the banks where the successful crossing was made.

Things were going badly for the enemy elsewhere, too.

South Korean Marines landed at Samchok on the east coast of Korea opposite Seoul, 118 miles to the west. They threatened to cut off all enemy forces along the east coast in the area of the port of Pohang.

Old Beachhead Falling Apart

The old Pusan beachhead front appeared to be falling apart. United States infantry attacks and enemy withdrawals eliminated all but one Red pocket on the east bank of the Naktong River.

Enemy forces fighting a fierce rearguard action north of Taegu, the Allied front line base, were threatened with entrapment. South Korean's 17 miles north of Taegu were cutting across their line of retreat.

The Marines crossed the Han 8 miles northwest of Seoul at dawn Wednesday, secured a 100-yard bridgehead in three minutes and gained dominating heights around the bridgehead 90 minutes later.

Field dispatches said the column advanced 4 miles—half the distance to its immediate objective of Seoul—in the first few hours of fighting.

Enemy Losses Are High

General MacArthur's post-midnight summary said the column was moving steadily southeast astride the Han River. It did not give the location of advance elements.

MacArthur's summary said resistance was stiffening.

South of Seoul, Americans and South Koreans of the United States Seventh Infantry Division drew up a line of Sherman and Pershing tanks to meet Reds racing toward Seoul from the southeast.

MacArthur's summary said enemy casualties in the action around Seoul "continue to be high and the prisoner of war count increases hourly." It added that "our casualties are relativey light."

The United Nations commander-in-chief said supplies for allied troops were rolling ashore at Inchon at the rate of 4000 tons daily. He said troops landing at Kimpo airfield, 15 miles northwest of Seoul, "is now in full operation."

The Marine crossing of the Han was preceded by a thunderous barrage by allied warships standing off shore more than 10 miles away.

The mighty United States battleship Missouri, with its 16-inch rifles, joined in smashing enemy positions which had repulsed a night crossing attempt.

"The artillery thundered," reported associated press correspondent Don Whitehead who was in the first crossing wave.

"We could hear the rush of shells and feel the shudder of explosions as our artillery pounded the enemy shore of the Han."

Then the first wave of Marines went over in amphibious tractors. Bullets from enemy pockets which had survived the awesome shelling smacked against the Amtracs' armored sides.

The amtracs reached the shore and spilled out the Marines. Marine casualties were reported heavy in the mopup of the North Koreans. Then tanks began moving across the stream.

The Han river defense was breached. The march on Seoul was begun.

The South Korean Marine landing on the East coast was at Samchok, about 100 air miles north of Pohang. This cuts the coast supply line to Red forces who once more have been driven out of Pohang. The South Korean third division seized Pohang.

An Army spokesman in Washington, who made the announcement, said the landing occurred several days ago, apparently after a softening-up by big guns of the battleship Missouri.

The Army spokesman had no information on the size of the force that established a beachhead at Samchok.

Neither field dispatches nor official summaries have mentioned the Samchok landing. It could be a snare for Red forces on the east coast or the start of a lateral allied thrust across the mountains toward Seoul.

Marines Land With Rabbits Feet (on Hoof)

By Don Whitehead

IN KOREA WITH THE U. S. MARINES, Sept. 20 (AP).—A pale three quarters moon was sliding below the horizon when the Marines came out of their foxholes and started trudging toward the Han River today.

Ahead of them somewhere on the dusty road were the big amphibious tractors the assault waves would ride into the battle for the Han River bridgehead on the Seoul side.

The men came out of their holes cursing softly. The night was cold and damp.

Maj. Mike Erhlich of San Diego yelled at his men, the heavy weapons company of the Fifth Regiment's First Battalion:

"Get ready to move. Assemble in boats."

Assault Delayed

The assault was set for 4 a. m. and Erhlich's men were to ride with the assault.

Erhlich checked again with his battalion commander, Lieut. Col. Robert D. Taplett of San Francisco.

The H-hour for attack had been delayed because of the failure of a reconnaissance mission to get across the river a few hours before.

The troops milled around in the darkness. Confusion seemed to be everywhere. Finally, the third battalion sorted itself out and the men climbed into the big amtracks.

Rabbits in Box

Then I noticed the sergeant carrying the cardboard box—M/Sergt. Anthony Kent of Salina, Kans. He noticed my curiosity and opened the top. Inside were three fluffy white rabbits sleeping soundly on a bed of straw.

"Bought them with a package of cigarettes," Kent grinned. "Now they're our mascots."

Rabbits going into battle with the big tough Marine! Suddenly I realized how young these warriors were.

There were 35 men in our amtrack.

Dawn had broken when the amtrack column lurched forward and roared down the road toward the river. And in the bowels of each were sealed a unit of Marines ready to begin fighting when the amtrack doors opened on the Seoul side.

Bullets began to slam against the side of our amtrack. Through a slit in the rear door I could see little spouts of water jumping up as bullets hit the water. But the steel sides protected us and the amtracks plowed ahead.

Then we were ashore and climbing a steep sandy bank. The machineguns were rattling. Our amtrack pulled away from the river about 1000 yards and swerved through a rice paddy to an embankment. The men were tense.

Slowly the door opened. Sergeant Kent was first out, carrying the box with the rabbits. As he hugged the shelter of a bank he put them down carefully beside him.

I dashed after the sergeant and then the man behind me screamed and pitched forward. At the same time we heard the crack of the rifle.

Then another Marine screamed and fell.

The enemy on the hill above us was shooting straight down into our men as they came out the door.

The Marines hugged the embankment. The driver fell wounded.

Mike Ehrlich cooly sent a rifle squad around the ridge, and ordered an amtrack machinegunner to swing his gun around and open fire.

Above us crackled rifles and machineguns as the fighting moved up the ridge.

Down the hill came frightened, whimpering civilians. The children were sobbing and frightened, their eyes wide with fear.

Sergeant Kent looked at the children and then he went back down the hill. When he returned he carried the box with the three white rabbits. He sat down and slowly opened the lid and took one of the rabbits out in his big hamlike hand. He smiled at the children.

The fear went out of their eyes and tears stopped. Then they smiled and came over to peek into the box and exclaim over the mascots of the Third Battalion.

The Sergeant grinned and put the rabbits back in the box and went back to his job.

In a short time our mortars were thumping shells into the enemy lines.

The Marines had landed and the situation was well in hand.

Yanks Pursue Fleeing Reds; 'Tank Battle' From Now On

WAEGWAN, Korea (Wednesday), Sept. 20 (U.P.).—Victorious American troops and tanks poured through Waegwan today in hot pursuit of retreating Communists.

After Twenty-fourth Division troops took the town earlier in the day, other forces were within 2 miles of pulling abreast of it on the west bank of the Naktong to seize high ground dominating the Waegwan-Kumchon road.

Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, First Cavalry Division commander whose men burst through the hills to reach the river—sometimes at bayonet point—said, "we've broken their backs. From now on its a tank battle and I don't think the North Koreans have many tanks."

Waegwan was battered and burning. Its famed church steeple remained intact but most of the ramshackle wood and mud houses were only rubble. A school house which was the First Cavalry Division's command post only six weeks ago was standing but was burned out.

American mortar squads on the northern outskirts of the city were pouring a drumfire barrage into the North Koreans who in some places retreated beyond American artillery range.

Three burned out Russian tanks lay on their sides within 2 miles of the town. Two tanks were captured intact, with all their ammunition and tank crews' sidearms.

Pfc. Wayne Burke of Milwaukee, Wis., said his unit captured two North Korean prisoners who said their entire regiment wanted to give up, but was kept fighting by its fanatical officers. Burke said the prisoners were sent back to their unit with a "surrender or die" ultimatum.

Air Force Planes Set New Record In Korea Sorties

TOKYO (Thursday), Sept. 21 (U.P.).—Planes under command of United States Far East Air Forces flew an all time high of 702 sorties yesterday including airlift flights to newly-won Kimpo airfield, it was announced today.

The Air Force said Australian Mustangs flew a record 44 sorties and that transport planes lifted a record of 635 tons of cargo and 1055 passengers into Korea in 139 individual flights.

An Air Force spokesman said earlier that Pohang air strip on the east coast is expected to be put back into operation "momentarily" because it is now out of Communist artillery range.

The spokesman said "hundreds" of Communists were killed yesterday as fighter-bombers attacked retreating North Koreans along the Pusan perimeter with bombs, rockets and 79,500 rounds of 50-calibre ammunition.

The Air Force announced that more than 300 of the record number of flights were close support sorties. In addition 63 B-29s hit 37 separate targets and light bombers swept the battle line in a continuous stream.

DAV Praises Army For Draft Standards

The Disabled American Veterans yesterday commended the Army for its "careful screening" of draftees and attacked the Selective Service System for demanding a lowering of Army induction standards.

DAV National Commander Boniface R. Malle asserted there will be fewer disabled veterans in the future "if the armed forces disregard Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey's recent criticism that they are being 'too choosey' in rejecting three out of five candidates for military service."

The DAV chief said the organization's postwar experience shows that if there had been more "choosiness" in World War II, the Nation would not have 2,200,000 disabled veterans drawing Government compensation today. He said:

Meanwhile, at the Arlington Farms induction station, 109 District draftees were taken into the Army, then sent on to Fort Meade for training. Eight other draftees were scheduled to enter the Army via draft boards in other cities, or were given deferments. There were no delinquents.

District Draft Director William E. Leahy delivered a brief send-off speech for the local government. The District American Legion colors were presented by the National Guard of Honor.

Alexandria Man

Wounded GI Hides 3 Days From Enemy

Pvt. Skinner Pvt. Littlejohn

An Alexandria medical corpsman who, wounded and feigning death, hid for three days without food or water under an enemy machine-gun nest in Korea, has written his mother to tell her of his experience.

Sergt. Sherman

Two other Washington men were also listed as wounded in action on Defense Department casualty list No. 100.

Sergt. Robert T. Sherman, 19, described being jabbed with knives and sticks by the Reds who, believing he was dead, went through his pockets and took all his belongings, his mother, Mrs. Violet N. Sherman, related.

Mrs. Sherman, who lives at 826 Duke st., Alexandria, said her son told her in her letter this week that he remained under the machine-gun nest for three days and three nights, until he was rescued by U. N. troops who recaptured the position.

Sherman, a jeep ambulance driver, was wounded on August 31 while evacuating wounded from a front-line battlefield.

Shot in the thigh, Sherman dragged his way 200 yards to the machinegun nest. The position was overrun by the enemy. Sherman was jabbed with knives and sticks, his mother said, and his belongings looted. Then the Reds left him for dead.

He huddled under the nest without food or drink until the position was recaptured by American troops on September 3. He is now in a hospital in Japan, his mother said, and is not seriously wounded.

Private, a native of Alexandria, attended George Washington High School until he enlisted in the Army in January, 1949. He was stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash., and was sent to Japan on June 21.

Mrs. Sherman, whose husband died in 1940, has eight children, four boys and four girls. Two of Sergeant Sherman's older brothers served overseas in the Navy during World War II.

The Washington men wounded are Pvt. William C. Skinner, 29, husband of Betty Jane Skinner, 469 M st. sw., and Pvt. Edward I. Littlejohn, 17, son of Willis J. Littlejohn, 2910 Georgia ave. nw.

Skinner, who served with Patton's Third Army in Europe during World War II, is being flown to this country for hospitialization, his wife was informed Monday.

Mrs. Skinner, who works for the Standard Drug Co., 11th and H sts, ne., said this was the first word she had had about her husband since the Defense Department sent her a telegram on September 15 telling her he was wounded.

A native of Webster, Fla., Skinner has been in the Army since he was 17. He was stationed at Fort Myer for six years before he left for Korea on August 1, his wife said.

The Skinners, who were married in 1948, have an 11-month-old son, William Clifton, jr.

Private Littlejohn was wounded on August 30, according to word received by his family.

The family received one telegram on September 15, saying he had been seriously wounded and another two days later saying he had been slightly wounded.

Littlejohn was born in Edenton, N. C., but was brought to Washington as a child. He attended Armstrong high school here and enlisted in the Army on April 1. He was stationed at Fort Knox, Ky., until he was shipped to Korea in July.

Pvt. Albert William Jordan, son of Jabez Jordan, Marley Park, Glen Burnie, Md., also was listed as wounded on the list.

The Defense Department announced yesterday that families have been notified of 13,911 Korean war casualties through September 15.

The department said this was a cumulative figure that included all casualties reported through that date to the next of kin.

The total included 1684 killed in action, 3518 missing in action and 8709 wounded.

Happy Is The Day When Backache Goes Away . . . .

Veteran Aviator

Adm. Hickey Heads Navy Information

Rear Admiral Robert F. Hickey, veteran naval aviator, was appointed Chief of Information of the Navy Department yesterday.

A native of Red Bluff, Calif., he commanded the aircraft carrier Hancock during World War II. He has been acting chief of information most of the time since Vice Admiral Russell S. Berkey retired as information chief on September 1.

Hickey's new assignment was announced along with a number of other duty orders involving flag officers.

Rear Admiral Daniel V. Gallery has been detached from sea duty to become Commander of Fleet Air at Quonset Point, R. I. He will relieve Rear Admiral Cato D. Glover, who is being ordered to sea duty.

Read Admiral John Perry is being detached from his post as Commander of Fleet Air at Seattle, Wash., to relieve Rear Admiral Ernest W. Litch as Commander of Naval Air Advanced Training at Corpus Christi, Tex. Rear Admiral Litch goes to sea duty.

Rear Admiral Herbert E. Regan, now director of the Aviation Personnel Division in the Office of Chief of Naval Operations here will become Commander of Fleet Air at Seattle.

French Retake Donghke From Viet Minh

SAIGON, Indo-China, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—Foreign Legionnaires and bearded North African Goums recaptured the frontier fort of Donghke today from the Communist-led Viet Minh forces who held it for two days, front line dispatches said.

The French had feared the Communist drive was the beginning of an all-out attempt to seize Indo-China.

The rebels were reported retreating north, to the China border.

French officials also said French patrols in strength were beating through the countryside around Caobang, Moncay, Laokay and Dinhlap, which with Dongkhe, are fortresses standing guard on the "invasion routes" from Communist China.

The French forces that moved on Dongkhe caught one Communist battalion by surprise between Dongkhe and Langson, the French announced.

The Communists broke and fled north, abandoning their dead and wounded, after they were riddled with artillery fire.

U. S. Speeding Arms To Aid of Indo-China

By The Associated Press

The United States is speeding arms to Indo-China, but will not send troops to help block a threatened new Communist assault in that embattled corner of southeast Asia. High officials reaffirmed this policy yesterday.

Four Area Wounded at 'Home'

clear, is his oyster and battlefield.

His home is at 1440 E st. se. He joined the Army at 16 "because there was nothing else to do." He claims 20, asked to be "written up" as 21, is actually 19—a fact betrayed by his beard.

On September 1 he was on a hill north of Pusan. At 4 p. m., he was wounded in the left leg. His only thought at the time was contained in the two words: "It hurt."

With Wimbrough, 21, it was a different story, differently told.

It was a hill August 2 near Taegu. As a radioman, he was on the hill with a lieutenant directing artillery. They'd been there several days. About noon, a mortar shell hit the hill.

The lieutenant's leg was shattered. Wimbrough was smashed in the stomach: "I thought it was like I was boxing in school." He removed the lieutenant from the hill.

While waiting for transportation to a hospital, a shell struck again, cutting tendons and injuring nerves in Wimrough's right wrist.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wimbrough of 3346 Baker st. ne., visited him Tuesday.

It was August 2 for John Walter Goodman. He was on a hill near Pohang. The Americans attacked about 10:30 a. m. Mortar fragments ripped into his left arm, right foot, left knee.

So at Bethesda—in a Naval hospital because Walter Reed is filled up—Goodman, 23, talked about a sergeant in his outfit. The sergeant was the first to be hit in the attack.

Tired, talking softly, he was just a tall boy in pain. His home is at 622 Evarts st. ne. He has been in the Army since 1946. It was six hours before the medics reached him. He wants "out" of the Army.

Not Sam Rowland, at 29 a soldier for eight years.

On August 11 near Chingu, he was leading a platoon. He was calling for mortar fire, when "one of them located me."

So they had to remove his knee cap and in a week or so they'll replace it with a metal one.

Army life kept him away from home, 28 Philadelphia ave., Takoma Park, for 14 months. He arrived at Bethesda Friday night, spent last weekend with his family.

Mediator Recommends Partition of Kashmir

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 20 (AP).—United Nations Mediator Sir Owen Dixon today recommended partitioning of Kashmir as the best way to settle the three-year-old territorial dispute between India and Pakistan.

He also called the continued presence of Indian and Pakistan armies on the cease fire line a "danger to peace" and suggested that troops be withdrawn and the line held by frontier check posts.

The recommendations were submitted to the Security Council. Dixon, an Australian, was appointed mediator last March.

First Medical Reserves From Area to Leave

The 382d Evacuation Hospital, first medical reserve unit to be called to active duty from the Washington area, is scheduled to leave tonight for the West Coast.

The unit, composed of doctors, nurses and businessmen from the metropolitan area, went on active duty at Fort Myer September 11. An advance party commanded by the executive officer, Capt. John M. Wilson, 9404 N. Montgomery ave., Chevy Chase, left Saturday by motor car.

On the recruiting front yesterday the Navy enlisted five regular Navy men and one for the inactive reserve. The Navy recruiting office had two application for enlistment, one of which was accepted.

Fourteen applied for enlistment in the Marine Corps. Four men, one a former Marine, were accepted. One man enlisted.

Armistice Report Sweeps Capital; It's Only a Rumor

A false report that the North Koreans had asked for an armistice swept over Washington yesterday.

Its sole source apparently was a speech made by Secretary of the Navy Francis Matthews before a legal fraternity luncheon attended by delegates to the American Bar Association convention. He is said to have told of the report after being called to the phone.

Later, Matthews' associates said he had merely mentioned press reports to this effect. Pentagon officials said they had no information to bear out such rumors.

Truman Would Drop Pro-Soviet-Aid Ban

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday asked Congress to eliminate from the 17-billion-dollar emergency appropriation bill a provision which would halt economic aid to countries selling munitions behind the Iron Curtain.

Such a step, the President said, was "fraught with danger to the United States and world peace."

The House of Representatives, which spent most of yesterday wading through the conference report on the measure, was given no opportunity to test its own reaction to Mr. Truman's appeal. Before reaching military items in the bill it put off further consideration until today.

Sentiment among House members, however, seemed to favor approval of the ban which was tacked onto the bill by the Senate on motion of Senator Wherry (R., Neb.). House conferees declined to accept it, leaving the decision up to the House itself.

Under provisions of the Wherry amendment, financial help would be cut off from countries which exported to the Soviet Union or its satellites any goods which might be used for aggression or for making the tools of aggression. The Secretary of Defense would determine what goods fell into those categories.

Basis of Opposition

In debate on the Senate floor, opponents of the amendment declared that it would wreck the economy of western Europe and would prevent importation of scarce materials critically needed on the near side of the Iron Curtain. Proponents pointed to recent charges that European nations were exporting eastward materials which not only added to the Soviet military potential but which were needed in building their own strength.

In his letter yesterday, addressed to Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.) and House Appropriations Chairman Cannon (D., Mo.), Mr. Truman conceded that the amendment's proponents had a point. He wrote that "no one can quarrel with the ostensible purpose of the amendment—to weaken the war-making potential of Communist-dominated countries—and on the surface the amendment may seem to be a plausible means for accomplishing that end."

"But," he continued, "the fact is that it would defeat its own purpose and accomplish substantially the opposite result from that intended—it would weaken the free nations more than it would weaken the Soviet bloc."

U. S. Getting "Results"

That was true, the President said, because of the amendment's breadth; it applies, he pointed out, to articles which would be used to manufacture arms as well as to arms themselves. And, he explained, "since almost all goods and commodities can be used for the production of military materiel in one way or another, the amendment, if effective, would require a substantially complete embargo on trade between Western and Eastern Europe."

Mr. Truman said the Government already was working with nations receiving economic help to curb trade which would contribute to Soviet military strength. These negotiations, which aimed at protecting the strength of friendly nations as well, he said, had produced "very substantial results." He added that he felt negotiation was the proper approach to the problem, rather than the "arbitrary blanket approach" of the amendment.

"The amendment affects countries in the Near East and Far East as well as in Europe," Mr. Truman wrote. "Some of these countries do not have strong traditional ties with the Western World. It is important to us to develop and strengthen these ties, which is one of the aims of our assistance program.

Soviet Trade Important

"While they are friendly to the United States, the trade of these countries with the Soviet Union may be so important to them economically that they would have no alternative but forego the limited economic aid which we now make available to them. The amendment leaves no room for negotiation, and accordingly would tend to force such countries into the Soviet orbit, in spite of their friendship for the United States.

"The amendment would also have most unfortunate effects on our relations with the Latin American countries. I am sure these are results wanted by nobody who supports the amendment."

The President warned, finally, that the amendment would probably "do much more harm than good," and urged that its ultimate effect on the welfare of the United States be carefully weighed.

Truman, Farmer Chat Over New Phone

three reserve firsts, four seconds and a few lower medals.

When he finished with Dickinson, Mr. Truman expressed a wish to talk with Mrs. Dickinson. He told her he knew she would enjoy having a telephone. She explained that the only service they had had to date was a 25-party line phone in her father-in-law's house.

Mr. Truman expressed his sympathy—he had "lived" on such a line once himself, he said. Not only was it hard to get the phone, he said, but "you couldn't hear when you got your party—Everybody wanted to listen in."

In closing, the President discussed the need of phone service to farmers, and added that farmers should have it. The Dickinsons have waited a long time for their phone, just as they waited a long time for a home. They live in a trailer on Dickinson's father's farm, which he operates with his dad in partnership.

The celebration took place at the Fredericksburg Agriculturel Fair after a 3-mile-long parade downtown. The fair was a fitting place to hold it. This was the first agricultural exposition to be chartered in the American colonies. The talk between Mr. Truman and the Dickinsons was broadcast at the fair. In true country telephone manner there were lots of eavesdroppers. Not only did the thousands here listen, but the conversation was broadcast over several radio chains and a recording was made for distribution all over the United States and abroad as a program of the State Department Voice of America.

Air Force Veteran

A World War II Air Force veteran, Dickinson married his city girl sweetheart on his return from service. For almost five years they have had their bid in for a phone with the Fredericksburg and Wilderness Telephone Co. but that company was already overloaded with 170 subscribers on its nine lines. The phone company, organized in 1908, got one of the first loans under the REA telephone law—$55,000 to improve and expand its system.

The new system will replace manually operated, crank phones with a dial system. So far, 60 lines have been installed, 20 more are about ready and another 20 in preperation. The number of subscribers has jumped from 170 to 240 already, and within six weeks the total is expected to reach 300.

The amendment of the REA act authorizing the rural telephone loan program became law on October 28, 1949—less than a year ago.

As of September 5, REA had allocated $5,662,500 for loans to 21 commercial companies and five cooperates for expansion and improvement of rural phones in 19 States.

TECHNOLOGY COSTS HER JOB—Mrs. Hazel Tiffany has lost the job she held for 27 years as operator for the Fredericksburg and Wilderness Telephone Co. With the aid of a Government Rural Electric Administration loan, the company has gone modern. A dial system has been installed and Mrs. Tiffany's help, as well as equipment like this old switchboard, is no longer needed

Theft Complaint Backfires

Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson yesterday ordered a man to pay half the fine of a woman whom he had helped convict of stealing his watch.

There was some question that his order would be carried out, however. The man indicated his willingness to pay at the trial, but subsequently disappeared without paying.

The unique sentence was levied in the case of Mrs. Alma Lee Dugent, 33, 1023 4th st. ne., who pleaded guilty to steling a $30 watch, and David L. Miller, 43, of the Soldiers' Home.

Miller testified he met Mrs. Dugent in a downtown grill September 14 and took her to a room. When he woke up, Miller said, Mrs. Dugent and his watch had disappeared.

Mrs. Dugent was arrested later and pleaded guilty in court yesterday.

"The complaining witness here seems to be as guilty of a crime as the defendant," Judge Neilson said, "I sentence the woman to serve 30 days in jail or pay a fine of $25, the complainant to pay half of the fine.

Prosecutor Al Hantman asked Miller whether he heard what Judge Neilson said and whether he would pay the $12.50.

Miller said he would be delighted to pay his share of the fine. Then he disappeared.

As the courts closed last night, Mrs. Dugent was still in jail, and Miller was not to be found.

General Grubbs to Leave Post At Bolling for New Command

Brig. Gen. S. D. (Rosie) Grubbs, commanding general of Air Force Headquarters Command, will leave Bolling AF Base, October 1 for a post with the Strategic Air Command at Shreveport, La.

Gen. Grubbs

The 38-year-old general, whose command includes both Bolling and Andrews AF Bases and other field units in the Washington area, has held that post since December, 1948. His reforms and improvements at the bases are credited with having greatly boosted morale and discipline among the local airmen.

One innovation was quartering enlisted men two to four in private rooms instead of in large dormitories at Bolling barracks. Another was insistence on smart appearance and snappy salutes—a practice that went over big after some initial grumbling. His campaign against the sloppy "50-mission" Air Force cap—waged against visiting fliers as well as his own men—has helped drive out this relic of the old Army Air Corps.

No successor to Grubbs has been announced yet by Air Force headquarters.

At Shreveport, Grubbs will serve as special assistant to the commander of the Second Air Force, a strategic bombing and reconnaissance outfit.

A native of Martinsville, Md., the departing Bolling commander is a veteran of 85 missions during World War II. He is a fighter pilot with a command pilot rating, and served 32 months

OVER TWO YEARS AGO, in keeping with its forward-looking editorial approach, Newsweek "saw it coming"—saw a peace slowly deteriorating—saw war clouds gathering over a free world unprepared for war.

It was in June 1948 that Newsweek asked General Carl A. Spaatz, Chief of Staff, USAF (Ret.) to join the staff as Contributing Editor, military analyst, and advisor on air and military affairs. The editors considered General Spaatz the best qualified to give his considered judgment on the world military situation. This, General Spaatz has done—brilliantly.

And now that the Korean conflict is probably at its most critical point ::: with the North Korean forces being squeezed between a counter-offensive from the south and an invading force far to the north . . . with the entire Far East theater a red-hot powder keg . . . General Spaatz has flown to Korea to dispatch his commentaries on major trends of the war and its consequences from the strategic side. His first dispatch from the invasion front appears in the current issue—out today. This action is another example of the way Newsweek is answering the challenge of today with new and fresh information. For Newsweek believes that only by such service can people know the true state of the world's affairs and adjust their lives and thinking to it.

Ace Eye-Witness War Coverage in The Current Issue—OUT TODAY

- COMPTON PAKENHAM ::: chief of Newsweek's Tokyo Bureau and Far East specialist, who reports from Korea on how the political battle in Korea reflects the world struggle. Read his latest analyses of the ideological tug-of-war between North and South Koreans in the current issue—out today.

- HAROLD LAVINE ::: Newsweek Senior Editor and war correspondent ::: the first newsman to land with the Marines in the invasion at Inchon on September 15. His eye-witness account appears in the current issue—out today.

- GENERAL SPAATZ ::: who flew to Korea, arriving just in time for our massive counter-offensive that crashed the beachhead at Inchon on September 15. Just a few days ago he was a witness when his old friend, Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commander of the Far East Air Force presented Maj. Gen. Earle E. Partridge, commander of the 5th Air Force, with an oak leaf cluster for his DFC. Read Spaatz' first dispatch, filed from somewhere in Korea, in the current issue—out today.

MEETING change with change IS A NEWSWEEK HABIT

Newsweek's publishing concept is to report the week's news, give its background, interpret its meaning, and throw light into the foreseeable future. Newsweek's purpose also is to anticipate, and be ready for change when it occurs.

- When war threatened in 1940, Newsweek instituted "Defense."
- When the war tide began to turn in 1943, Newsweek began "Postwar Horizons."
- When Europe and Asia began to rebuild in 1945, Newsweek established its International Editions.
- When intrigues began to form in 1946, Newsweek inaugurated its "United Nations" Department.
- When developments became grave in 1948, Newsweek began "Special Reports" on significant trends and events.
- And now, in 1950, with Korea perhaps a stepping stone to another world struggle, Newsweek has created a new exclusive feature "Key to Conflict." This section pieces together all developments that form the pattern of aggression whatever they are, and wherever they occur.

Thus has Newsweek met change with change in a never-slackening spirit of dedication to its belief that "A Well-Informed Public is America's Greatest Security."

ings up to $25,000, and 45 percent on all over that.

3. Bring in five billion dollars additional from corporations over the next five years by gradually speeding up corporate tax collections from the present 12 months lag to full payments within six months after they are due.

4. Grant GI's in Korea and other combat zones a complete tax exemption of pay earned while they are in war areas. Their officers would receive a $200-a-month exemption of pay earned during service in combat zones.

5. Plug many tax loopholes, tax for the first time the unrelated business income of charitable and educational trusts, and further encourage war production by permitting war industries to amortize the cost of defense plants for tax purposes over a period of five years.

In finally breaking the tax stalemate, the conferees threw out of the bill a House provision for taxing corporate dividends at the source, through a 10 percent withholding levy.

They agreed to accept a Senate provision taxing life insurance income retroactively to 1949, instead of reaching back to 1947, as the House initially proposed.

In the last-minute compromise these two Senate provisions were completely dropped from the bill:

Liberalized tax treatment of (1) family partnerships and (2) proceeds from sale of oil, gas and other mineral rights.

The decision to recess, rather than adjourn Congress was first voted unanimously by the Senate Democratic Policy Committee and later concurred in by Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) and House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., (Mass.).

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) first announced November 20 as the congressional return date, but later changed the date to November 27 to allow time out for Thanksgiving (November 23).

House leaders meanwhile had agreed to the November 20 date, and failed to immediately revise it. Lucas said the Senate will designate November 27 in its recess resolution and let the House amend it as it wishes.

terned" in event of war, invasion or insurrection.

Indications of a presidential veto have been piling up ever since the President called the Senate's McCarran version worse than the old House Mundt-Nixon bill.

Attorney General J. Howard McGrath in another cue yesterday told the American Bar Association the bill would do little to check "wily" intriguers and actually "pin the wings of angels upon the Devil's advocates."

Last night, Americans for Democratic Action, through National Chairman Francis Biddle, likewise stressed that the bill would promote rather than hinder Communist intrigue and called on Mr. Truman for a veto.

More than one thousand religious leaders, scientists, educators and others, led by Nobel Prize winners Dr. Thomas Mann and Miss Emily Greene Balch, signed a telegram to the President likewise urging a veto.

In the closing Senate debate, Senators Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) and Karl Mundt (D., S. Dak.), chief Senate authors of the measure, denied the bill infringed the Constitutional rights of anyone. McCarran said it was a "tough" bill but a "good" one, essential to the internal security of the United States.

A handful of Senate liberals, led by Senators Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), Herbert Lehman (D., N. Y.) and Frank Graham (D., N. C.), led the fight against it, challenging McCarran's "Constitutional" assurances.

Kefauver argued that Communist membership definitions in the bill are so vague the Supreme Court is certain to upset the measure. This, he said, would turn the real Communists loose and make "martyrs" of them.

Lehman said it would drive the Communists underground and "do more to advance the cause of the Communists in this country than any other single thing we, or even Moscow, can do."

Questioning McCarran, Graham argued the bill in effect legislates "thought control," bars Russian "converts" to democracy from admission to the United States, and excludes anyone associated with a foreign publishing house that ever printed anything about Marxism. McCarran denied this was so.

Langer Upholds Present Laws

Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.) in an hour-long speech said present espionage and anti-sabotage laws can provide adequate security if enforced.

Senators Spessard R. Holland (D., Fla.), Herbert O'Conor (D., Md.) and other proponents backed up McCarran's arguments for the bill. Holland said AFL and CIO leaders fighting the bill had been influenced by the "babbling" of a "hysterical ultra liberal fringe."

Mundt said he'd "eat the bill" if anyone could find in it a single phrase "which strikes at freedom of the press, freedom of speech or the right of free assembly." He added that if it is vetoed "an all-time American record" will be set for bipartisan action to override the veto.

Across the Capitol, Representative Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.) closed House arguments in behalf of the bill. Walter said he has been convinced by testimony before the Un-American Activities Committee over a period of months "that there is a plot to overthrow the Government of the United States." Walter said Japanese internment under the second war powers act in the last war was "far more stringent" than controls provided in the bill.

Representative Abraham J. Multer (D., N. Y.) hit provisions in the bill requiring publication in the Federal Register of defense plants designated by the Secretary of Defense. Far from aiding internal security, Multer said defense plants listing would provide Communists with valuable secret information.

Multer's fears on this score are said to be shared by the Administration and may figure in the President's expected veto message.

Representative John Carroll (D., Colo.) told the House he would veto the bill if he were President but "disassociated" himself from the views of Representative Vito Marcantonio, New York's leftist ALP member, who opened the fight against the bill.

Carroll cited the Greek-Turkish loan, the Marshall Plan, the Atlantic pact and other Administration moves to check communism's spread. In all of these measures he said America has carried a message of "freedom" to the world. He said the anti-Red bill would tell other nations instead that we have "panic fears" of communism.

Mississippi's John Rankin (D.) said no bill curbing communism can be "too tough."

Breakdown of Vote

Twenty-four Democrats joined 27 Republicans in voting for the bill in the Senate. These six Democrats joined by a lone Republican voted against it: Graham (N. C.), Green (R. I.), Kefauver (Tenn.), Kilgore (W. Va.), Leahy (R. I.) and Lehman (N. Y.), all Democrats, and Langer (R., N. Dak.), voted against it.

Eighteen house Democrats voted against the bill, along with one Republican, Rep. Usher L. Burdick of North Dakota, and Rep. Vito Marcantonio, American laborite of New York.

Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr. (D., Lib., N. Y.) was one of the Democrats voting against it. Others were:

Representatives Wayne N. Aspinall and John A. Carroll, both of Colorado; Emanuel Celler, Abraham J. Multer and Adam Clayton Powell, all of New York; P. Eberharter, of Pennsylvania; Walter B. Huber, Ohio; Andrew J. Biemiller, Wisc.; John A. Blatnik and Roy W. Wier, both of Minnesota; William L. Dawson, Adolph J. Sabath, Sidney R. Yates and Barratt O'Hara, all of Illinois, and Helen Gahagan Douglas and Cecil R. King, both of California.

Flour Is Weapon in War on County Rats

Arlington County officials are planning a bit of detective work to learn more about the habits of rats which infest the county's dump at S. Glebe rd. and Jefferson Davis hwy.

To determine if the dump's occupants are being attracted by a newly opened Alexandria City dump a short distance away, the Sanitation Department plans to spread household flour along a pathway leading toward the Alexandria installation.

Thus, if any "white" rats show up at the Alexandria dump, officials will know the rodents are migrating from their former Arlington homes.

The purpose of the move is to aid both communities in their efforts to exterminate the rodents.

The joint campaign was launched last June by Alexandria and Arlington sanitarians who had used both poison and a noxious gas in an effort to abate the nuisance.

Arlington is particularly anxious to get rid of rats in its own dump since the installation is to be shut down around November 1, when a new county incinerator is slated to be in operation.

Greek Aid

The musical chairs which the Populist and the Liberal politicians have been playing of late in Greece may be brought to an abrupt termination by ECA action. ECA aid will be cut as a sign of dissatisfaction with the neglect of the Greek government of reconstruction. This is the first time such an action has been taken. In Greece it was overdue. Ambassador Grady before he left had warned the government that this might be done if the shenanigans after the Greek election last March persisted. His warning proved to be salutary, and the people got the government that seemed to represent their left-of-center desires. But the scheming got under way as soon as Ambassador Grady left, and Premier Plastiras fell, with the way left open for the Tsaldaris-Venizelos combination. Politics is the chief pastime in Greece, and the people love it; but this is no reason that the American taxpayer should subsidize it. especially when it means that in the process reconstruction effort is put on the shelf. The primary principle of ECA aid is that help shall be accompanied by self-help.

Civil Defense

The handbook on civil defense prepared by the National Security Resources Board and submitted to Congress on Monday is a grim document. Its matter-of-fact references to air-raid warning systems, evacuation plans, fire prevention, panic control, bomb reconnaissance and other security precautions afford a salutary reminder that in case of another war this Nation could not consider itself immune from air attack. Coping with such an attack and counteracting its effects would be a vital part of the country's military security—not so much because it would save civilian lives as because it would be indispensable to the maintenance of war production. "Civil defense can be defined," says the NSRB report, "as the protection of the home front by civilians acting under civil authority to minimize casualties and war damage and preserve maximum civilian support of the war effort."

There are concentric rings of responsibility for civilian defense as the NSRB views the problem. At the center, necessarily, is the individual who must be counted on to look after his immediate family; beyond him is the municipality or locality of which he is a resident; but the work of local authorities must be integrated and supplemented by State organizations; and these, in turn, must be part of a master Federal program. The need for Federal coordination is made especially imperative by the danger of atomic attack. It is necessary in preparations against such an attack to think of the entire Nation as a community with each part ready to succor and support any area on which destruction might be inflicted.

The aim of bombers is not so much to take human life as to paralyze production. In the event of raids on the United States, an enemy would strike, presumably, at industrial centers—perhaps simultaneously at half a dozen critical target areas. The civil defense planners have designated to State authorities the areas they think an enemy would be most likely to select for attack and have urged appropriate precautions. But an equal responsibility rests upon the areas that seem less endangered. They may have to provide for the shelter and accommodation of great numbers of evacuees; they may be called upon for mobile emergency aid that can be brought swiftly to the place where it is needed.

Civil defense can no longer be localized as it was to a large extent even in England during the last war. The great need in the future, as we see it—a need upon which we think the NSRB blueprint lays inadequate emphasis—is for the mobilization of regional and national resources for the work of resuscitation and rehabilitation in case of major devastation. The distinction between civil defense in the last war and civil defense in a war to come has been expressed pungently by Prof. Eugene Rabinowitch in an article in the current Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists:

> Civil defense in the last war meant primarily protection of one's own family, or city block, from blast and fire. Too many see civil defense in an atomic war as the same parochial task—with a Geiger counter added to a pail of sand and shovel as the standard equipment of an air-raid warden. To a certain extent, this will be the case; but to a much greater extent, civil defense will have to be an organized effort of the civilian population as a whole to keep the country as a whole a going concern.

In the last analysis, civil defense must provide a program not merely for minimizing civilian casualties but more importantly for maximizing the civilian contribution toward ultimate victory. The problem is all too likely to grow in magnitude as time passes and stockpiles of atomic bombs increase. We shall have to give thought in the years ahead to a rational dispersal of essential production facilities and to the maintenance of adequate standby plants, sources of power and means of communication, transportation and distribution. None of this is pleasant to contemplate; but in an atomic age, none of it can be ignored.

Marshall On The Spot

General Marshall was less than candid in his testimony about China in the hearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee—so much so that in the early editions of the New York Times the report was captioned: Marshall Disavows China Policy. He said he had accepted the commission to China at the President's request. "While I was in this room," General Marshall said, referring to the Pearl Harbor hearing in December, 1945, "the policy of the United States had been drawn up in the State Department. That policy, of course, speaks for itself." He added that the policy had been proclaimed in Washington when he was en route to China.

We hope the matter will not be left in this most unsatisfactory state. General Marshall gave the Senators the impression that he simply carried out instructions without having discussed those instructions beforehand—let alone having agreed to them. Let us look at the record. General Marshall departed from Washington within an hour or so after the President's announcement of China policy, December 15, 1945. He carried with him not only the documents, but also a personal letter from the President which epitomized the policy in these words:

> Specifically, I desire that you endeavor to persuade the Chinese government to call a national conference of representatives of the major political elements to bring about the unification of China and, concurrently, to effect a cessation of hostilities, particularly in north China.

Elsewhere in the letter the President said: "I understand that these documents have been shown to you and received your approval." The President restated this policy the following year, on December 18, 1946. In the course of it, he said, "I asked General Marshall to go to China as my representative. We had agreed upon my statement of the United States Government's views and policies regarding China as his directive."

If all this does not mean what it says, then the President owes the public an explanation. He cannot but be embarrassed by General Marshall's incomplete statement—if not disavowal of the President's policy. What General Marshall said will be picked up, as it should be, by his Republican critics as proving that General Marshall was merely a tool—or, as Representative Judd once put it, a "dupe." The facts are that the Marshall assignment was, in Mr. Byrnes' words when he was Secretary of State, to bring Chungking (the Nationalists) and Yenan (the Communists) together and that, on the President's showing, General Marshall had his eyes open and his mind receptive when he accepted it.

Harriman's Error

In addressing the AFL at the Houston convention, W. Averell Harriman, President Truman's special assistant on foreign affairs, emphasized the need for strength and unity at home and assured the delegates that he had not come to make a partisan speech. "There are many issues on which men of good will of both parties can and should work together," he said. "These include, above all, our foreign policies and the security of our Nation." He added that many Senators and Congressmen of both parties have worked earnestly to develop bipartisan foreign policies and expressed the conviction that the people "do not want to have their foreign policy—their basic security—made a political football."

Thereupon Mr. Harriman himself proceeded to make a political football of our foreign policy by attacking Senator Taft for voting to cut ECA appropriations, for voting against the North Atlantic Treaty, for voting against military aid to western Europe. He also endeared himself to the AFL delegates by asserting that Mr. Taft "has shown no understanding of the importance of organized labor in our affairs at home and in the world"—a slap at the Taft-Hartley Act that has little, if any, bearing on the Administration's foreign policy.

In our opinion, Mr. Harriman is right in concluding that Communist objectives would have been furthered if Congress had followed Mr. Taft's lead in respect of foreign aid. At times we have criticized the Ohioan on his voting record. But Mr. Harriman ought to ask himself whether an attack by him in his unique mediatory position will not alienate Republican supporters of the Administration's foreign policy. Already some of them have voiced their protests, and this will be music in Moscow.

If Mr. Harriman had wanted to strengthen the bipartisan policy, he might have called attention to the recent action of Senator Lodge, who attempted to sidetrack the Wherry rider to the supplemental appropriations bill banning shipments of goods having military value to Russia or her satellites. Or, if he had wanted to be impartial in his castigation of members of Congress who fail to support the Administration's foreign policy, he might have mentioned the fact that Senator Byrd was also a sponsor of the modified amendment banning such shipments—which finally passed—while Senator George was one of the most vocal advocates of the unmodified Wherry amendment. As a matter of fact, if every Senator and Congressman who has ever voted for a foreign policy proposal disapproved by the Administration were to be blacklisted as an unwitting dupe of the Kremlin, most of the distinguished leaders of the Democratic Party would be in the doghouse.

As special assistant on foreign affairs to President Truman, Mr. Harriman serves a vital function in resolving interdepartmental conflicts among Government agencies and assisting the efforts of the State Department to develop a consistent foreign policy. But by his injudicious political assault on Senator Taft, as well as by his assumption that there is no room for honest differences of opinion regarding the wisdom of the Administration's foreign policy, he has prejudiced his chance of being accepted by the public as a bona fide advocate of a nonpartisan foreign policy.

Vote On China

Secretary Acheson seemed to crack the whip when the Indian move to seat the Chinese Communist delegate to the United Nations came to a vote in the Assembly. The result was that the resolution went down to defeat, 33 to 16, but not before Mr. Acheson had made it plain that only a postponement was in his mind. Presumably the question will be fully discussed when the Korean aggression has been crushed and the November elections have been put behind the Administration. To prepare for the discussion, a U. N. committee will study a uniform procedure in case of disputed representation.

So the issue has been put on ice. It is just as well. First things first: the Korean aggression must be disposed of, and the United Nations has a prime duty to see to it that it is not caught unready for a peace that might come overnight. It is scandalous to read at this late day that the member nations will be asked to help feed Korea after the Communists have been ousted.

This was the comment recorded yesterday by Dr. Dennis A. Fitzgerald, ECA agriculture director. It was spelled out later in the Acheson speech to the General Assembly (upon which an extended comment is reserved) in a more ambitious program of aid. The future tense is what we object to. We all die in the short run, as Lord Keynes used to remark, and this is particularly true of Asiatics, who live a marginal existence. When hostilities are over, the Koreans will be in grievous want, for their rice harvest will doubtless be more or less nonexistent.

Not that the Indian preoccupation with the hot potato of the Chinese seat is criticizable. Our objection to it is that it is still premature, and partly as the result of India's own action. A month ago Premier Nehru was Kremlin-trapped into acting as a second for Moscow's effort to make a Chinese-Korean deal. If the United Nations would admit Communist China, then the Russians would call off their dogs in Korea. That would have been a Munich, indeed. It would have condemned the United Nations to extinction if there had been any sign of compromise in repelling the aggressor. Aggression of the Korean type is an absolute, not a relative.

However, the time must come when the China nettle must be grasped. Suppose that the present Polish government were extruded from all Poland and wound up on an island in the Baltic. Suppose that the Moscow government then insisted that the island Poles were still the representative Poles. What should we call this kind of behavior? Obviously we would say it was upside down diplomacy, and we should be right. The United States is inviting the same charge from the rest of the free world by its stubborn refusal to face the facts in China. It is splitting the free world, and endangering the support of India in a grapple with the problem of Asia on a realistic basis, though it should be obvious that no Asian policy is possible without some Asian support.

Courage Pays Off

There may be a most important moral for politicians in the outcome of this week's Maryland primaries. It appears that a regard for decency and courage is not dead among American voters. Senator Millard E. Tydings, who exhibited these qualities conspicuously in his conduct as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee which investigated the McCarthy charges, was renominated by a landslide that gave him more than twice as many votes as the aggregate of his two opponents. Both of these opponents conducted campaigns based principally on criticism of the Senator for his part in what they persisted in calling a "whitewash." Marylanders evidently were not taken in by this tawdry attack.

We think Senator Tydings' experience deserves some reflection on the part of members of Congress who seem to suppose that only the most extravagant vilification can pass for patriotism these days. They show small respect for the intelligence of the electorate; and it is by no means impossible that the sentiment will be reciprocated at the polls. Senator Tydings dealt with the McCarthy affair more conscientiously than opportunistically. He and his Democratic colleagues on the subcommittee called a hoax a hoax and forthrightly expressed the disgust which decent men generally felt over Senator McCarthy's abuse of his senatorial position. It is heartening to know that the American people can be counted on to save seats in the Senate for men like Senator Tydings who are not afraid to say what they think.

Jenner's Attack

The smear campaign goes on—this time Senator Jenner has added his bit by a lengthy, hysterical, slurring speech, attempting to discredit Gen. George Marshall. Surely our memories are short; only a few years have passed since he, along with other outstanding officers, headed our armies in a successful war against aggression. Here is a man that needs no defense; his record speaks for itself.

It is encouraging to note that even the "smear artists" of Jenner's own party sat in stunned silence, and failed to support this vicious attack on a public servant. Unfortunately this offensive behavior on the part of Senators may react badly throughout the world, and our prestige as a great Nation may suffer as a result. Surely peoples of other countries, looking to us for guidance, must wonder at the antics in our Congress, the cheap publicity-seeking individuals who manage to make the headlines every day or two.

Let us stop this campaign or program of smearing, lying, slanderous, libelous talk about our political opponents. After all, above our political affiliations we are all Americans.

Georgetown Dogs

I should like to register an indignant protest at the toleration by your authorities and citizenry of the conditions of filth on the streets of your celebrated den of antiquity, Georgetown. Before coming to your otherwise fair city to use your unique library facilities, I was given the names and addresses of a number of officials who might be helpful to me in historical endeavors which I am pursuing. I was also advised that some of these people lived in Georgetown, where most people of good manners and breeding also lived. I was not told of the numbers of dogs which also live there. As a result of numerous visits to this section of your community, I have found that only the dogs there appear to have breeding. Good manners are not expected of dogs and evidently cannot be expected from their owners. The sidewalks of Georgetown are literally covered with the excrement of these dogs. The streets are poorly lighted, and the hazards of walking down these historic streets not only include the scuffing of filth, but a twisted ankle or broken limb.

Now, other cities have met this insanitary and hazardous problem by urging their citizenry to curb their dogs or by ordinance requiring their citizenry to do so. Since Washington is disenfranchised, and the Congress is overburdened with more pressing matters of national security, hope for legislation is remote.

MASON PARTRIDGE.

"'Wogs' And 'Gooks'"

Your editorial of September 9, "Wogs" and "Gooks," impresses and amuses me. A long time ago, in perhaps too mellow a mood, I wrote you something about the ungenerous foolishness in using the so-called word "Jap."

If, as a people, we have any pervasive sin it is smugness—a disposition to assume that somehow we are essentially a superior people. This is why we are so prone to find more or less nasty words to identify people other than ourselves. It might be argued there is something poetic about this habit; but there is also something essentially smug in the use of such words as niggers and kikes and polacks and wops and frogs and hunkies and gooks.

I have talked with many individuals and audiences in Japan and I have been very careful never use the word "Jap" in reference to the Japanese people. They have a deep and, occasionally, a fierce pride and they think that "Jap" is an insult. But what they think of the word "Gook" is unprintable. Yet during the last three years I spent in Japan on an assignment involving our "democratization of these people I heard "Gook" used constantly by both officers and men, not only as a noun but even as an adjective. Anything native and broken down and, according to our standards, inefficient would be called gook. A charcoal-burning bus would be a gook crate; fried fish would be gook food; hard rubber balls would be gook baseballs, and so ad nauseam. I doubt if I would dwell on this tremendous trifle again if it were not for your concern about the "mischievous word." To all Japanese this word adds up to the ultimate insult.

If we are ever to succeed in making friends with the peoples of the East, and in convincing them that our way is better than the way of the Kremlin, we are going to have to do a great deal more than kill North Koreans, difficult as that seems to be. As John Osborne pointed out in his penetrating story a few weeks ago, machines, however wonderful, cannot talk to people, especially the people of Asia. If we are to win them to our side—and everybody seems now to realize how important it is to have them on our side—we must learn to talk with them in a language of decency and respect. We might begin by eliminating the word "Gook" in reference to Asiatics and "Jap" when we refer to the Japanese. This will be difficult and a serious curtailment of our precious freedom to speak our minds about people other than ourselves. But, in a so-called civilization, so rich in butter and bullets, it would seem to be a minor sacrifice.

Preventive War

The Rev. Father Edmund A. Walsh may indeed be the "Catholic expert on geopolitics" as you describe him, but I was curious that your September 16 report of his speech both credits him with saying war between Russia and the United States is inevitable, and that he urged continued efforts to prevent the inevitable collission.

Father Walsh, I hope, has faith that the extra effort he suggests will produce results, and therefore our work for peace is not futile.

I could think of no more discouraging prospect than the universal acceptance by Americans of the thought that we have just got to have a war with the Soviet Union. Men do not struggle to prevent that evil which they consider to be inevitable.

Ousting Dr. Hager

It was most gratifying to read that Dr. Hager had proposed the merger of Miner and Wilson Teachers Colleges. It is still further gratifying to notice that the many letters commenting on the report were favorable. The appearance of the report, followed by the immediacy of propitious reaction from individual citizens and groups, was cause for optimism. But this optimism was dimmed by the knowledge that a petition was being circulated to oust Dr. Hager from his position as president of Wilson Teachers College. It is hoped that this petition will not get any further than its inception, and that all thoughtful citizens and the Board of Education will exert their moral strength and courage to uphold Dr. Hager in the prudent position which he has taken.

Chiang Kai-shek's Regime

It had been better had "Arlington Resident" "touched not of this Pierian spring" of Chinese historical knowledge, for his paucity of this ingredient makes him a ready victim of the propaganda long emanating from the Acheson apparatus.

It is not a question of whether the tendering of support to Nationlist China was ever a serious issue in American politics. It is a question of whether the Marshall philosophy of letting China go and holding on to Europe has paid off or will pay off. It was only incidental that General Marshall's fetish of our furnishing European against Asian support met with the hearty accord of the Acheson apparatus. It was their stint to replace Chiang with Mao and they first had to sell Mao as a "harmless agrarian."

Service, Davies, Carter, Wallace, Lattimore, et al., never quite succeeded in selling the American people this bill of goods, but they did sell Marshall principally because Marshall, with his fetish of "Europe over all," wanted to be sold. He went to China determined to get the "harmless agrarians" into Chiang's government. He was not successful. Whereupon his "plague on both your houses" enabled him to "wash his hands of China" and devote his entire efforts to stopping the Reds in Europe. The Acheson apparatus then justified the whole procedure with a China White Paper. This produced the myths that "Arlington Resident" repeats so glibly—"the inefficiency in Chiang's government," "Chiang was swept from power by a social force, etc.", the old "harmless agrarian" technique.

Chiang was swept out of power by our withdrawal of all aid after July 1, 1946, from the recognized government of China which we had consistently supported since the beginning of the "Incident" in 1931. Chiang was swept out of power because he had weapons with no ammunition; trucks with no gasoline; rifles with no bullets. And the reason he had no ammunition, no gasoline, no bullets was because General Marshall, fortified by the Acheson apparatus in the State Department, and not even duped by it, because he wanted to sacrifice China in favor of Europe, deliberately withheld these things from Chiang.

We had our opportunity in 1945-46 to beat Stalin to China. June 25, 1950, was a shock to the Acheson apparatus, who had to run for cover and about face. It was also a shock for Uncle Joe who had been given to understand that we had written off Korea. Having failed through Malik to get the United Nations to go back to the status quo, the next best thing, thinks Uncle Joe, is to withdraw gradually to the 38th Degree Parallel again and try French Indo-China or some other place next.

READER.
Washington.

I think it is a great mistake of many American people to be as defeatist about China as "Arlington Resident." It is unfair to compare Korea with China. China's is a civil war; Korea's an international war. The Oriental people have more zest to resist Western forces than to fight their own brothers.

Many experts in the State Department thought it might cost them 10 billion dollars to stop communism in China, but I can tell the American people that if the United States committed their own army to fight such a battle it would cost 100 billion dollars without result.

Chiang Kai-shek at one time had almost annihilated all the Chinese Communists and would have if there had been no Sian kidnaping accident. The mistake the United States has committed is her failure to support any new element in Asia.

U. S. Needs Friends in Asia

By Marquis Childs

Colonial Heritage

TO MAKE up at least in part for the deficiencies in America's defenses, guns, ships, tanks and planes are being ordered and soon will be made in greater numbers than ever before in peacetime. This force in being, if there is time to prepare it, is essential.

But there is another force at least equally important and it is not to be found on any munitions shopping list. This is the friendship and goodwill of people everywhere, people in Europe and Asia.

As the grim struggle with communism continues, it is abundantly clear that the United States cannot win without friends. Atomic bombers might destroy most of the rest of the world. But that would not be victory.

The North Atlantic Pact is a useful first step. But even the United States and Western Europe together are not sufficient. If we lose the friendship of the great mass of the Asian peoples, there will be little hope for the West. This gets down to a complicated, difficult, troubled relationship which I want to consider in this and several following columns.

It is East vs. West, color vs. white, high technology vs. primitive agriculture, colonialism vs. nationalism. Above all, it is in the deep-seated memory of two centuries of exploitation of East by West. This exploitation was more often than not cruel, arrogant, ruthless and greedy. The memory of it in a thousand thousand ways is seared deeply into the consciousness of Asia's millions. The heritage of suspicion is has left behind may well be the greatest single obstacle to practical understanding and workable partnership between the two halves of the globe.

FORTUNATELY, the record of the United States is considerably better than that of most European nations on this score. In 1900 at the time of the Boxer Rebellion in China, instead of grabbing Chinese territory as the other powers did, America devoted its share of the reparations to financing Chinese students in this country.

As a result of the war with Spain, the Philippines became an American possession. It was the initial thrust of American power in the far Pacific.

Almost from the first, after the bitter fighting with Aguinaldo's guerillas was ended, the American objective was made clear. That objective was to govern in the interests of the Philippine people and, ultimately, to give them their independence. When President McKinley sent William Howard Taft to the Philippines at the head of a commission to establish a government in 1900, he said:

"The commission should bear in mind that the government which they are establishing is designed not for our satisfaction or for the expression of our theoretical views, but for the happiness, peace and prosperity of the people of the Philippine Islands."

One of Taft's solid achievements, both as Philippine Commissioner and later as President, was to help the little brown brother toward the goal of independence. He personally negotiated with the Pope purchase of some 400,000 acres of friar land in the Philippines. Much of this land, including some of the richest holdings in the islands, was sold to Philippine farmers.

EFFORTS were made to bring Filipinos into the government. By 1927 there were 470 Americans in the government service and 18,246 natives.

In the aftermath of the devastation of World War II and with the misuse of funds ladled out by Washington too freely, the Philippines today have a sorry look. The Huks, often Communist-led, are a serious threat to peace and stability.

Nevertheless, the American example has had a wide influence in Asia. It was convincing proof that a Western nation did want an Oriental people to progress toward statehood.

American missionaries in every Asian country helped to spread good will and, in many instances, provided medical help and knowledge. These missionaries sent home intimate reports of the struggle of Asian peoples for freedom and decency. Millions of American children—how well I remember it from my own childhood—filled mite boxes with pennies for foreign missions, most of them in Asia.

Some of this was supercilious and condescending, some of it blindly fanatical, some of it downright silly. Much of it was not merely well-intentioned but profoundly rewarding in terms of friendship and understanding. This is another era, a harsher and more cynical era. How much of the good will out of the past survives today?

Jan Smuts

Thank you very much for your splendid editorial on Jan Smuts. This American, resident abroad, has met Smuts in South Africa and at the U. N., and has lectured on Smuts. The world has lost a great champion of human freedom. Let us hope that we do not fail to remember and take heed of his warnings: that a stalemate in international affairs, in an atomic era, is a grave threat to mankind, and that the veto is the rock upon which the U. N. might destroy itself. The impact of Smuts on students and mankind everywhere was so great and inspiring that he will, no doubt, live forever.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Deterrent Power

IT IS SAID by those who usually have such things straight from the horse's mouth that the British military experts have advised the British government that a European force—the kind of force Mr. Acheson has been talking about—could not be set up within five years. This is a longer time than most of our experts think necessary, provided of course the business is taken in hand promptly and with a sense of urgency. But at best the European force, which might be adequate to deal with the Russian divisions now inside Europe, cannot exist for several years.

Lippmann

What is it, then, that defends this undefeated continent now, and will defend it until it has the force to defend itself? What is it that keeps the Red Army from marching across Europe to the Atlantic, and across the Middle East to the Persian Gulf and the Mediterranean?

IN GENERAL terms the answer, of course, is obvious. It is the deterrent power of the United States which has thus far contained the military power of the U. S. S. R., within the limits agreed to at Yalta. All over the world there are places which are indefensible, and yet they have not been taken,—for example west Berlin, Vienna, Iran. They have been protected only by the deterrent power of this country.

Moreover, both of the great undertakings in which we are now engaged would be quite impossible but for this deterrent power. The amphibious operation in Korea could not even have been contemplated at this time except on the hypothesis that the Soviet air force is deterred from intervening. The whole project of European rearmament assumes that the Russians can be deterred from seizing the new arms and from breaking up the new formations before the European force is ready to fight.

NOW, since so much, indeed virtually everything we are doing, is dependent on this deterrent power, the more we understand it the more likely we are not to squander it but to preserve it.

There are two theories, now current, which are exerting great influence on responsible men. One is that the U. S. S. R. will no longer be deterred from moving against Europe when it has a stockpile of atomic bombs. In several variations this is the theory held by the advocates of a European army. In essence they hold that now the American atomic bomb neutralizes the Red Army. They argue that when there is a Russian atomic stockpile, there must be a European army to neutralize the Russian army.

The other theory is that the U. S. S. R. will at some time after 1952-53 have atomic bombs and the means of delivering them to knock out the United States by a gigantic Pearl Harbor. All the talk about preventive war stems from this theory.

THERE IS A third theory, which has not had much attention though it is in fact the view of some men who have gone pretty deeply into this whole business. This theory holds that the key to the Soviet strategy is the ability of the air defenses of the Soviet Union to withstand American bombing. Another way of putting this is to say that the key to Soviet strategy is the power of Soviet air defenses to neutralize our deterrent power.

I believe that this is most probably the correct theory. It rests on the simple notion that the Soviet Union will be deterred from overt aggression (that is to say aggression by Soviet forces) as long as the defenses of Russia are not able to hold off the counterattack. It rests on the idea that the men in the Kremlin do not regard Russia as expendable in the cause of communism and that the security of Russia and of the regime are their first consideration.

If this theory is correct, then the highest priority must continue to be given to keeping the development of our strategic striking power superior to the development of Soviet defenses.

Upon that superiority depends the defense of all the countries that have no armies and that can never have armies capable of giving battle to the Red Army. Upon that superiority depends the defense of the United States, which can never be sealed up against all conceivable forms of attack but which is nevertheless defended as long as it has the power to strike back.

THE DETERRENT power of the United States is a mighty thing: it has contained the mightiest army on earth from overrunning the defenseless and prostrate Eurasian continent. The prevention of a total and universal war depends on keeping this deterrent power and on perfecting it. The Soviets know what they are doing when they direct the main force of their world propaganda, as shown by the Stockholm petition, against the deterrent power of the United States.

ON THE BASIS of this theory of deterrent power, what the Foreign Ministers at the Waldorf did about German security should be adequate to deal with the dangers now visible. The Ministers gave the west Germans a guarantee, they have agreed to reinforce their own troops, and they have authorized the Bonn government and the provincial authorities to raise a mobile guard of 30,000 men.

The guarantee itself should prevent an invasion in force by the east German military organizations. The mobile guard, added to the existing police, and backed by the reinforced occupation troops, should be able to cope with the subversive and insurrectionary campaign which seems to be coming.

In all this our major premise, we must not allow ourselves to forget, is that the Russians will not themselves commit their own overwhelming forces—being deterred from doing that by American power.

THIS, it would appear, is the mechanism of the balance of power on which rest, not the peace we should like to have, but the avoidance of that total war which would mean the end of our epoch and almost certainly of our civilization.

Taft Attacks Harriman Talk; Dubs Him Friendly to Stalin

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 20 (AP). United States Senator Robert A. Taft told the Republican State convention tonight that W. Averell Harriman, adviser to President Truman on foreign affairs, was "one of those who was most sympathetic to Soviet Russia and Joe Stalin."

Taft's remark was in answer to Harriman's criticism of him yesterday before the American Federation of Labor convention in Houston. Harriman called for Taft's defeat at the November election.

"In the morning papers is evidence of the desperate fears of our opposition," Taft said. "Evidently they are concerned that a victory in Ohio means the destruction of their power in the Nation and the beginning of the end of New Deal rule.

"Good Old Joe"

"From all over the Nation, they are summoning their most violent demagogues to bolster up their failing situation in this State."

"To Harriman, as to President Truman, Joe Stalin was 'good old Joe'" Taft declared. "Now he wants to evade the obvious result of the disastrous foreign policy of the Administration leading to the Korean war by personal attacks upon my record."

The Senator's speech highlighted the convention after its adoption of a four-paragraph platform—the shortest on record—declaring that the unsettled condition of the times made it impossible to chart a course, but promising progressive and effective administration of all laws for the good of all the people.

While Taft was addressing the convention, his voice also was going out over Ohio radio stations in another series of transcribed radio talks.

In tonight's radio talk he said that although President Truman had control of Congress for the last two years, he failed "to get across the basic points of his Labor-Socialist policy.

Taft said most of the worthwhile accomplishments of the 81st Congress, in which Democrats have the majority, were continuations of the policy of the Republican 80th Congress. Among them he listed the economic aid to Europe program and the Atlantic pact.

Bricker Warns of Reds

Keynoting the convention, Sen. John W. Bricker of Ohio warned against the infiltration of communism in labor unions, schools and government.

Bricker also asserted that President Truman "was willing to sacrifice Louis Johnson as Secretary of Defense that Dean Acheson might be able to hold on a little longer to carry out the program which has already led us to war, bloodshed and disaster."

He expressed confidence that this country will be able to defend itself against the aggression of communism.

"But I likewise know," he added, "that unless we have help from some of the other nations that are receiving billions and billions of dollars from the American treasury that we cannot fight on the four corners of the globe and hope to win."

Rising Prices 'Concern, Worry' President, Bowles Declares

By The Associated Press

Gov. Chester Bowles of Connecticut, former price administrator, described President Truman yesterday as "concerned and very worried" about rising prices.

He said the President is laying the groundwork to give housewives "the kind of protection they are entitled to."

After calling on Mr. Truman, Bowles told reporters that he himself thinks selective price controls should be imposed now on some basic commodities, like building materials, steel and other basic metals, and major grains.

Bowles was particularly emphatic about meat prices, telling reporters:

"The Chicago meat packers are without conscience. If anybody wants to quote me on that, I'd be happy to have them.

"I've had long experience with them and they are completely without conscience."

Bowles said that as he understands it, the president now is generally pulling together the organization and personnel for whatever is needed on prices. He wouldn't say that the President is planning to use the standby authority Congress granted him to clamp on controls generally.

"But if this thing continues," Bowles said, "I think they should go on. And I know the President's heart is in the right place.

"We've got to get those prices back to a stable point. With all this tremendous spending that's starting to hit, it's bound to push prices up fast and there will be the old scramble again between prices and wages.

"The worst thing that could happen to the consumer would be the election of another Eightieth Congress."

During that Republican Congress, he said, Mr. Truman repeatedly tried to put through an anti-inflation program.

While most corporations have been restrained, he said, there have been enough exceptions to create a real problem.

Woolens Boosted 45-60 Cents a Yard

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—American Woolen Co., the world's largest manufacturer of woolen and worsted fabrics, today boosted prices 45 cents to 60 cents a yard, the fifth increase since June 1.

The 45-cent increase was on men's and women's wear worsted and the 60-cent rise was on a few Puritan fancy worsteds.

They apply to any remaining production for delivery in the first quarter of next year.

Trade circles were of the opinion the company had little production left to offer for the first quarter, however, and that many of its customers already had purchased early 1951 needs at the lower prices.

Yale Acquires Boswell Papers

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 20 (U.P.).—The purchase of several thousand recently discovered manuscripts by the famous eighteenth-century biographer, James Boswell, was announced today by Yale University.

University Librarian James T. Babb said the papers are of the "first importance." They will round out the collection of Boswell manuscripts acquired by Yale in 1949 and considered at that time the greatest known collection of English literary manuscripts of the eighteenth century.

The new set was discovered some months ago in a storage room at Malahide Castle near Dublin, Ireland. They were found by the present Lord Talbot de Malahide, who succeeded to the title in 1948 upon the death of Boswell's great-great grandson.

As in the case of the prior purchase, Lieut. Col. Ralph H. Isham of New York obtained them for Yale and they were paid for by the Old Dominion Foundation.

Among the new papers are parts of the original manuscript of Boswell's famous "Life of Johnson," the biography of Dr. Samuel Johnson.

Fairchild Wins Democrat Nod In Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 20 (AP). Wisconsin Republicans had renominated Senator Alexander Wiley and seven members of the House today but Democrats claimed a gain in vote percentages.

The 66-year-old Wiley, seeking a third term, walloped Edward Finan, a virtually unknown boilermaker and farmer of rural Bristol, by more than 200,000 votes.

Wiley's Democratic opponent in the November election will be Thomas E. Fairchild, 37, Wisconsin attorney general, who won out in a four-cornered race. Trailing Fairchild in the following order were former Mayor Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee; William E. Sanderson, who was backed by the American Federation of Labor; and former Representative La Vern R. Dilweg, a former professional football star.

Also renominated by Republicans were Representatives Gardner Withrow, Lawrence Smith, Glenn Davis, Reid F. Murray, John W. Byrnes, Merlin Hull and Alvin E. O'Konski. The seventh Wisconsin Republican in the House, Frank B. Keefe, did not seek reelection.

Two Democratic Congressmen representing the Milwaukee districts, Clement F. Zablocki and Andrew Biemiller, were renominated, too, and will be opposed in November by former Republican Congressmen John Brophy and Charles Kersten, respectively.

Walter J. Kohler, jr., wealthy 46-year-old industrialist and son of the late former Governor, was the Republicans' nominee for the governorship. The Democrats nominated Carl W. Thompson, 36, a Stoughton attorney, who was the party's candidate two years ago.

Another Coolidge Leads GOP in Massachusetts

BOSTON, Sept. 20 (AP).—Massachusetts Republicans today pinned their hopes on another Coolidge—just as voluble as his cousin "Cal" was silent—in the fall election.

Arthur W. Coolidge, 69, a fourth cousin of the late President, was chosen by the GOP to fight Democratic Gov. Paul A. Dever, 47, a World War II veteran seeking a second term.

Coolidge, who describes himself as an "Eisenhower-type Republican liberal," launched his campaign right away by assailing the Democrats as a "cocksure administration."

Dever, unopposed in the primary, struck back by denouncing Coolidge as a "standpat reactionary of the political philosophy of a William McKinley and a Warren Harding."

The Democrats put up the same ticket that carried them to the party's most sweeping victory in Bay State history two years ago.

The Republican slate includes some veteran campaigners—one who was State Treasurer during Calvin Coolidge's regime as governor in 1919 who is attempting a political comeback.

The one GOP newcomer for the November race will be Frederick Ayer, jr., 35, a nephew of the late Gen. George S. Patton, who was nominated for Attorney General.

Coolidge rolled up 128,978 votes as he won easily—snowing under five opponents, including two retired ranking military officers who stressed this country's unpreparedness for the Korean crisis in pressing their campaigns.

One of the military men—Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, ousted Chief of Naval Operations—made a surprisingly strong showing in his political debut but still trailed Coolidge by 61,108 votes as runner up in the gubernatorial race.

Massachusetts' 14 Congressmen—eight Republicans and six Democrats—had a comparatively easy time in winning renomination. Among them were party leaders in the national House of Representatives—John W. McCormack (D.) and Joseph W. Martin (R.).

Barkley to Make 30 Speeches In 15 States Starting Oct. 5

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Vice President Alben W. Barkley will make a coast-to-coast barnstorming tour beginning October 5 to help Democratic candidates for the Senate and House, it was announced yesterday.

Barkley, who is nearly 73, will travel in a chartered plane as he did in his whirlwind campaign in 1948, and will make approximately 20 speeches in 15 States. He will be assigned aides by the Democratic National Committee, which is making arrangements for the tour.

Democratic National Chairman William M. Boyle, jr., talking to reporters about Barkley's tour at the White House, said that, as matters stand now, "the indications are that the President will not make a political tour." Therefore, he said, Barkley would be the No. 1 Democrat on the road.

Boyle said it would not be correct to say that the Vice President was making the tour "in lieu" of one by Mr. Truman. He pointed out that there was a great demand for Barkley in his own right.

'Crisis Facing Nation'

"We have a crisis facing the Nation," Boyle said, "but under the Constitution we still must have an election in November. It is important that the issues be brought before the people so that they can vote intelligently."

Boyle said that it was likely that the Administration would send a number of orators out into the field, including House Speaker Sam Rayburn. He said the national committee had received a number of requests for speeches by the Texan.

Boyle was asked what he thought about Republican criticism of W. Averell Harriman after he had accused Senator Taft (R., Ohio), of furthering the Kremlin's aims by his votes.

The chairman pointed out that Senator Taft and Senator Wherry (R., Neb.), had been chosen as GOP leaders by their Senate colleagues. He said it was only natural that their records be called to the attention of the voters.

"If the records hurt," he said, "then they will just have to hurt."

Boyle and Senator Anderson D., N. M.), chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, both talked to President Truman about Vice President Barkley's forthcoming tour. Boyle later made public Barkley's itinerary as follows:

Wisconsin, October 5; Iowa, October 6; Missouri, October 7; California, October 9-10; Washington, October 11-12; Idaho, October 13; Utah, October 14; Colorado, October 17; Indiana, October 18; New York, October 19; Connecticut, October 20; Pennsylvania, October 24-25; Ohio, October 26-27; New York, October 28; Kentucky, October 30-31.

Illinois, November 1-2-3; Indiana, November 4, and Kentucky, November 6.

Bosch Deal Nets U. S. $5 Million, Swedes $2.6 Million

The Government agreed to pay three Swedish firms $2,600,000 yesterday, ending a three-year court battle for possession of an eight-million-dollar interest in the American Bosch Co., Springfield, Mass.

The settlement was arranged by Special Master Edmund L. Jones, Washington lawyer.

Under the terms of settlement, $420,000 must be paid to the law firms, Douglas, Obear and Campbell, and Gardner, Morrison and Rogers, both of Washington, and Sullivan and Cromwell, of New York.

The Government claimed that a German company owned 535,000 shares of the Massachusetts corporation, before the war, but transferred them to the Swedish firms with an option to repurchase two years after the Armistice.

The shares were seized in New York City by the Alien Property Custodian, who has since sold them for $7,760,000. The $5,160,000 Government profit is be transferred to the United States War Claims Commission.

Modernized Carrier To Join Navy Monday

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (NYHT). The Navy's postwar aircraft carrier Oriskany, extensively modified for modern conditions of sea warfare, will be commissioned for service afloat in ceremonies next Monday at the New York Naval Shipyard, Brooklyn.

The Oriskany, a fleet aircraft carrier of the Essex class, second largest class of the Navy's flattops, was launched at the Brooklyn yard October 13, 1945, but never joined the postwar fleet. For more than a year she has been undergoing extensive modifications.

According to "Jane's Fighting Ships," 1949-50 edition of the authoritative British naval manual, the Oriskany when originally designed was to have a displacement of 27,100 tons or more, and a complement of 2900 officers and men.

With an over-all length of 888 feet, her class is designed to carry 82 aircraft, and to mount 12 5-inch guns, from 44 to 72 40-millimeter antiaircraft guns, and 52 20-millimeter quadruple-mount antiaircraft weapons.

"Construction of Oriskany," according to "Jane's" which lists her as CV-34, "has been delayed with a view to recasting of design. As completed, she will have been modified to enable her to operate bigger aircraft, probably of jet-propelled type. She will have larger lifts, more powerful catapults, a strong flight deck, and increased stowage for petrol (gasoline) as compared with other ships of the class."

In recent weeks, it was learned, from 1500 to 2000 men have been working feverishly on the Oriskany to complete her modernization. They were still laboring yesterday, under orders to clean up as rapidly as a particular job is completed, to help make the Oriskany shipshape for the commissioning.

It is reported the Navy expects to have at least 10 modernized carriers added to its fleets before the end of the year. The Navy's three large fleet carriers, which alone exceed the Essex class in size, are the Franklin D. Roosevelt, Midway and Coral Sea. Displacing 45,000 tons, they are nearly 1000 feet long.

Ex-Russian Girl Wants To 'Sell' U. S.

The Washington Post
MRS. ELLIOTT SHIRK
. . . Asks to broadcast to Reds

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

A Russian girl who met and married an American in Moscow appealed yesterday for a chance to sell this country to her former compatriots over the Voice of America.

Mrs. Elliott Shirk, nee Kyra Petrovskaya, charged that the "Voice" programs she heard in Russia are "ridiculous and dull."

"Instead of telling the Russians how we cut timber," she said, "they ought to let me tell them how I took my vacuum cleaner and ran over the rug, put my dishes in the sink for the automatic dishwasher to do—and then went down and got my hair fixed."

She told an Optimist Club luncheon Tuesday of an unpretty life in Russia, brightened only a bit by the fact she was in the theater, and of her unsuccessful efforts to convince Voice of America it could put her to good use.

Interviewed afterwards, Kyra disclosed that she had gone to the Voice of America after her arrival in this country as the bride of Elliott Shirk, who was American Red Cross director in Moscow when they wed in 1946 and is now director of resettlement for the Displaced Persons Commission here. They live at 1445 Ogden st. nw.

The "Voice," she said, told her it could not use her since she has not gained citizenship.

Although she was not told so, she said, she feels that there was an attitude of suspicion toward her because of her having recently lived in Russia.

This suspicion is ridiculous, she said, towards one whose own father was purged by the Bolsheviks.

And about the contents of the "Voice" programs when she last heard them: Dull as dishwater, she claimed—talk about how Americans cut timber, and all that.

What she would like to do is a "woman's hour" which would explain to the women of Russia the glories of life with vacuum cleaners, automatic dishwashers, hairdressers, deep-freezes and the like.

"This is a wonderful country," she said. "Nobody knows it better than I and they should let me tell it . . ."

Waitress Given Child in 'Proxy' Parent Case

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 20 (U.P.). "Little Miss X," a blue-eyed 11-month-old baby, was handed over to a tearful waitress who said she was the child's natural mother.

District Judge Wilmer B. Hunt ruled that the baby belonged to Mrs. Farrie Lee Bell. He said there was no evidence to support the claim of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hartman that the child was theirs.

The Hartmans had told a strange story to back up their claim. They said Hartman was the father of the baby, and that the mother was an unmarried woman—Mrs. Hartman's best friend, who agreed to bear a baby by Hartman. Mrs. Hartman, herself, could have no children, they said.

But at the hearing, the mystery woman didn't show up, the Hartmans did not testify, and they called no witnesses to support their claim on the baby.

Mrs. Bell said the baby, Caroline Sue was born last October 12 at Jefferson Davis Hospital in Houston. Four or five families before the Hartmans kept the baby, she said, "because I was separated from my husband and I couldn't find work."

Mary Ellen Durgin, a nurse at the hospital, testified she took care of the child and registered the birth.

REACTIVATED—The 45,000-ton battleship New Jersey, sister ship of the "Mighty Mo," already in action off Korea, will be de-mothballed for return to the fleet. Withdrawn from the active fleet in December, 1947, the New Jersey is shown alongside a pier at the Navy Yard Annex, Bayonne, N. J., before start of de-mothballing operation. Two more 45,000-ton battlewagons, the Wisconsin and the Iowa, remain in storage

Europe Network Of Superhighways Given Approval

GENEVA, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—An international conference has agreed to undertake as soon as possible the construction of a 5-billion-dollar European network of super highways designed ultimately to cover about 30,000 miles from Scotland to Turkey.

The proposed route includes eastern Germany and Poland, although neither was present at the conference, sponsored by the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe. A spokesman for the ECE said he did not know whether eastern European governments could sign the highway convention.

Britain, France, and Luxembourg have signed and Belgium and Holland are expected to do so this week. The spokesman predicted that signatures from Italy, Scandinavia, and other western European countries will "snowball."

The network provides for three classes of highways, depending on density of traffic. They are designed to hold up to three lines of cars reaching a speed as high as 72 miles an hour. The network would cover every European country except Spain and Ireland.

Tax Increase Call Is Urged On Christians

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—The executive committee of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America has asked Christians to be willing to "call for increased taxation to prevent ruinous inflation."

It was the first time that the policy-making committee of the organization representing about 28 million members of Protestant and Orthodox faiths has attempted to evaluate a Christian approach to an inflationary situation.

The statement approved by the committee said the present inflationary trend has resulted from "crude selfishness"—not from shortage of consumer goods.

It added that such behavior is "sinful, an injustice to one's neighbors and a hostile act to one's country."

Purge in Hungary Is Hinted

VIENNA, Austria, Sept. 20 (AP). Reports reaching Vienna from Hungary indicate the Communist Hungarian government may have purged its own president.

The president is Sandor Ronai, a Social Democrat who operated with the Communists and was made head of the presidium of the People's Republic late this summer.

Western sources said the speculative reports were based on Ronai's failure to sign any governmental decrees since the beginning of September.

Olney Offers Art If Not Much Play

By Richard L. Coe

OLNEY'S FINALE, "The Second Man," represents the first theatrical production I've ever seen in which a stage center painting runs away with the performance.

Since this is Utrillo's "Montmartre with Eiffel Tower," an original loaned by Producer Jean Dalrymple to her star, Franchot Tone, and since my one-on-the-aisle was situated so that both the lighting and angle were superb for enjoying Utrillo's delicate work, this may partly account for the fact that I preferred the painting to the performance.

Still, I suspect there were other reasons why the Olney's seasonal finale reminded me that summer, alas, is about over and that however well disposed I am toward Olney's pleasures I had expected more from S. N. Behrman's comedy, which since 1927 has gotten a fine critical reputation. I'd never seen it and I still haven't.

The first reason is probably the romantic but misguided notion of Star Tone that an eye-filling blonde whose stage experience is patently minimal is able to step into one of but four roles and hold up her end of the play. While Barbara Peyton, rumored to be the next Mrs. Tone and very obviously able to hold up herself, is surely an eyeful, she is as yet not an actress and comes across the footlights as a rather overdone Lorelei Lee. The theater world is indeed a confusing place, in which a presumably capable actress, Therese Hunter, who's been in the part all summer, can be chucked out at Cupid's wink.

"THE SECOND MAN." Richard Skinner and Evelyn Freyman present the comedy by S. N. Behrman staged and supervised by Jean Dalrymple. Setting by S. Syrjala. At the Olney Theater through Sunday night.

THE CAST

Kendall Frayne.....Margaret Lindsay
Clark Storey.....Franchot Tone
Austin Lowe.....Walter Brooke
Monica Grey.....Barbara Peyton

The result on the other three performances was evident in weighty pacing, halting cues and a frantic resort to varied schools of acting. Miss Peyton's reactions were expressed generally with up and down eyebrow motion. Margaret Lindsay seemed of opinion that the windmill school was best for her, Walter Brooke resorted to the stiff-jaw technique and Tone's sophistication was watered to the patient schoolmaster approach.

Anyway, the play, which is a comedy with serious undertones, became a sort of "Dear Ruth" job on a High Life level. A second-rate author, fully aware both of his limitations and his love of creature comforts, is loved by a dazzled young lass who thinks they can struggle along on no money at all. The writer's real lady love is a wealthy widow, quite aware that her greatest charm is the pleasant life she can give him. The young woman's fiance is a rich, admirable if dull young man. She finally settles on this worthy and the writer recaptures his worldly widow.

Rewriting the Author

Now the point of it all is Behrman's theme that we judge men by their heroism or their intelligence, not befuddling oneself that in making one choice one pretends to make another. He is distinctly for intelligence. "Follow the emotions," Joseph Wood Krutch has written of Behrman, "and you may reach ecstacy; but if you cannot do that, then listen to the dictates of common sense and there is very good chance that you will be comfortable, even, God willing, witty besides."

In the playing, this aspect of the story is shunted carelessly aside for immediate yucks.

Furthermore, if the cast will look at the second act ending as Behrman wrote it, it will speedily send for an occulist. Tossing in references to "The Cocktail Party" and flying the Atlantic to suggest that the script is hot from the typewriter is all very well, but to change a pivotal reaction (what the widow thinks of the girl's announced, false pregnancy) is turning a respected play into something it is not.

The Syrjala setting, the John Greer furnishings and that Utrillo painting are enviable, but the plight of the rewritten playwright is overwhelming.

TRYOUTS will be held tonight at 8:15 by the Falls Church Community Theater in the Teen Canteen for "Edward, My Son," which will be the group's first offering early in November . . . Anyone interested in joining the cast will be welcomed at the canteen . . . Angelo Eagon will direct.

THE AMERICAN THEATER wing will hold more tryouts tonight for entertainers of all types . . . 8 o'clock's the time, 2020 Massachusetts ave. the place.

"SPOOKS SHOW" is billed for tonight only at the Beltsville Drive-In: Bela Lugosi in "Night Monster" and Otto Kruger in "Dracula's Daughter."

ROUGH STUFF: Dan Duryea and Howard da Silva are these tough guys of "The Underworld Story" and they're not shadow-boxing. The new film arrived yesterday at Keith's

Crime Is at Keith's

Duryea Beat Up for a Change In Tortured Story of Crime

KEITH'S newcomer is "The Underworld Story," one of those vague titles that fits only a theater marquee. It's concerned with a reporter who gets chucked from a metropolitan daily and, to get a job, has to borrow $5000 from a gangster to buy into editorship of a country weekly.

With such a set-up, I'm afraid you'll have to look elsewhere for a cohesive report on what goes on in this yarn by Craig Riche, which Cyril Endfield and Henry Blankfort have fitted up for the screen. Whenever the movies get around to picturing how venal the press is, how publishers' families get mixed up with murder and mobs, and how easy it is to write a news story, all my resources are devoted to self-control.

The reporter, played by Dan Duryea, is a heel and possibly deserved to get fired in the first place, but I don't believe he'd have been blackballed. By the time I talked myself into accepting this basic premise, I found that the daughter-in-law of a prominent publisher had been murdered by her husband and that he had pushed the blame off on a servant.

The servant so obviously couldn't have done the murder that I next spent some time wondering how seriously this charge could be taken. By then the gangster who'd loaned Dan the $5000 was back in the picture and all blazes seemed to be breaking loose, with Dan getting beat up for a change.

There's also something to do with why the young man, Gar Moore, murdered his wife: it was because his wife was in love with his father and the father was in love with her because she'd be bright enough to run the newspaper empire and the son would be too dumb.

That's the way "The Underworld Story" is every minute. R. L. C.

"THE UNDERWORLD STORY." United Artists release produced for Jack Dietz by Hal E. Chester. Screen play by Henry Blankfort from a Craig Rice story adapted by Cyril Endfield. Directed by Enfield. Photographed by Stanley Cortez. Music by David Rose. At Keith's.

Acheson Asks U. N. to Raise Army

policies of the Soviet Government."

Acheson said Russia's conduct has not made war inevitable "but it has lengthened the shadow of war."

In brief, here is the American problem for this Assembly as laid down by Acheson

1. A provision for calling an emergency session of the General Assembly upon 24 hours notice if the Security Council is prevented—by use of the veto—from acting upon a breach of the peace or an act of aggression.

2. A security, or peace patrol, to investigate reports from any area in which international conflict threatens, upon the invitation or with the consent of the state visited.

3. A United Nations unit from national armed forces designated by each country. This unit would be specially trained and equipped and continuously maintained for prompt service on behalf of the U. N. It would serve as a stopgap until the force envisioned under the U. N. Charter is ready.

Study of Collective Action

4. A committee to study and report on means which the U. N. might use through collective action to carry out the Charter's purposes and principles.

5. Peaceful settlement by the U. N. of the problem of Formosa with all interested parties having a full opportunity to exchange views and all parties agreeing not to use force while the solution is sought.

6. A recommendation to the Economic and Social Council to set up a United Nations recovery force to rehabilitate and rebuild devastated areas. He suggested the U. N. could start with Korea.

Acheson is reported to have decided to see this Assembly through. This is taken to mean that he believes the United States must put up its full fighting force against the Soviet Union team headed by Vishinsky and that he plans to devote most of his attention this fall to the Assembly, spending a good deal of his time here.

Acheson loked rested after his week's grind of talks with the British and French Foreign Ministers and with the other members of the North Atlantic Treaty Council.

The secretary reaffirmed American support for the international control of atomic energy, which would effectively prohibit atomic weapons. He also reaffirmed American support for the efforts of the U. N. To work out the basis for effective regulation and reduction of conventional armaments.

Acheson accused the Russians of deliberately raising barriers to peace but he held out hope that some day the Russians would see reason and cooperate for peace.

Delegates Gasp at Vishinsky

There were gasps from some delegates and advisers when Vishinsky took the rostrum after Acheson. It was unprecedented in the Assembly for the American and Russian delegates to make their major speeches of the opening debate at the same session. Usually they like to speak separately in an effort to give their declarations individual impact. Russian observers said Vishinsky did not make new proposals because the Soviet Union feels that U. N. must first carry out fundamental proposals already made.

Vishinsky accused Acheson of "making rude attacks" on the Soviet Union and of trying to "drag us (the Assembly) on paths which have nothing to do with the Assembly."

The Soviet Foreign Minister cited the Stockholm peace appeal, signed by millions of persons, as a sign the world demands peace now.

Veteran U. N. Observers who have watched Vishinsky at previous Assemblies said today's speech was the mildest effort they had ever heard the Russian delegate make in the general debate.

Exchange of Views Helpful

Vishinsky began with the statement that an exchange of views was useful and facilitated solutions.

He said the U. N. is faced now with the task of preventing a new war. He said the Soviet Union had always attached and was attaching now the greatest importance to the United Nations. He quoted a statement by Prime Minister Stalin in 1946 to that effect and said the Soviet policy at this session would be guided by that principle. In that statement, Stalin said the strength of the U. N. is the equal rights of all nations.

"The Soviet Union considers that if there is a true desire for cooperation the United Nations organization can and must carry out and fulfill its duties before mankind which has banded together against a threat of a new war," Vishinsky said.

He attacked the United States for its policy toward China and said the "Kuomintang clique" in the Assembly does not represent the Chinese people.

He charged the United States and others in the Security Council with casting a "smokescreen" around the armed intervention which he said took place before the Council adopted its June 27 resolution calling for all measures to oppose the North Koreans. Vishinsky said the Assembly would be failing in its duties if it did not adopt measures to bring about a peaceful settlement of the Korean issue.

Diplomats Chat At U. N. Session

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

2 Asian Princes Head Committees Of United Nations

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—The United Nations General Assembly today elected two Asian princes as chairmen of important committees.

They were Prince Wan Waithayakon of Thailand, chairman of the trusteeship committee which has charge of the U. N. program of development in backward areas, and The Jam Saheb, Maharajah of Nawanaga, of India. The Jam Saheb was elected president of the financial committee—watchdog of U. N. funds.

Acheson Stresses Peace Jobs

against future aggression, using the Assembly if the Security Council should be stalled.

What sounded new to many from the smaller nations was his emphasis on the constructive works of peace and welfare, in Korea and elsewhere. Again, he had said most of these things before, but no American Secretary of State had ever accented them so strongly.

Behind the Acheson speech were reports from all over the world of the disturbing inroads of Communist propaganda, especially in Asia.

North Korean wails about the alleged brutality of American bombing had been echoed in India; Soviet and Chinese Communist promises of land reform had been taken seriously in many other poverty-stricken countries; and the Communist picture of American as a money-mad, war-mad country had begun to do damage, even in the friendly countries of western Europe.

Only last week, at his meetings with the other North Atlantic Foreign Ministers, Acheson had discovered that a few of them still lacked his own sense of urgency about building up a common defense. The universal war-weariness was getting in the way of organizing to prevent war.

Something had to be done to stop this defeatism and to produce a truer understanding of American policy. One who strongly urged such a course on the Secretary was Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., a member of this Assembly delegation. At one of the first delegation meetings, Lodge insisted that the Secretary's opening speech here had to accent peace and give hope of a better future.

The speech, therefore, not only was of peace and betterment (any U. N. orator can do that without a manuscript), but it also suggested concerted efforts "to combat disease, to build hospitals, schools and factories, to train teachers and public administrators, to make the land fertile."

This was the note that had made the Point Four program such a propaganda asset for the United States abroad, and this was the note the Secretary struck today.

He talked at length, and for the first time, about land reform, thus bowing to the success of Soviet propaganda on this subject. By stressing individual ownership he made non-Soviet land reform more attractive than the Soviet variety. It was good propaganda, and the Voice of America will make the most of it in broadcasts to Asia and Latin America in the next few days.

There is no blueprint as yet of the proposed United Nations recovery force, as far as could be learned tonight, nor any detailed program of relief and reconstruction in Korea. But the Assembly now has its work cut out for it, and those countries that cringed from sending troops to Korea now have a chance to offer doctors, engineers, soil experts and money instead.

Both speeches today, Vishinsky's and Acheson's, were propaganda efforts to sway world opinion. Vishinsky's aim was to sow distrust of the United States, and at the same time to lull American opinion back to sleep with talk of peace. Acheson's played on the distrust of the Soviet Union, but he also showed war-weary peoples a way to move forward in spite of present tensions in the world.

Bonn Praises Big 3 Action, Urges Army

BONN, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—The West German Republic today praised the Big Three decisions to treat Germany as a partner rather than an enemy, but urged the Western Powers to create an international European defense force.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer called a special Cabinet meeting to discuss the changes in Allied policy. He later issued a statement expressing the "hopes" that "the proposed international European defense force can be realized to defend the freedom of Europe," and that "the relationship between the Bonn government and the occupation powers can soon be based on treaties rather than the occupation statute."

The Big Three ministers agreed to revise the occupation statute rather than junk it.

Butler Claims Senate Victory in Maryland

BALTIMORE, Sept. 20 (AP).—The Republican nomination for the U. S. Senate still hung in the balance today—two days after Maryland's primaries—but John Marshall Butler claimed victory and incomplete returns tended to back him up.

If Butler wins, it will be the second contest in which Maryland's unit system of nominating upset the popular vote.

On the incomplete returns—1017 of 1429 polling places reported—D. John Markey, retired National Guard general from Walkersville held a 29,430 to 26,774 margin, over the Baltimore attorney.

These same returns showed Butler with 52-unit votes for certain, plus 18 more he seems sure to get from counties in which he is leading. Butler claimed he will get 33 votes in such counties, but the returns so far are not conclusive enough to say he is in.

Markey has 34 votes for certain and another 10 he can pretty well count on.

It takes 77 votes in the party convention to nominate, and if the figures follow Butler's claim he will have 85.

The answer may come Thursday, certainly on Friday, when election supervisors in the counties unlock the election books and canvass the official figures.

Governor Lane won renomination by virtue of the unit rule, although he trailed George P. Mahoney in the popular vote.

16th Term

Harris Heads Lincoln Civic Group Again

Dr. E. F. Harris last night was elected to his sixteenth term as president of the Lincoln Civic Association as the group held its first fall meeting.

Other persons returned to office were Mrs. Nellie Reese, vice president; Mrs. Alice Walker, secretary; James A. Shaw, treasurer, and Lonnie MacCoy, chaplain. Federation delegates also were renamed.

The Association voted to withdraw from the Federation of Civic Associations unless it reverses the action of its recreation committee last summer. The committee upheld the District Recreation Board's refusal to operate the Snow's court playgrounds. The Lincoln group voted to continue operation of the grounds for another year.

Bradbury Heights

The Bradbury Heights Citizens Association, meeting last night in the Fourteenth Precinct station house, 44th and H sts. se., chose officers for the coming year.

Elected were:

Edward G. Rees, president; Leonard H. Pomeroy, first vice president; Andrew J. Temple, second vice president; Mrs. Edward G. Rees, recording secretary; Mrs. Elton Stottlemeyer, corresponding secretary, and Samuel Teake, treasurer.

Elected delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations were William H. Limerick and Andrew J. Temple. Henry Austin, Earl J. Robinson and Arthur J. Shaffer were named delegates to the Southeast Council.

CIA Leases Space In Alexandria

The Central Intelligence Agency has leased office space in Alexandria for a few employes, but the move is purely routine and has no bearing on the agency's future plans, The Washington Post was informed last night.

The space is in a modern brick structure at 2028 Duke st., Alexandria, formerly occupied for about two years by a General Motors Corp. distributing plant, Alexandria Chamber of Commerce officials said.

Policeman Surprises Looter But He Flees

Surprised by a policeman while he was looting Farran's Grill, 1216 Bladensburg rd. ne., at 2 a. m., a housebreaker smashed the glass in the front door of the grill and made his escape with $5 in change.

Pvt. Thomas J. Kelly of the Ninth Precinct, making a routine check of the back door of the grill, alarmed the thief and put him to rout.

District Names Men to Study Defense Shelters, Demolition

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young yesterday outlined his plans to get civilian defense underway here, at least on paper. It will be an effort dependent almost entirely on volunteers.

The Commissioner is in charge of the job until a full-time director is hired. At a Board of Trade meeting he listed some of the things he plans.

He said he hopes that "before many weeks we will have scores of hundreds of our citizens giving some of their time to their share of the task. I hope that within a few months the number will have grown to thousands."

Young commended the National Security Resources Board's master civil defense plan, released on Monday. He said that "as far as we have gone in Washington, we have been fully in step with NSRB's ideas."

He said that as soon as the $100,000 agreed upon in Congress for Washington's civil defense is available, now a matter of only a few days, he would talk about how he thinks it should be spent.

Volunteers Sought

Meanwhile, Young wants to "fill the gaps" in the District's plans and that's where the volunteers come in.

He noted that plans already have been announced for studies of a warden service by Max Schwartz, who headed that job in World War II.

Young revealed that P. Y. K. Howat, who headed the civil defense public works unit during the war, has agreed to set up an engineering unit to handle "clearing and demolition." The job at the beginning will be to collect data from builders, contractors and others on men and equipment which could be used in an emergency to clear streets of bomb damage.

Alan Mills, an architect, will head a committee to study air raid shelters both for individuals and in buildings. This also will be a study group.

Col. Donald D. Webster, acting commanding officer of the Civil Air Patrol's Capital Wing, "has agreed to have CAP work closely with the civil defense organization" in Washington and the metropolitan area. He will list personnel and equipment and recommend its civil defense missions.

Police Reserve Started

The police reserve corps, another civil defense activity, already is under way. Police Capt. Francis T. Pilkerton, in charge of the program, said yesterday that from 4 to 12 persons in each of the 14 precincts have taken out applications so far. No training will begin until a group of 50 has been accepted in any one precinct, he added.

Young also listed five other fields in which he hopes to have citizen groups working on paper plans in the near future. They are:

Refugee care—how to feed, clothe and house thousands if their homes are destroyed.

Medical care—first aid, local treatment of casualties, evacuation to other cities of excess casualties. Young said the medical groups here now must "go farther" in readying their practice plans.

Emergency transportation—to move the injured, refugees, emergency crews and others after a disaster. Taxi fleets, the Capital Transit Co.'s buses, individual cars all will be used.

United Front Goal Of Coal Operators In Fighting Lewis

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—The Nation's coal operators are out to put an end to John L. Lewis' divide and conquer tactics.

An important bloc of soft coal (bituminous) mine owners meet here tomorrow to complete organization of a new group they hope will meet the president of the United Mine Workers on equal terms.

The newly formed Bituminous Coal Operators Association represents more than 25 percent of the soft coal industry's production. Its founders, led by a group of Pittsburgh coal executives, hope that eventually it will present the UMW with a unified front of all important operators.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

CLEVELAND, Sept. 20.—When Bill Veeck hauled up stakes and shook the diminishing gold dust of Cleveland from his sandals a year ago with plenty in his poke, it was the Veeck genius at work again. He got out from under just ahead of the collapse of the swooning Indians.

Maybe Veeck divined that the Indians were about to tap out as a pennant contender. Anyway, that is what happened.

Povich

The great shortstop-second baseman combination of Lou Boudreau and Joe Gordon petered out and left the new general manager, Hank Greenberg, with a headache to match the vastness of the big Municipal Stadium.

No club ever came apart with the speed of the Indians. Their big man, Al Rosen, stopped hitting home runs. The creaking of Boudreau and Gordon was as audible as the butchers' cries in the stands. Bob Lemon won his twentieth on August 20, and a month later was still trying for his twenty-first. Young Ray Boone, Boudreau's replacement, cracked wide open under the pressure in the East.

The final disgraceful touch came in those four straight lickings by the Browns at a point where the Indians still had a fighting chance to stay in the race. The adjective isn't mine. Greenberg, it was, who said "losing four straight to the Browns is a disgrace."

RIGHT NOW, Boudreau is fighting for his managerial life, and Greenberg's own status as general manager is an object of speculation. Contrary to the long-held assumption, Greenberg is no heavy stockholder in the Indians. In truth, he owns no stock at all in the syndicate that took the team off Veeck's hands a year ago.

When Greenberg moved in with Veeck as vice president three years ago, it was freely stated that Hank had bought his way in and, in fact, was the largest individual stockholder in the club. Nobody in command moved to deny it. There was a bit of flabbergast when Veeck moved out and it was revealed that Greenberg had invested not a sou in the team.

The better evidence is, though, that Greenberg enjoys the full confidence of President Ellis Ryan, and as such he will call the turn on the Indians' manager for 1951. On the bench, Boudreau has not been as inspirational as when he was in the lineup daily. Even in the full flush of Boudreau's pennant victory with the Indians in 1948, Boss Bill Veeck was not smitten with the fellow as a manager.

IN FACT, Veeck tried to get rid of Bourdeau after the 1947 season until Cleveland fans howled in protest. For a pennant-winning owner, Veeck sounded strangely anti-Boudreau early in 1949. "Lou won the pennant with his bat," Veeck said. This week in Cleveland there is the feeling Boudreau is playing out the string here—that the Indians have other managerial plans for next season.

Greenberg's first-year stewardship of the club hasn't been a very happy one. The Indians at this point are 300,000 off their 1,900,000 attendance of last year at home. They took themselves out of the race so quickly there's no chance to get the fans in from here on. Today's doubleheader with the Red Sox, which would have fetched 50,000 if the Indians' pennant hopes were not a dead issue, drew only 12,000.

It's a sign of a soured fan-interest, and its full impact will be felt during the winter. When the 1950 season opened, the Indians had an advance sale of one million tickets. Greenberg can look for no such response this winter. And the amaing Cleveland Browns, their football rival, have moved in on the consciousness of the Cleveland public.

DALE MITCHELL, the outfielder who was once tabbed by Tris Speaker as "This league's next .400 hitter," is barely batting .300 for the Indians, and may go in their building process. Greenberg, who likes power hitters in his own image, is quite out of patience with Mitchell's peck-and-hunt singles. The Indians have other plans for their outfield.

Those plans include the calling in of another of their colored boys in the Coast League. He's Harry (Suitcase) Simpson, a character now hitting .330 for San Diego with 30 home runs to his credit. Also to his credit, perhaps, is a wonderful cockiness. He tells Coast newsmen, "Man, if I weighed 190, nobody could hit a ball farther than I could."

If Boudreau does return as manager, it will be at a hefty salary cut. He worked himself up to $60,000 a year under Veeck, who was paying him not only for managing but for being the best shortstop in the league; that last is no longer one of Boudreau's assets. That fact may take him out of Greenberg's 1951 plans.

Unbeaten Rookie Holds White Sox to 3 Hits, 8-1

By Jack Hand

CHICAGO, Sept. 20 (AP).—Whitey Ford, the Yankees' "golden boy" rookie southpaw, kept New York in the American League lead today with his eighth straight victory, a three-hit 8-1 romp over the Chicago White Sox.

Working with the poise and skill of a veteran, the blond 21-year-old kid saved the Yanks for the second time within five days. This win, coming at the end of the last Western trip, was almost as important as his sparkler at Detroit last Saturday.

The chunky little fellow with the spark curve and sneaky fast ball allowed the upset-minded Sox only three singles, his third three-hitter. Hank Majeski hit one in the second and Eddie Robinson banged the other two in the fourth and seventh.

Hit Batter Costs Shutout.

This was the 11th start for Ford, who moved up from the Kansas City farm July 1, and the Yankees have won every one. Ford lost his shutout through his own fault. He nicked Dave Philley with an inside pitch in the fourth. Philley rode to third on Robinson's line single to right and scored on Gus Zernial's fly that Cliff Mapes grabbed after a long run.

Unlike last night when they were hypnotized by Bob Cain, the Yanks tore into Ray Scarborough and reliefer Howie Judson for 11 hits, including a triple by Jerry Coleman and Cliff Mapes' 12th homer.

Thus the Yanks headed home, sure of first place with two open dates before they begin a two-game series with Boston Saturday afternoon. They won five of nine in the west and eight of 14 since they left home.

Stengel said he will pitch either Allie Reynolds or Eddie Lopat against the Red Sox Saturday.

The Yankees now have hit 39 homers in the last 22 games and 150 for the season. Also, Joe DiMaggio's single in the seventh kept alive his 13-game hitting streak.

Bob Gains His 21st, 6 to 3; Early Chalks Up 17th, 7-1

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

CLEVELAND, Sept. 20.—This was a day to be remembered, with anguish, by the Boston Red Sox. Twice they were slapped down by the Indians in a doubleheader, 6 to 3, and 7 to 1, at fearful cost to their pennant ambitions.

The bitter double defeat dropped the Red Sox two games behind the Yankees, and into third place, a game and a half behind Detroit, 6-5 conquerors of the Philadelphia Athletics today.

The revised standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.	G.B.
New York	91	53	.632	..
Detroit	90	53	.629	1½
Boston	98	55	.618	2

Bob Lemon up-ended 'em in the first game with the help of Luke Easter's two-run homer. He outpitched Chuck Stobbs, struck out nine Red Sox and after five previous futile attempts racked up his twenty-first win, with a seven-hitter.

In the second game, Early Wynn was a reasonable facsimile of Lemon only a trifle more effective. Wynn permitted five scattered hits and if it hadn't been for a homer by Walt Dropo with no one on base in the seventh, the Cleveland starter would have had a shutout for his seventeenth success.

Joe Dobson was nominated to start the second game for the Red Sox. If there was any secret to his pitching, he didn't keep it from the Indians. They slapped him around with gusto and, in their relaxed state, continued against Dobson's successor, Ellis Kinder.

Cleveland began belaboring Dobson in the second. Rosen drew a walk with none away and Ray Boone singled to center. When Gordon attempted to sacrifice and failed. Rosen strode too far off second and was picked off by a relay from Birdie Tebbetts. Gordon then forgot about sacrificing and hit a homer into the lower left field stands to give the Indians a 2-0 edge.

In the fourth, Cleveland doubled its advantage. Luke Easter reached first on an error by Dropo, and Boone, slammed a triple to left center, scoring Easter. Boone scored a moment later on Gordon's fly to Ted Williams in deep left.

Meanwhile Wynn was mowing down the Red Sox as though they were hitting .207 as a team rather than .307. Wynn had a shutout for six innings. Over that span, he permitted three scattered singles. In the seventh, with none away, Dropo nudged him for a homer but the next three men were out in order.

In their half of the inning, the Indians unloaded on Kinder and scored three times to take a 7-1 lead. Jim Hegan led off with a single and reached second on Wynn's sacrifice. A walk to Mitchell and Larry Doby's subsequent single, accounted for the first run. When Bob Kennedy and Easter followed with singles, two more runs resulted.

Thereafter Wynn didn't need any more support. Pesky doubled for Boston's fifth hit in the eighth but was stranded when Williams grounded to Gordon.

The Sox got their first jolt of the day from big Luke Easter. Tempted by a 3-2 pitch from seventh after Doerr led off with a double to right and Zarilla followed with an infield hit. Lemon fanned PinchHitter Wilson and Young Stobbs, he drilled his

Detroit Tops A's, 6-5, to Retake 2d

DETROIT, Sept. 20 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers battled their way back into undisputed possession of second place in the American League race today by coming from behind to nip the Philadelphia Athletics, 6-5.

Alex Kellner had a two-hitter until he faltered in the Tiger sixth, when four singles and his own fielding misplay figured in a three-run tally.

The Tigers, trailing 5-4, got to relief pitcher Bob Hooper for the two-game winning runs in the eighth.

Irv Noren paced Washington's 14-hit attack against Dick Starr, Harry Dorish, Cuddles Marshall and Duane Pillette with his twelfth home run, a double and single. He knocked in five runs and brought his total to 91.

Washington exploded for six runs in the fourth on an error, singles by Sam Dente, Hudson, Yost and Coan and Noren's three-run homer.

"Just Beat Hell Out Of Us," O'Neill Says

CLEVELAND, Sept. 20 (AP). For a club that tasted losses in only five of its previous 32 games, the Boston Red Sox did a manful job of concealing any despair they felt after swallowing a double dose of defeat in Cleveland Stadium today.

"There's not very much to tell tonight," said Manager Steve O'Neill. "They just beat the hell out of us—gave us a shellacking."

Giants Drop 2 To Blackwell, Raffensberger

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—Ewell Blackwell and Ken Raffensberger pitched Cincinnati to a double victory over the New York's Giants today, 4-1 and 2-0. Blackwell gave up four hits in the first game, Raffensberger allowed six in his shutout.

Kiner Hits No. 46 But Bucs Lose, 7-2

BROOKLYN, Sept. 20 (AP).—The Dodgers made it 10 in a row and 18 out of 21 from Pittsburgh by overwhelming the Pirates, 7-2, before 1011 chilled fans here today.

Gil Hodges' second grand slam of the year and twenty-ninth homer in the first inning was more than enough for Carl Erskine to beat Bill MacDonald.

Both Pittsburgh runs resulted from Ralph Kiner's forty-sixth homer in the first inning.

Big-Time Slate, Team

This Is the Year For Tatum's Terps

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

AFTER THREE years of primping, the University of Maryland stands ready to step into the big leagues.

The Terps have a big-time schedule (Georgia, Navy, Michigan State, North Carolina and Duke are on it) and a new stadium with a seating capacity of 42,000.

And perhaps even more important, they have a wealth of players, and a first rate coach, recruiter, and organizer in Jim Tatum of McCall, S. C.

All they have to do now is bear out their preseason ranking among the first 25 teams in the Nation is win eight out of 10 games.

A visit to Maryland's training camp gives you the impression that they can do it. It's simply staggering to watch Tatum work his massive freshman and varsity squads of nearly 100 after seeing George Washington and Georgetown skimping along with a mere 35 or 40.

Jim Tatum

THERE STANDS Tatum in the center of his high fenced practice corral. He's watching about 70 of his boys who are engaged in three scrimmages.

He is barking directions at his assistants, keeping every player busy each minute of the drill; it reminds you of the stories about the Brooklyn Dodgers' training camp where each player is taught a specialty every moment of daylight.

When Tatum notices that a few of his boys are tiring, he tweets his whistle, and then things start happening like magic.

At one end of the field, a door swings open, and in, on the run, rushes a new platoon to replace the worn out one. This happens about three times, and you get the impression that the stream of Maryland players is endless.

IT'S A TRIBUTE to Tatum's aggressiveness, the big-time stadium, schedule, organization and material.

Especially remarkable has been Tatum's ability to land the big muscle men from the coal mine regions of Pennsylvania. There are many versions of how Tatum gets his boys, but the fact is he gets them.

Fans who watched Villanova give the Terps a rough time in scrimmage the other day got a chuckle when Bill Hottel of Maryland's publicity department shouted down at the Wildcats, "anyway, we have more Pennsylvania players than you have."

Tatum has 25 Pennsylvanians on his roster, enough for two platoons and three reserves.

TATUM WILL get an idea pretty soon how good his team really is. The Terps meet Georgia at Athens, Ga., Saturday.

Tatum is moaning that "Coach Wally Butts of Georgia wouldn't schedule us if he wasn't positive he could lick us." Folks who know Tatum figure the other way around.

The bulky Tatum also complains that he's uncertain about Maryland's quarterbacking, one of its ends, and its pass defense.

He lost Joe Tucker and Stan Lavine, last year's quarterbacks, Fred Davis, his good defensive right end, and Jim LaRue and Vern Seibert from his defensive backfield.

But it's not as bad as it sounds. In John Scarbath and Bob DeStefano, a couple of bright 185-pound sophomores, Tatum has promising replacements. Scarbath, from Baltimore, throws a sharp pass, and DeStefano, from Providence, is good on the long ones.

ABOUT THE REST of his defense, Tatum is unworried. He has back most of the men who kept Maryland among the top five in ground defense last year.

He calls the left side of his line the best in the country. The reasons are End Elmer Wingate, 215 pounds of Baltimore, Tackle Ray Krouse, 248 from Western High, Washington and Guard Bob Ward, 182, of Elizabeth, N. J.

Krouse and Ward have received recognition on almost every All-America team published since last October. The defensive team will also include Centers Jake Rowden, 200, Duncan, Ariz., and Jeff Keith, 195, Birmingham, Ala., Tackle Chet Gierula, 220, Allentown, Pa., and Linebacker Dave Cianelli, 210, of Hagerstown, Md.

THIS YEAR, Tatum hopes that his backfield of Scarbath or DeStefano, and Ed Modzelewski, Shemonski and Sophomore Ed Fullerton will give him a better scoring punch.

Modzelewski, "Mighty Mo," a 205-pound steamroller from West Natrona, Pa., was Maryland's leading ground gainer last year. Shemonski was its best breakaway runner.

Another back who will be used frequently is Joe Petruzzo, a 175 soph from Mamaroneck, N. Y. Petruzzo has been the most spectacular runner in camp. One of the two boys in Maryland on a Charlie Keller scholarship, Petruzzo scored in the Villanova scrimmage on successive runs of 38 and 45 yards.

Mt. Vernon Host to Devitt; Two Regulars Quit, Join Navy

By Bill Gilbert

Mount Vernon High, looking forward to its best season in recent years, plays host to Devitt tonight, probably without the services of two first-string backs.

Halfback Paul Norfolk and Fullback Billy Pettit have quit school and joined the Navy and are not likely to play any more this season.

Norfolk, 18, and Pettit, 19, took their physicals Tuesday and if accepted they will report for duty October 6.

Norfolk, playing his third year of football, was the team's best runner and punter. He caught a pass from Eddie West for 29 yards and a touchdown for the Mounts in their 14-6 victory over Gonzaga last week, their first in the four-year series.

Mount Vernon's hopes for a successful year are endangered by Devitt, with a backfield of considerable experience and a line that includes four 200-pounders.

Ray Luckett, who transferred from Montgomery Blair, is the chief threat in the Destroyer backfield and one of the outstanding in the area. A player who runs, punts and passes equally well, Ray will be the quarterback in the "T" and the left halfback when Devitt uses the single wing.

Muscle on the forward wall is supplied by Tackles Ray Schultz and John Clark and Guards Doug Rodier and Steve Orescon, all of whom weigh 200 pounds or more.

Idzik Goes Back to Halfback

Terps Finally Please Tatum, He Gives Them a Night Off

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Maryland showed so much improvement in football practice yesterday Coach Jim Tatum gave the players a night off.

It was the first time since fall practice started almost three weeks ago that Tatum did not hold a night meeting with the squad to go over preparations for the opening game with Georgia in Athens on Saturday.

"I think they've learned at last what they're trying to do," said Tatum, trying to suppress a smile from his usually gloomy countenance.

"Nobody got hurt and the boys played like they wanted to play football," good humor-man Tatum remarked after the last stiff drill for the skirmish with the Bulldogs. "Maybe we've gotten all the bad stuff out of our systems. I hope so because we'll have to be at our best to stay on the same field with Georgia Saturday."

The day marked the end of Tatum's experiment of trying to make a split-T quarterback out of Johnny Idzik, who for three years has played halfback. The quarterbacking will be done by Sophomores Jack Scarbath of Baltimore; Bob DeStefano of Providence, R. I., and Frank Armsworthy of Baltimore, a junior playing his first year of college ball.

Tatum felt he needed Idzik more as a defensive halfback than at quarterback. The stocky built 165-pound Philadelphian has been one of the bulwarks of Maryland's usually tight pass defense.

The only absentee was Tackle Ray Krouse, Maryland cocaptain and second team All-America last year. The 245-pound Washingtonian has been confined to his home with a slight touch of flu for the past two days. But he'll be with the Terps when they enplane for Georgia at 11 a. m. tomorrow. More important, he'll be in the starting lineup against Georgia at 2 p. m. Saturday.

Hill Prince 1st, Middleground 10th at Belmont

Virginia Colt Wins With Great Finish

By John Chandler

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—Hill Prince, the bob-tailed flyer from Virginia, just about locked up the 1950 3-year-old championship and threw the key away today when he soundly whipped 12 sophomore rivals in the $24,400 Jerome Handicap at Belmont.

King Ranch's Middleground, hero of the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes, never showed in contention and straggled home tenth.

It required a tremendous run from the far turn, and down the stretch, a distance of about ½ mile, before the strapping bay son of Princequillo-Hildene could do the job. Hill Prince ran dead last for more than ½ mile.

But the way he came flying under the wire with Jockey Eddie Arcaro at the controls convinced just about everybody in the throng of 16,278 that Hill Prince would be crowned king of his division.

Arcaro and the Prince hit the wire four lengths on top, with Brookmeade Stable's Greek Ship second, a length in front of Elm-Crest Farm's Navy Chief.

Time for the mile was 1:35 4-5, second fastest at this distance for the Jerome, being run for the eighty-first time. Cherry Pie did it in 1:35 2-5 in 1923, and Easy Mon was clocked at 1:35 4-5 in 1939.

Hill Prince, in winning the 12th race in 18 starts in his young career, earned a purse of $17,150. This shot his 1950 winnings to $227,715. He won six of seven races as a juvenile, and $46,225.

Jim Thackara Ousts Coss

Young Tim Coss, who held a 3—1 third set lead over Jim Thackara when darkness halted their Monday match in the Northern Virginia Open tennis tournament, lost the set and the match yesterday at the Buckingham Courts in Arlington.

The veteran Thackara, seeded first, won the third set, 6—2. Thackara won the first set, 6—2, and 17-year-old Coss the other set, 6—4, Monday.

Lukat Whips Olds For Publinx Title

Fred Lukat defeated Steve Olds, 1 up, yesterday, at East Potomac to win the District Public Links golf championship.

Lukat, one down at the turn, won the eleventh hole to tie the match and forged ahead to stay on the thirteenth.

On those two holes, both par threes, Lukat was on in one and two-putted while Olds was also in on in one but had to use his putter three times.

Lukat, a second flight qualifier last year, had 74 and Olds 75 on the par 72 course. Both Lukat and Olds are from East Potomac.

The long-driving Lukat was forced to go 20 holes before he won from Robert Martino in the morning semifinal round. Olds defeated Marv Mrstik, 3 and 2, to gain the finals.

M/Sgt. John T. McKinney defeated John Bowers, 1 up, in 22 holes to take the second flight title. McKinney defeated William Steplavick, 2 and 1, and Bowers eliminated Alex Naby, 1 up, in the semifinals.

Lemon, Wynn Knock Bosox Out of 2d Place, 6-3 and 7-1

twenty-seventh homer far over the right field fence wtih Kennedy on base to install Lemon in a 2-0 lead.

The Indians ran their bulge to 5-0 before the Sox could work up a pair of runs in the sixth. Kennedy's double and Doby's single fetched in a run in the third, and in the fifth, Hegan, Mitchell and Doby banged out hits that wrenched two more out of Stobbs. Parnell finally got the side out.

Meanwhile Lemon was doing a good job on the Red Sox, striking out five in the first five innings. A sudden loss of control cost him two runs in the sixth. He walked Rosar and McDermott, and they were moved in by Billy Goodman's single to right. Lemon called a halt, though, with two on and one out.

Tempers flared in the Cleveland sixth when Umpire Jim Honochick ruled that a drive by Gordon which felled the third-base umpire was a foul ball. Coach Al Simmons exploded at that decision and was tossed out of the game. Coach Mel Harder who also wanted to argue also was thrown out.

The Sox stirred up a run in the then settled for one Boston run on DiMaggio's fly to center.

His lead cut to 5-3, Lemon helped get himself another run in the seventh with a single to right. With the bases full, Parnell relieved McDermott, and eventually walked Rosen to force the run in.

The Sox mustered a dying gasp in the eighth when a walk to Williams and Dropo's single put two on base. But Lemon solved that situation by grabbing Doerr's smash and starting a double play.

Court Orders Admiral Freed From Hospital

ROANOKE, Va., Sept. 20 (AP).—Judge Dirk A. Kuyk in Hustings Court today ordered the Roanoke Veterans Administration Hospital to release Rear Admiral Edgar Brown Larimer, retired, on a writ of habeas corpus.

In an order entered this morning at the conclusion of a two-day hearing, Judge Kuyk held that "there is no further necessity for the confinement of Larimer and that he is unlawfully imprisoned, detained, confined and restrained of his liberty."

The retired head of the Bureau of Naval Ordnance was committed to the hospital in June by a commission on complaint of his wife.

He testified Wednesday when the hearing opened that he is not mentally ill and never has been. He said he had been confined to the grounds and buildings of the hospital and restrained in his communication with people on the outside.

C. U. Rector Receives Ring For Bishopric

A ceremonial Episcoal ring was presented the Most Rev. Patrick J. McCormick on the eve of his consecration as titular bishop of Atenia and auxiliary bishop of Washington.

The rector of Catholic University received the gift from the Alumni Association last night at ceremonies in Curley Hall on the camus.

The ring contains a 21½-carat brilliant green Tourmaline stone (emerald cut), surrounded by 26-point diamonds.

A committee of graduates attended the presentation ceremonies, at which Frank A. Kuntz, of Woodhaven, N. Y., expressed the happiness of the alumni in the elevation of a fellow graduate.

Ceremonies will begin at 10 a. m. today for the consecration of Bishop-Elect McCormick. His Excellency, the Most Rev. Ameto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, will be consecrating prelate in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at the University.

Zoning Board Approves Boys' Club Transfer

Property of the Boys' Club of Washington at Pennsylvania ave. and M st. nw., which an oil company wants for a gas station and Georgetown residents want for a park, may end up as both.

The club wants to sell the site of its old clubhouse so it can build a new one at Wisconsin ave. and S st. nw. It has had an offer from the American Oil Co. which has a gas station on property between the clubhouse and Rock Creek Park.

The Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown, however, wants the club property turned into a park. The National Capital Park and Planning Commission has wanted the property for years and worked out this compromise which was approved yesterday by the District Board of Zoning Adjustment:

The zoning board approved use of the club property as a gas station. NCPPC now will seek legislation permitting it to swap with the oil company a piece of park land east of the gas station for the western tip of the club property. Thus the gas station property would expand slightly in both directions, and the NCPPC would get the tip of the property for a park.

NCPPC was given until next June 30 to obtain such legislation. If it is unable to do so, board member Robert O. Clouser said the parties involved have in mind an alternate plan that may achieve the same result.

Jews Mark Yom Kippur Today With Continuous Prayer, Fast

Continuous prayers will be said today throughout the day in more than a score of area synagogues and temples as Jews the world over observe Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. It began with the Kol Uidre service last night.

According to Jewish custom, the purpose of the day is to effect "at-one-ment" between man and his fellowman and God. Throughout the 24 hours beginning at sunset last night through sunset tonight, devout Jews will also abstain from food and water.

Yom Kippur is the most solemn and important of Jewish holy days, and climaxes a 10-day period of penitence following Rosh Hashonah.

In most Jewish households, 24-hour candles will burn today in memory of departed members of the family.

The holy day will end with the sounding of the ram's horn or shofar before the open Ark as the congregation stands in reverence at sunset.

Good Short-Wave Period

Good listening for short-wave radio fans for the next 10 days was predicted yesterday by forecasters at the National Bureau of Standards. No difficulty with short-wave communications prior to October 1 is expected, they said.

Federal Work Rider Sails Through House Without Opposition

The House yesterday passed without a whisper of opposition the Whitten rider to require Federal agencies to make transfers, reinstatements, and grade promotions on a temporary basis at least until next June 30. The Senate today is expected to follow suit.

If that happens, the Congress will have taken over the leadership in the Government's personnel problems from the Civil Service Commission and the Administration. The amendment that is bound to hurt a good many employes wouldn't have been considered by the Congress if the commission had come out with an emergency program of its own.

Several House members who questioned the rider in private were told that the commission even refused to give several agencies that requested it the authority to make temporary appointments to jobs vacated by men who joined the military. The commission also is being blasted for failing to provide reemployment rights for status employes who are asked to transfer to defense jobs. The rider also provides:

..(1) A "freeze" on the number of status jobs in Government; (2) that no laid-off employe can be given another job at a salary higher than he was paid on September 1, and (3) that the Defense Department may requisition employes it may need from other Federal agencies.

Other personnel riders to the supplemental budget bill adopted by the House would give the Defense Department 33 percent more jobs in the three top classified grades, and apparently "freeze," the salaries of employes of the Office of Housing Expeditor at May 22 levels.

EFFICIENCY RATINGS: A tentative agreement was reached yesterday by Senate-House conferees on the bill to overhaul the efficiency rating system. It still isn't definite, but the Senate is reported to be willing to agree to the House version to permit employes to appeal both unsatisfactory and satisfactory ratings.

NPA: The top command of Commerce's new National Production Authority is composed of:

William H. Harrison, administrator; George Wilde, assistant to the administrator; Horace McCoy, assistant administrator for industry operations; Manly Fleischmann, general counsel; Oscar Nelson, acting executive officer; Carl Hayward, director of field operations, and James Kelly, acting director of small business.

Civil Service has given Commerce the authority to hire on a temporary basis those persons who had at least six months experience in either OPA or WPB, World War II emergency agencies. But that provision may be waived as NPA's activities are stepped up. The Office of Export Control, formerly slated for NPA, is now tabbed for transfer to the Office of International Trade.

CAA & CAB: The promotion of Del Rentzel from administrator of the Civil Aeronautics Administration to chairman of Civil Aeronautics Board won't necessarily kill the plan to shift CAA to the Defense Department for the duration.

Donald W. Nyrop, the new CAA Administrator, like Rentzel, is a stout advocate of the plan to switch CAA for Defense. Insiders are confident the transfer plan has merely been postponed; that it will be put before Congress early next year despite opposition from within the Administration.

D.C. Car Theft Ring Broken Up With 3 Arrests, Police Say

The smashing of an auto theft ring here was claimed yesterday by police with the arrest of two men and a 17-year-old juvenile.

Detectives who cracked the case said they are still looking for two other men.

They said the ring has stolen seven new-model automobiles in the District in the past 14 weeks and disposed of most of them in legitimate channels by using a phony title switch.

The men arrested were Leo C. Condolon, 22, of 1901 Roanoke st., Green Meadows, Md., and Richard B. Riggin, 22, of 3935 Georgia ave. nw. Condolon, Riggin and the juvenile were arrested early yesterday morning. Police said Condolon was picked up at the home of a girl friend in the 1300 block of 12th st. nw.

All three were charged with one count of grand larceny. Condolon and Riggin were arraigned before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence who continued their cases until October 11 and freed them in $1500 bond each.

The juvenile was sent to the Receiving Home and his case referred to juvenile authorities.

According to Lieut. Jacob Wolf and Detective Sergts. Charles I. Smith and John G. Williams of the auto squad who worked on the case, the older men would pay the juvenile from $25 to $50 a car to steal new model automobiles they pointed out to him in the residential Northwest section.

Then, police, said, this is what they would do:

They would visit a junk yard, either in Maryland and Virginia, and look for a wrecked machine corresponding in model and make to the one just stolen.

When they found what they wanted, they would buy the motor and sometimes the body of the wrecked car. In this way they acquired—legitimately—the title to the wrecked car.

While the older men dickered with the junk dealer, the juvenile would strip the serial number plate from the car, usually tacked somewhere on the body of the car.

This serial number plate would be substituted for the one on the stolen car. One more obstacle was the motor number. The number on the motor of the stolen car would be filed off and a new number stamped in its place—the number of the motor from the wrecked car for which the ring had a title.

Then the car would be driven out of Washington and sold through regular channels.

Detectives said the trio admitted stealing a 1946 Lincoln, buying a motor from a wrecked 1946 Lincoln for $50, making the title switch, and selling the stolen car for $750.

Police said they did the same thing with a 1950 Nash—spent $50 for a motor and sold it for $1900.

Similarly, they disposed of a 1949 Oldsmobile convertible for $1900 and a 1949 Buick sedan for $1500, according to police.

Detectives said the seventh car stolen by the ring—a 1949 Buick convertible—led to its downfall.

They paid $300 for the motor of a wrecked 1949 Buick convertible, made the usual switch and took the stolen car to Richmond where they tried to sell it to a used car dealer, detectives said.

The dealer became suspicious when he saw, from the title, that the car had apparently changed ownership only one day previously. The men got scared, left the car and the title with the dealer and never returned.

The dealer notified authorities in Richmond. The trail led to a junk dealer in Baltimore who, police said, identified a rogue's gallery photograph of Condolon as one of the men who had acquired title to a wrecked 1949 Buick convertible.

Police here said Condolon and Riggin both have been arrested in the past for brawling.

Foreman Dies Under 10 Tons Of Cinders

Wilbur L. Hoebener, 38, 1615 Q st. se., was smothered to death yesterday when 10 tons of cinders fell on him in a conveyor chute at the West Brothers Brick Co. cinder plant in the 6500 block of Sheriff rd., Fairmount Heights, Md.

Hoebener was foreman of the cinder block plant. According to Prince Georges County Policeman J. L. Tucker of the Hyattsville substation, he apparently was walking on a pile of cinders on top of the conveyor chute, which ordinarily is full. Police theorize that part of the pile had been drawn off and that only a top crust remained. This crust gave under his weight, dropping him 15 feet to the bottom of the shaft. The shock caused some 10 tons of cinders to fall down the shaft on him.

He was found shortly after 3 p. m. by Zekel Arnett, 6607 K st. Cedar Heights, conveyor operator, who noticed a piece of iron, which Hoebener may have been carrying, sticking out of the bottom of the chute. Arnett went to remove the iron before it fell onto a conveyor belt below and saw Hoebener's legs sticking out from the bottom.

Helpers dug the foreman from the bottom. The Bladensburg Rescue Squad worked on him more than an hour before Dr. John T. Maloney, county medical examiner, pronounced him dead. Maloney issued a certificate of accidental death.

Hoebener is survived by a wife and daughter.

House Votes $50,000 for Child Care

Reverses Earlier $30,000 Allotment Provided Centers Close in December

The House yielded yesterday to the tune of $20,000 and three months on the District's child day-care program.

In a unanimous action on the conference report of the $17 billion supplemental appropriations bill, the House agreed to grant $50,000 to operate the centers, provided they are closed by December 31.

Last Saturday House conferees refused to budge from an earlier House decision to allow only $30,000 with orders to terminate the program by October 1.

The Senate may act on the disputed item today and is expected to go along with the House compromise offer. It was presented by Chairman Cannon (D., Mo.) of the House Appropriations Committee.

The Senate had urged $100,000 to carry the day-care program until next June 30, in line with a legislative act of last spring which authorized the centers to continue in operation at least three years.

300 Children Enrolled

Informed of the House vote, Welfare Department officials said $50,000 would be sufficient to run the District's six centers for children of working mothers until the end of December. At the moment 300 children—a capacity load—are enrolled in the program.

The December 31 closing date will give supporters of the program perhaps another chance to appeal for more funds when Congress convenes after the November elections.

However, the Welfare Department which is reluctantly administering the centers, probably will not take the lead in seeking more funds.

The House also agreed, without debate, to appropriate one million dollars for planning and acquiring a site for a second civilian airport in the Washington area. The Senate had voted an initial appropriation of $2,150,000.

$100,000 For Civil Defense

The $100,000 for Washington civil defense also went through without a murmur.

In other actions, the House quickly approved and sent to the White House legislation providing maintenance and operating money for schools in districts where Federal activity has swollen enrollment.

Earlier, on motion of Representative Barden (D., N. C.), the House boosted funds to finance the first year's operation of the school maintenance bill to 23 million dollars. The Senate-House conference committee had previously agreed to appropriate half that amount.

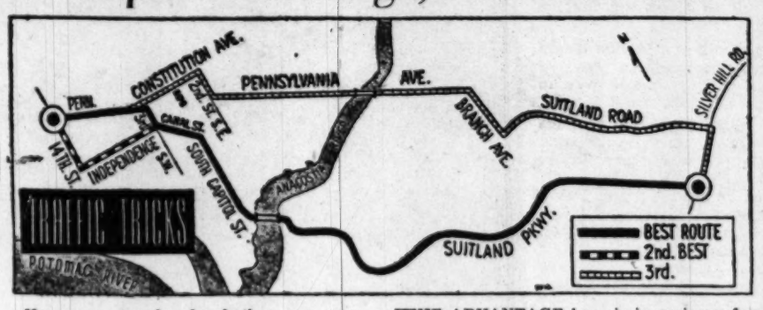
Similarly the House voted $24,500,000, plus 25 million dollars in contract authority, to put into effect a school construction program in Federally-impacted areas. Conferees also had halved that figure. The construction measure is awaiting the President's signature.

4th St. N.W. at Bryant Reopened to Traffic

Fourth st. nw., which had been closed to traffic at Bryant st. for the last three months while the District Water Division made underground installations, was reopened to traffic yesterday.

Water Division Superintendent David Auld said the work had involved laying pipe and installing check valves as part of the division's plan to increase water pressure downtown by pumping water from McMillan Reservoir rather than rely on the flow of gravity.

Quickest Route Downtown From Suitland Uses Capitol St. Bridge, Takes 22.5 Mins.



Have you wondered whether you are taking the quickest route to work? TRAFFIC TRICKS, routes developed from the Regional Highway Planning Survey of Metropolitan Washington, has the answer on the fast way to get to 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

RESIDENTS of District Heights, Dupont Heights, Silver Hill, Bradbury, Suitland, Forestville, Md., and residents of Anacostia, Hillcrest and Garfield sections of the District, should take this route—

From the intersection of Suitland pkwy. and the Silver Hill rd. in Maryland, take Suitland pky., cross the South Capitol st. bridge, up South Capitol, left on Canal st. sw., then right on 3d st. sw. and nw., up 3d to Pennsylvania ave. nw., then left to 14th st. In peak hours, take 2d instead of 3d since a left turn is prohibited from 3d into Pennsylvania.

Average peak traffic time is 22.5 minutes for an 8.2 mile distance. From the origin intersection, 11.5 minutes to the bridge.

THE ADVANTAGE here is in saving a few minutes in getting from the South Capitol st. bridge to the downtown section, as well as using the fastest roadway from the outlying area to the bridge—Suitland pkwy.

Other routes: Take Suitland pkwy. over South Capitol st. bridge, up South Capitol st., left on Canal st. sw., then left on Independence ave. to 14th st., right on 14th to Pennsylvania ave. nw. Time: 23 minutes for an 8.5 distance; 11.5 minutes to the bridge.

Central Cornerstone Removal Questioned by School Board

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

The District Board of Education yesterday asked School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning to find out if he acted "legally" when he had the cornerstone removed from the Central High School building.

Until Dr. Corning has a decision from the Office of the Corporation Counsel, the board said it will postpone action on two recommendations he presented to the board.

The first would give the Central High School Alumni Association jurisdiction over the cornerstone and the metal box of Central mementos sealed behind it. Dr. Corning said both are now in safekeeping at the Franklin Administration Building.

The second would authorize the Negro Cardozo High School which now accupies the old white Central building at 13th and Clifton sts. nw. to hold dedication ceremonies and lay a new stone in the hole in the side of the building.

Board members were generally critical of Dr. Corning for having had the stone removed without their permission.

"The stone is gone, let's forget about it," Dr. Phillip Johnson said. He indicated he was interested in finding out if the board had any right to turn jurisdiction of part of its property—the stone and the box with contents—over to another group—the Central Alumni Association.

But Adlebert W. Lee, acting president of the board, said that the stone was more than property. It was real estate and perhaps school officials were guilty of destroying real estate by removing it. He asked for the legal opinion.

Dr. Corning said the cornerstone had been removed because it was easier to take it out than to have the Central name carved on it obliterated.

He said he felt the cornerstone was "a thing intrinsically belonging to Central." Other Central possessions had been moved into vacant rooms at Western High School where Central alumni will have headquarters, he said.

Lee replied that he thought "nothing more intrinsic to a building than its cornerstone."

In another action involving the old Central building, the board turned down for the present a request of the Recreation Department to use the structure for a city-wide recreation center.

Dr. Garnet C. Wilkinson, a first assistant superintendent, asked the board to defer immediate decision until he found out how much use the schools will make of the building. He said that more than a thousand students are now enrolled in the night school there. The building also will be used for all Negro athletic contests and for all educational conferences, he said.

The board also turned down a Recreation Department request to use the old Cardozo High School Building, 9th st. and Rhode Island ave. nw. School officials reported that the building is no longer safe. The board voted to turn it over to the District Commissioners for razing.

Permission was granted by the board to school officials to set up part-time classes if necessary at four Negro elementary schools, Hayes, Lovejoy, Payne and Slowe. Dr. Corning was asked to prepare a report showing class loads at all Northeast elementary schools to determine if other facilities can be made available to prevent parttime.

Two Cadet Colonels Named for D. C. Corps

The D. C. Board of Education yesterday named cadet colonels for Divisions 1-9 and 10-13.

William James Neff, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Neff, of 2900 Rittenhouse st. nw., was named cadet colonel for Divisions 1-9. A senior at Wilson High School, Neff has been in the Cadet Corps for three years and was first sergeant last year. He is president of the youth group at the Grace Evangelical Reformed Church.

Fairley

Neff

Richard L. Fairley, 17, son of the Rev. Mr. R. A. Fairley, 1028 Park rd. nw., was named cadet colonel for Divisions 10-13. A senior at Dunbar High School, Fairley starts his third year in the cadets with honors.. Fairley is president of the Youth Fellowship in the Bethany Presbyterian Church, 900 F st. ne., where his father is pastor. He is a member of the National Honor Society.

Sesqui Actors Adopt Policy Of All or None

"Faith of Our Fathers" actors yesterday said they will present scenes from the play only before audiences that will welcome the entire cast.

The group took the action after 12 white and two Negro actors were turned away Tuesday from Anacostia High School.

The principal of the school, Mrs. Opal Corkery, refused to let the mixed cast appear at the white school.

School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning supported Mrs. Corkery's decision, stating that mixed groups do not appear in Washington's segregated schools.

Two Negro school board members at yesterday's meeting of the board criticized Dr. Corning for giving the impression that the schools have a policy prohibiting Negroes from visiting white schools or white persons from appearing at Negro schools.

Dr. Phillip Johnson described the action banning the actors as "particularly vicious" and declared:

"If we have such a policy, now is the time to change it."

Mrs. Velma G. Williams said she was "embarrassed" to be a member of the board.

Superintendent Corning, she said, "has done a great injustice to all groups of children. I wonder if in making his statement, he knew what reaction it would have."

"By now the Russians are making much of this publicity."

She said the Negro actors appearing in the Sesquicentennial play are students at Howard University—the same school invited by the government of Denmark to send a group of actors to Europe last year.

"They went abroad and played before kings and queens and made quite a record for America," Mrs. Williams said.

"I am sure not a single member of this board would vote against letting a Negro child appear in a drama in what we call a white school."

Acting Board President Adelbert W. Lee adjourned the meeting immediately after Mrs. Williams spoke.

Later Doctor Corning told reporters he knew of no policy prohibiting Negroes from white schools.

Group to Spur School Bonds In Arlington

Representatives of eight Arlington County organizations joined last night in formation of a county-wide council to support a proposed $7,450,000 school expansion program.

The group, to be known officially as the Coordinating Committee for School Bonds, was formed on the assumption that county voters will be given a chance to ballot November 7

Petitions now are being circulated to bring about the referendum.

Elected as chairman was O. Glenn Stahl, personnel director for the Federal Security Administration and a former member of the Arlington County School Board. Other officers are Mrs. Virginia Stitzenberger, vice chairman; Mrs. Mildred Marcey, secretary, and Paul Netzer, treasurer.

Organizations represented at the initial meeting were the County's Parent-Teacher Council, the Arlington Better Government League, the Citizens Committee for School Improvement, the American Association of University Women, the Business and Professional Women's Club, the League of Women Voters, the Arlington Chamber of Commerce and the Arlington Educational Association.

Purpose of the council is to enlist the aid of these groups and other country-wide organizations in support of the bond issue. The school building program recently was outlined by the county school board which termed it necessary to meet minimum needs

6 German Youths Arrive for Year's Study

By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

Six German students arrived in Washington yesterday for a year in three local high schools, storm-tossed, tired, and excited.

They were greeted at the bus terminal by their new brothers, sisters and parents with a mixture of hospitality and embarrassment.

Peter Neuhofer, 17, of Bavaria, was greeted by Dr. F. H. Wiley, 37 Prince Georges ave., Kensington Md. with whom he will stay until June

Helga Kramer, 17, of Coburg, was welcomed by Mrs. B. H. Price, 9724 Bexhill dr., Kensington, and her two daughters. Miss Kramer and Neuhofer will enroll at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School.

Two other students will enter Blair High School, Heinz Erich Munnich, 17, of Nuremburg, and Dagmar Anna Sabathil, 17, of Landshut. She was met by the family she will live with, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph K. Herzig, 728 Thayer ave., Silver Spring, Md. The family of John A. Troxler, 117 Normandy dr., Silver Spring, was on hand to greet their new guest, young Munnich.

Washington and Lee High School in Arlington will get the other two students, Irmgard Staab, 16, and Horst Krumdel, 18. They will live with Arlington neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Stocking, 616 N. Kenmore st., and Mr. and Mrs. Ivan A. Booker, 617 N. Lincoln st.

The students arrived from New York, where they were supposed to have docked Saturday. A hurricane kept them at sea an extra three days.

As the students got off the bus, they were approached nervously by the welcoming delegation. Some of the new parents looked down furtively at pictures of their wards, supplied to them by the American Field Service, sponsors of the project, picked out the right one, and then opened their arms.

All of the students spoke English, but conversation was strictly limited. Pictures had to be taken; baggage had to be collected, but after that there were supper and armchairs and a long sleep.

Navy Visit Thrills St. Vincent Children

"I am glad," said the major, "that you all aren't wearing lipstick."

We never saw a Marine before who couldn't handle a posse of women. But the major was in trouble—no doubt about it.

The kisses peppered his face like shrapnel, voices broke from shrill throats and eager fingers tugged at the major's cheeks, his ears and at the battery of DFC's on his chest.

The lady-killer's name was Maj. W. M. Johnston, of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, and 'twas at St. Vincent's Home and School he was almost overwhelmed—and vice versa, we would say, from the enthrallment on the major's face and in his eyes.

The ladies involved were the 5-and-6-year-olds at St. Vincent's and quick as any women to fall for a Marine. The major they almost took captive when he passed through their room.

The majoor was one of a group from the Bureau of Aeronautics who toured St. Vincent's, 4th and Edgewood sts. ne., and the Travelers Aid Society at 820 18th st. nw. on a "Come and See" look at Community Chest Red Feather agencies.

Today bureau personnel will visit Family Service Association, 11th and L sts. nw., and the Florence Crittenton Home, 4759 Reservoir rd. nw.

Friday another bureau tour will take in the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society, 3246 P st. nw., and Children's Hospital.

St. Vincent's is a home where live children, aged 5 to 18, whose other home has been taken away by family illness, death of one or both parents or separation of parents. The oldest Catholic agency here caring for children—it started where Woodward & Lothrop's now stands—the Sisters of Charity home is now in its 125th year.

No home, surely, can replace a child's own: but everywhere here was evidence of an attempt to arrive as closely as possible to the atmosphere of any good home.

At Traveler's Aid the visitors heard from Executive Secretary Lucille Bruner of the work of an agency which helps the stranger perplexed in a new city.

"The youngsters, the inexperienced, the aged and the blind . . . people who are not able to travel competently when left to themselves . . ." to all these, Miss Bruner explained, Traveler's Aid holds out a helping hand.

Runaways, mentally ill, and alcoholics—who are often on the move—are among those the society helps, Miss Bruner pointed out.

Key importance of the local Traveler's Aid was pointed up in Miss Bruner's statement of the rather astounding fact that 42 million people passed through Washington last year.

For 1952 Program

UCS Goals Discussed at Plan Session

Goals for United Community Services during the next year were discussed at a fall planning conference held in the General Services Administration Auditorium yesterday.

Mrs. Wayne Coy, chairman of the Family and Child Welfare Section, said plans for the year include a study of establishment of a central intake service for anyone with either family or child problems. When this is done, Mrs. Coy explained, residents will "not have to shop around all over the city."

Other aims of the family section include a central case work service for agencies who do not have a sufficient case load to hire their own workers; and better statistics on Washington's unmet welfare needs.

G. Hoyland Shaw, chairman of the program committee for the Correction Section, said it will undertake four projects next year. One is a study of attitudes of employes toward the employment of former inmates either of penal or correctional institutions.

"We hope," said Shaw, "to make this a missionary project." Others are a study to determine the extent to which juvenile offenders are actually using Washington's recreational facilities; promotion of meetings of all Washington public and private agencies leading to the prevention and control of juvenile delinquency. The group also will study ways to improve the work of the D. C. clinic for alcoholics.

Mrs. Hester G. Stoll said the Community Organization Section's program for the new year will include "some hot potatoes." Studies will involve problems dealing with housing, employment, social security, religious and racial relationships and opportunity for minority groups.

Edward K. Funkhouser, vice chairman of the Health Section and executive secretary of the D. C. Tuberculosis Association, said his group hopes to work for the formation of a council of the handicapped, with retraining of such persons in view; and to work with the Family and Child Welfare Section for the reallocation of housing for people displaced by slum clearance.

Shaw, who opened the forum, said the purpose of the planning conference was to "spot areas of unmet needs" in Washington.

'AIU' Marks Decade Cutting Auto Accidents

The District police Accident Investigation Unit observed it tenth birthday yesterday minus fanfare but with much quiet pride in what it has accomplished.

The "brain child" of Assistant Superintendent Arthur E. Miller, who recently retired, the AIU was created with Lieut. William J. Liverman (then a detective sergeant as its head. Of the 38 men in the AIU when it was creaated, 10 still remain.

Although the population of Greater Washington has tripled and the automobiles registered in the District have increased by 20,000 in the past decade, the OIU staff under Liverman today is only 42 men.

In 1940, when the AIU was formed, there were 13,159 traffic accidents in the District. Despite a much heavier traffic load, there were 260 fewer accidents in 1949.

Scientific investigation by the unit has also been largely responsible for the 300-percent increase in negligent homicide and manslaughter convictions since 1940.

At the scene of a serious accident, AIU men go to work with tape measures, cameras and drawing board to put down an accurate record of what happened.

FTC Lawyer Balks Furrier In Ad Suit

Officers of Zlotnick the Furrier, Inc., sought yesterday to admit allegations of false representation in advertisements, lodged two months ago by the Federal Trade Commission.

On July 22, FTC issued a series of complaints against the local firm including a charge that the firm's three Washington stores are not giving customers advertised savings of 43 to 56 percent "or any other sum approximating such stated percentage savings."

Charles S. Cox, FTC attorney handling the case, said that one of the company's lawyers, Ben I. Melnicoff, submitted a motion to withdraw the firm's September 19 answer to the FTC charges and to file a new answer "admitting all material allegations."

Cox said he opposed the motion on grounds that it was signed by the three respondents as individuals and not in their corporate capacity.

Trial Examiner Henry P. Alden adjourned the hearing at 10 a. m. Friday when the Government expects Zlotnick the Furrier will resubmit the papers.

Cease and Desist Possible

Should the firm file a new answer admitting all allegations and FTC agrees to accept the admission, a cease and desist order will be issued, thus closing the case.

The Government, it was learned, has 72 witnesses available in the event the firm decides to contest the case in public hearings.

The first answer to the FTC complaint, filed Tuesday night, was a general denial of nearly every charge, Cox said.

It denied violation of any provisions of the FTC Act and said, in part: "Furs sold by them (Zlotnick's) are of highest quality, of superb workmanship, the latest style and cut (except in isolated cases where some particular garment has been slow in selling) and their garments are beautifully matched and blended."

The first answer, which Melnicoff sought to withdraw yesterday, contended the firm had been "seriously and irreparably damaged" by the commission's voluntary and "premature" publication of its complaint "without first giving the firm the opportunity to deny and/or explain such charges."

FTC also charged Zlotnick the Furrier with "selling the same garment to two or more purchasers."

Other Complaints

Other complaints brought by FTC allege the firm:

1. "In many instances" has refused to deliver merchandise to purchasers until the merchandise is paid for in full, despite advertised claims of delivery on one-third payment.

2. Removes "all identifying markings from merchandise before same is delivered to a purchaser, so as to eliminate a purchaser's knowledge as to the exact garment that is being delivered."

3. "Failing to deliver the garment purchased to a purchaser."

Refuting other advertised claims, the FTC charged that "in many cases" garments offered for sale by Zlotnick are made of "old, damaged, obsolete or otherwise less valuable furs, and in some cases of old or discontinued styles, which facts are not in any instance revealed to prospective purchasers." FTC referred to many newspaper and radio advertisements.

Melicoff declined to comment on yesterday's FTC hearing.

Woman Walks Into Raid With $3238

Arlington detectives executed perfect timing yesterday—although unknowingly—in a raid on the home of a suspected numbers operator.

Besides neting the suspect, who had been under surveillance for several weeks, the raid brought the arrest of a Washington woman who, according to the detectives, came to the house with more than $3000 in pay-offs on numbers "hits."

Booked at Arlington's police headquarters on charges of operating a lottery were Bennie Cooper, 59, owner of the house at 1217 S. Rolfe st., and Mrs. Helen M. Mills, 36, of 1501 Kearney st. ne. Both later were released in $500 bond pending a hearing in Arlington County Court.

Detectives Russell Runyon and John Wise said they went to the Cooper home armed with a search warrant. While they were searching the house, they said, Mrs. Mills knocked at the door and was admitted by Cooper's wife on instructions from the officers.

The woman had a paper bag containing $3238. The detectives said she admitted the money was to pay off persons who had played the numbers with Cooper on Tuesday and had scored "hits."

Police said they did not know how many players were due to be paid off, but expressed confidence these would be disappointed. Cooper, according to Arlington police records, paid a $100 fine and was given a suspended jail sentence of 60 days on a numbers charge last July 26.

District Police Arrest 3 On Numbers Charges

Three men were arrested yesterday afternoon by vice squad detectives on gambling charges. In each case, police said they obtained a United States Commissioner's warrant in advance of the arrest.

Leon H. Marn, 35, proprietor of Marin's Market, 301 D st. se., was arrested at his market and charged with operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips. Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the vice squad, said an undercover man made plays with Marin before the arrest.

Marin's case was continued until October 11 by United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence. He was released in $1500 bond.

Joseph G. Ruppel, 52, of 427 Massachusetts ave. nw., was arrested at his home and charged with setting up a gaming table, operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips.

Blick said marked money given to Ruppel by an undercoverman and numbers slips were recovered. Ruppel was freed on $1500 bond pending arraignment today before Commissioner Lawrence.

Vice squad detectives arrested Russell Marsh, 40, of 617 3rd st. nw., on the street at 3d and G sts. nw. Freed in $1500 bond, he faces Commissioner Lawrence today on charges of operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips.

District Ensign Joins in Daring Korean Patrol

A former District resident told yesterday how a daring 14-man scouting party swam the Han River the previous night and escaped under fire from entrenched North Koreans.

Navy Ensign Judah (Jack) Siegal, 22, who lived at 1728 21st st. nw., from April, 1949, until he was sent to Korea last July, volunteered for the patrol that swam the 500-yard wide river eight miles northwest of Seoul.

The patrol returned with two wounded through heavy machine-gun, rifle and mortar fire loosed when 200 Reds discovered them. Then, Siegal said, aircraft and artillery roared in on the Communist positions and "the place was pounded to bits."

Winifred Gets a New Complexion

Fifth day of Winifred's 2-week beauty program.

By Ann Lawrence

WINIFRED has been blessed with a clear skin. Neither too oily nor too dry, her only real complexion problem is enlarged pores on her chin and around her nose—a result of faulty cleansing.

But she had hidden the golden tones and translucent quality of her skin beneath layers of heavy, pinky-white make-up. This is a common mistake among blondes, many of whom think that because their hair is fair, their skin is naturally on the rosy-pink side.

Winifred had always wanted to be the dainty, ingenue type, and tried to achieve this in make-up colors, as well as cosmetic application and dress.

THE FIRST STEP in experiment make-over was a thorough cleansing. For her normal skin, a whipped-cream textured cleanser was recommended for nighttime use. Because she is over 30, this would be followed by a supplying cream, to be massaged into the skin and around her eyes, allowed to stay on for 15 minutes, then removed.

In the morning, she would work up a foamy lather with a mild complexion soap, steam her face with hot water, then really scrub with a complexion brush, to clean out the enlarged pores. Then a dash of cold water followed by a strong astringent to tighten and thoroughly close the pores would complete the process.

With her face free of all make-up, Winifred studied her skin in strong daylight. She herself could see the golden tone, emphasized by the summer tan. To remove any lingering doubt, she looked at the skin on her inside upper arm. There, where the skin is thin and protected from the sun and wind, she could also see the true tone.

HER POWDER BASE did not need to hide complexion faults. It needed only to furnish a smooth surface to which her powder would cling. And, of course, it would be light enough in texture not to clog pores or give her face a mask-like look.

A liquid base was selected, one whose formula contains just enough oil to prevent drying, one which is most pleasantly perfumed and which seems to have extra-long lasting qualities.

Smoothed on, from the base of her neck, up to her hairline (with care to cover the spots above and just in front of the ears) Winifred's skin took on a velvety look. The lovely color showed through. Her strong features were revealed, ready to be made up to their best advantage.

Without the thick, opaque base she formerly used, her face had a younger and fresher look.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Canadian Girl, 17, Greatly Gifted in Appearance, Is Beginning to Have Dates; She Won't Let Beaus Kiss Her, But Finds Their Eagerness a Problem

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a Canadian girl, 17. I lost my dad when I was 4, and since then Mum has been my sole guide and confidante. She is a good sport and we have lots of fun together. I would rather go places with her than with most people, but now I have started to date. I still discuss things with Mum and she usually gives satisfactory pointers; but on the question of kissing a young man goodnight, she thinks I ought to get your advice.

I am still unkissed, except by Mum and other relatives occasionally; and I find that nearly all young men expect a goodnight kiss after a drive or show. Until now I have refused. I don't refuse just to be mean, and I admit I have the urge at times; but Mum has instilled in me that I am vested with many gifts that perhaps make life a little harder now. I am good looking, tall and slim, with lovely hair (excuse me if this sounds smug); and have just about all a girl wants in appearance.

In the office where I work temporarily (I aim at college), there is one boy whom I like awfully well. I've been keen to date him, and on our first date again I faced the problem of the goodnight kiss at the evening's end. I refused and told him truthfully that I've yet to be kissed, and that after longer acquaintance I might consent. He said some rather nasty things about my being just a kid, that college might wise me up, etc. He drove off in a pout and I was hurt.

When I told Mum what happened, she said, "Victories are hard to win sometimes, but they pay wonderful dividends." She knows that love is a tricky thing, that we cannot always rule our heart and guide our affections; but she says that by discipline we gain strength for later battles. After we talked things over I did feel very proud; but still I have this romantic confusion to deal with.

As I really liked John, Mum made a point to find out about him,—that he is an only son, always has had everything he wanted, putting little effort into getting it, etc. I know that's true, but still I like him. Mum says she's been through the mill of life, but at 55 feels she may be a bit old fashioned. She wants your advice on this, as you seem to understand the modern generation better than she. Love is wonderful, but very disturbing, isn't it? Please answer soon.

DEAR L.L.: I believe any congregation of fairminded young men will agree with me that it is perfectly all right to deny a boy a goodnight kiss when you feel like it, either because it is your code or the mood you are in,—and that such denial is rather expected of a first class girl who doesn't know the boy very well. That is, if they haven't been longtime friends, and are just starting to date each other.

However, in denying the kiss, it is a breach of good manners on the girl's part, a lapse from dignity and a social gaffe that tends to prejudice the boy against her, if she is stuffy or preachy or apologetic, or hankering about her "No." And your refusal of John's overture had something of all these unfortunate elements in it. In roundabout words you said to him, "My kiss is a prize to be won. I'm not cheap and easy, you know. But stick around and try, try again, and maybe I'll reward your interest." This is worse than romantic confusion; it is a bartering attitude that vulgarizes the kiss withheld, by overemphasizing it altogether.

The purity of your character, the loftiness of your standards, the austerity of your past record as regards lovemaking, your philosophy of spiritual growth, etc., are strictly your business, not proper subjects for discussion with a boy who takes you out on a trial date. If he makes a play for a kiss and you see fit to disoblige, you don't owe him an explanation of your reaction, and he will appreciate a casual turndown if he can't make the grade. Treat the matter incidentally and you help him save face, which evokes both liking and respect from him,—if he's civilized at all.

To give you an idea of poised procedure, if you are ending the evening with a bit of conversation in the boy's car or at your door, and the boy tries to collect a kiss, either by asking or reaching for it, and you choose not to respond, you should simply draw out of range and say goodnight. You dismiss him with the customary civilities, pleasantly spoken—as for instance, "Well, I really must go in now; thank you so much for a pleasant evening," and if he continues to bid for a kiss, brush him off with a casual "Sorry, no," and leave him there, outside the door.

To get your bearings in relation to boys, I think you might take counsel from a pamphlet titled "So You Think It's Love!" issued by the Public Affairs Committee, Inc., at 22 East Thirty-eighth st., New York City 16. The pamphlet was written by Ralph G. Eckart and published this year, for general distribution on request. It forthrightly tackles the moot modern subjects of kissing, necking and petting on dates, and gives good advice on how to cope.

Mother's Angel Child Can Really Do a Lot of Damage To a Poor, Innocent Crib

IT TAKES MORE than one infant to wear out a crib, but an energetic offspring can leave it a bit battered! With reclamation work in mind, Mrs. F. S. M. writes:

DEAR ANNE:

I have two crib springs that are rusted. I want to clean them and do whatever is necessary to get them ready for painting, then to paint them. Is there any special kind or thickness of paint required? What will I need to do?

Also, the corners of the crib have been chewed badly. If I sand this smooth, will anything have to be put on this before I paint the crib? Will the crib have to be sanded, since it's finish is quite smooth on the undamaged parts? Mrs. F. S. M., Washington.

If rust hasn't penetrated deeply, you'll be able to get rid of it by rubbing springs down with sandpaper or steel wool. Wipe with turpentine later to remove resulting dust.

Next step is to paint springs with good metal primer to prevent further rusting. Then give them a coat of enamel to finish the job. Use flat enamel if you don't care for a glossy surface.

The chewed corners shouldn't complicate the paint job on the crib proper, unless sanding away the marks makes an indentation. (If the chews are actually just on corners, you can probably round them off with the sandpaper.) Sand off chews on flat edge as level as possible with surrounding area. If there is an indentation, dust spot, then apply to it paint thinned with a little turpentine. When this is dry, apply a second coat (unthinned) and add other coats later to fill the blemish to the level of the old finish.

Before painting entire crib, sandpaper surface lightly so new coat will stick better. Then wash with soap and water, rinse well, and let dry thoroughly before applying the paint.

DEAR ANNE:

I am interested in a class of china painting. I particularly want to know how to do the type of painting that can be baked in the oven at home. You once recommended the Cherrydale Recreation Center of the Arlington County Department of Recreation, but they have discontinued the class. Mrs. George Ashworth, 4134 40th st., N. Arlington.

Unable to locate a class elsewhere in this area, I rang up the Cherrydale Center again. They say that if they get sufficient requests for the china painting class, they may resume the course this fall. So I'd suggest your calling them at Owens 8888 to restate your interest.

Anne answers questions through her column only. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

Vinsons' Party Tops Them All

By Marie McNair

"I'VE NEVER BEEN to a party as large as this," said a timid little lady at the National Gallery of Art yesterday. Indeed, few of us have, even in Washington, where a throng of several hundred is an almost daily event.

Only the National Gallery would have held the several thousand guests—members of the American and Canadian Bar Associations meeting in Washington, and their wives—invited yesterday by the Chief Justice of the United States and Mrs. Fred Vinson.

Before 5 p. m. the line stretched from the black marble rotunda, where the Marine Band was playing, through two galleries to the Palm Court where the Chief Justice stood with Mrs. Vinson. The hostess was handsome in soft black taffeta with a brace of white orchids on her shoulder and black aigrettes fanning across the upturned brim of her black hat.

AND WHAT A MAGNIFICENT setting for a reception! What joy it gave the delegates from far-away places to feast their eyes on Rembrandts, Michelangelos, Reubens and dozens of other old masters lining the gallery walls.

While it was almost strictly a party for Justices and Judges, and other legal lights, Chief Justice and Mrs. Vinson had also asked a few of their personal friends. The French Ambassador, Henri Bonnet, escorted Mme Bonnet whose Paulette hat was a calot of gray felt, outlined in a rope of twisted pearls and crystal beads. Mme. Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, was there, while Justice and Mrs. Tom Clark were accompanied by two Texas friends—Mrs. Mildred Brandt and Mrs. Ken Mooney, both of Dallas.

Postmaster General and Mrs. Jesse Donaldson went down the line, Mrs. Donaldson topping her dark blue frock with a small white hat. Justice Sherman Minton and Mrs. Minton paused long enough to inquire about the Vinson's summer holiday. Justice Stanley Reed, who got a kiss from Mrs. Vinson, came alone. With Mr. and Mrs. William MacCracken were Canada's Minister of Justice the Hon. S. S. Garson, and Mrs. Garson.

FORMER REPRESENTATIVE Hton Sumners of Texas found old friends to give him a welcome back. I glimpsed Comdr. William Hudgins squiring his mother, Mrs. Edward H. Hudgins, whose husband is Chief Justice of the Virginia Court of Appeals. On their heels in the line was Mrs. Mitchell Palmer, widow of the Attorney General in the Wilson Administration.

Said "hello" to Leonard Walsh, who had been designated to stand at the outside door, and I enlisted the services of Archie Shipe, W. Cameron Burton and Richard Galiher, vice president of the District of Columbia Bar Association, to tell me "who was who."

The head of the Paris Bar Association, Andre Toulousse, was accompanied by Mme. Toulousse and their pretty daughter. The Brazilian Ambassador, Mauricio Nabuco, and the Ethiopian Ambassador, Ras H. S. Imru, were taking in the pictures and the people. Over heads and through doorways I saw the Solicitor General, Philip Perlman; the Walter Wyatts with their daughter, Laura Belle; James and Suzanne Palmer, who was busy on the committee; Judge George Neilson; Doctor and Mrs. Charles Wetmore; Presidential Secretary Charles Ross, and Mrs. Ross in a wide brimmed dark blue hat to match her frock.

AMONG LADY LAWYERS there were Miss Una Rita Morris, first woman director of the District Bar Association; Mrs. Olive Faircloth, president of the Women's Bar Association of the District of Columbia, and Miss Mary Frances Glenn, past president of that organization.

Others were Judge Frank Myers; Judge and Mrs. Armand Scott; Harold J. Gallagher, president of the American Bar Association, and Mrs. Gallagher in a full-skirted navy blue taffeta gown; Judge and Mrs. Harold Stephens; David Partridge 3d; Joseph Henderson, past president of the ABA, with Mrs. Henderson; Jacob Lashley, another former president of ABA; the Bob Flemings, the Quinn Shaughnessys, and pretty Polly Norment with her black cartwheel hat held on with a ribbon tied under her chin.

PARTY PARADE:

MR. AND MRS. BERNARD GALLAGHER gave a dinner at their home last evening for Harold Stephens, chief judge of United States Court of Appeals for the District, and Mrs. Stephens. In the company were Chief Justice and Mrs. Vinson, John Trenam of Miami, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Caverly of New York, Mrs. Parker West, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Leo Kissam of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Watters of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yancey of Miami, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hayes of Minneapolis, Minn., Mrs. George Allen, Mr. and Mrs. William Bushwaller and Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Smith.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN BAR Association, Harold G. Gallagher, and Mrs. Gallagher gave a dinner last evening to honor the president of the Canadian Bar Association, Arthur N. Carter, and Mrs. Carter. The dinner was held in the South American Room of the Statler Hotel.

Jersey Proves to Be Clever and Convertible

FOR TRAVEL OR TOWN—A good simple dress in worsted jersey. Doff the detachable pique collar and use color for contrast in accessories. Sizes 10 to 16, at Peck and Peck

By Evelyn Hayes

WONDERFUL, WONDERFUL wool jersey! Newly important this year, it has always been a favorite with those who have worn it. Like a good friend, it has many endearing ways.

Not the least of these is its compatibility. Choose the right kind of simple dress and it converts very easily into almost any kind of costume you want it to be depending on the accessories. A touch of satin gives it an after-five air while a fur dickey or belt makes it look right for luncheon in town.

Because it's a knitted, wool jersey it rarely needs ironing and so is excellent for travel and business. A good airing usually takes care of all but the most stubborn wrinkles.

ON THE OTHER HAND jersey's soft drapability recommends it for glamour clothes that rely on the sinuous soft fall of a fabric for their charm.

This fall, wool jersey has really come into its own and is being shown in a wide range of styles at various prices. At Woodward and Lothrop's Walnut Room you'll find Herbert Sondheim's lovely sand color jersey with fullish skirt pulled into a small waistline, the bodice long-sleeved and V-necked —so simple, so elegant—and so dramatic with its leopard belt.

Pasternak's new first floor Smart Timer Shop, which is making much of good, moderately priced fashions, is also making much of wool jersey fashions. They have fine-pleated wool jersey skirts that team smartly with different tops for different occasions, as well as lots of two-piece jersies that can be used to make up endless combinations in a wardrobe.

THERE'S ALSO A stunning gray jumper effect (gray is so good!) with a slight bright touch of red in a ribbon cockade. Teamed with a long-sleeved shirt, this makes a smart daytime costume. Worn solo with a quick accessory change, it could go on to cocktails. This for the young and slim!

Wool jersey is a wonderful starter for autumn—and will be a fine standby all season long. Buy good simple lines and a brace of extra accessories for a varied fashion life.

A. T. & T. Maps New Financing Of $1.5 Billion

By S. Oliver Goodman

Directors of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. yesterday proposed new issues of stocks and bonds to raise in the neighborhood of 1.5 billion dollars.

The money is needed, the board said, to continue with record expansion which already has cost more than 4½ billion dollars since World War II ended. More than 13 million telephones have been added in that time.

The proposed program involves issuance of convertible debentures in an amount not to exceed 435 million dollars, an increase in authorized capital stock from 35 million to 45 million shares and a new employes stock plan, under which up to three million shares may be sold to employes.

Stockholders will vote on the proposals at a special meeting on November 15.

There are still 800,000 people waiting for telephones, the company said, and 1,700,000 customers now on party lines have asked for higher classes of service.

The statement also said the company and its subsidiaries must continue to be fully prepared to meet demands arising out of the present national defense emergency.

Heavy selling in A. T. & T. stocks and bonds followed the announcement. The capital stock dropped nearly $3 a share before making a stand. Investors were worried whether A. T. & T. would be able to maintain its famous $9 annual dividend in the event of a huge addition to outstanding shares.

Investors feel that issuance of new securities usually dilutes the value behind the old unless there is a corresponding addition to the company's assets.

DIVIDENDS: American Security & Trust Co. declared an extra dividend of 25 cents a share and a quarterly dividend of 25 cents, payable October 10 to stock of record September 29 . . . Second National Bank voted the usual quarterly dividend of 2 percent ($1) a share, payable September 29 to stock of record September 20 . . . Bank of Commerce & Savings declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share, payable September 30 to stock of record September 20.

Health Dept. Asks $175,000 For NW. Center

The District Health Department yesterday asked for $175,000 to buy land next year for an "acutely needed" health center in central Northwest Washington.

The request highlighted the department's annual budget proposal, otherwise marked by requests for more money and personnel to expand existing services.

In all, the budget estimates for department operations for the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, amount to $3,637,866. The department's present fiscal allotment is $2,496,330.

Earlier and in separate budget estimates, the Health Department asked for $12,391,340 to operate and improve its hospitals and hospital services, as reported yesterday in The Washington Post.

Would Increase Staff by 217

Chief expansions sought by the department in its own budget are the bureaus of Maternal and Child Welfare, Dental Services, Public Health Engineering, Public Health Nursing, and Mental Hygiene.

The budget asks for 217 more full-time employes, at an added cost of $750,559.

Some of the new employes would staff two additional dental clinics, two added maternal and child health clinics, and expansion of the Gales' clinic, all proposed in the budget.

The new employes would also include rodent control experts, additional inspectors for checking milk shipments and farms in the Washington milkshed, and doctors to carry out medical check-ups of District school children.

The Central Northwest Health Clinic proposed in the budget has been a department target since 1938. In that year, money was appropriated for it, but was diverted by Congress into the building of the Health Department's Southwest Health Center.

Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, District director of public health, noted that engineers have estimated the Northwest health center building would cost $815,000.

He suggested that the center be located within several blocks of Rhode Island ave. and 7th st. nw., but not on the property of the old Shaw Junior High School. The school site, he said, is valuable for commercial purposes and could be sold and the proceeds used to buy "cheaper ground in a slum area."

Would Serve Quarter of People

Stressing the need for the proposed center, Dr. Seckinger pointed out in his budget that the area it would service takes in slightly more than a quarter of the District's total population.

Within this same population area, he noted, the District finds 64.6 percent of all its new cases of primary and secondary syphilis; 43.3 percent of the city's tuberculosis deaths; 40.4 percent of the District admissions to St. Elizabeths Hospital as mental cases, and 32.6 percent of the city's total stillbirths.

The two child welfare clinics proposed would be at the Lily Ponds and Parkview School areas. For these, and other clinic services of the Maternal and Child Welfare Bureau, the department seeks to hire 12 doctors, 28 clinic aides and eight clinic maids.

For medical inspection of schools, Dr. Seckinger asked for three new medical inspectors, one hearing tester technician, and, for the District's two special schools for crippled children, one physiotherapist and one occupational therapist.

For the Mental Hygiene Bureau, the department budget asked permission to hire four psychiatrists, one psychologist, and two psychiatric social workers.

D. C. Doctors To Take Atom Bomb Course

A comprehensive course in the grim role doctors must play in any future atomic bomb attacks will begin here Friday for District physicians.

The special classes, to be held in duplicate half-day sessions, will be conducted at the Department of Interior auditorium.

Sponsored by the District of Columbia Medical Society with the cooperation of the Army Surgeon General's Office, the course is intended to outline "Medical Education for Atomic Defense."

Speakers at Friday's two four-hour sessions include Brig. Gen. James P. Cooney, Military Applications Division, Atomic Energy Commission; Battalion Chief Clarence Quack, District Fire Department, and Police Inspector John Fondahl, recently appointed director of the District's civilian defense efforts.

Dr. Herbert Scovill, jr., of the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project, will also talk on "Atomic Weapons Defense." The four talks will be followed by a 30-minute question-and-answer period, and a 30-minute showing of part one of the special film "The Medical Effect of the Atomic Bomb."

Septic Tank Rule Tightened In Fairfax

Stricter control over subdivision builders who plan to put in septic tanks was voted by the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday.

The board acted after Dr. J. C. Neale jr., director of local health services for the State Health Department, told the meeting that "we're having a great deal of trouble with septic tanks in Fairfax County."

Dr. Neal said septic tanks are being built in areas where soil conditions are not right for them, including many sections where the topsoil is only a few inches deep and the clay is solid below that.

The board voted to require subdivision builders to get health department approval for construction of septic tanks before the planes for construction of the houses may be approved and filed by the planning commission.

The action was urged by Commonwealth's Attorney Hugh B. Marsh as a protection for property owners, who otherwise may find out after they have bought a house that septic tanks cannot be used in that particular property, Marsh said.

Another measure approved by the board, an amendment of the zoning ordinance, will require a use permit to construct either a gasoline station or a tourist camp.

Board member C. B. Runyon told the meeting the morale of the police was being affected by "professional bondsmen and others hanging around the police station." He said they are there continually listening to the police radio and generally loitering.

Runyon was backed by board member Aruthr I. Schaffer, who said anyone hanging around can hear of a complaint on the police radio and may warn criminals that the police are on their trail.

Maurice W. Fox, a member of the police advisory committee, said the matter could be taken care of in a police manual now being drawn up.

The A. L. Alexanders of the radio. He specializes in telling listeners how to solve their problems. His wife, the former Elsie Hinckley, leaves for a Virgin Islands abrogation next week . . . Duke Ellington's planned lawsuit against The Daily Worker for reporting he signed the Stockholm Peace petition, which he didn't . . . Yvonne ("Gentlemen Prefer Blondes") Adair's action against Columbia Pictures. Because in "Convicted" a harlot bears her name . . . The way theater ticket sales went up after the headlines announced the invasion of Inchon . . . Bob Hope's teevee rating of 58 . . . The new Madison Square Garden, which will also feature the town's largest atom-bomb shelter . . . The new "Load of Hay" melody, which is practically the classic, "Narcissus" . . . Robert S. Dance director Al White of Warners' . . . The shock everyone got reading the notices on the season's first play, "Daphne Laureola," which the "tough" first-nighters cheered.

NBC's offer to Martin & Lewis of $30,000 per teevee show. Only 3 years ago Jerry Lewis got $210 per week, netting $72.50 . . . The boom for showroom manniqueens in the garment center. D. C. Corrections Head Asks Million More for Fiscal 1952

Confronted with a rapid and continuing increase in the number of his charges, Director Donald Clemmer of the District Department of Corrections has asked for $4,532,000 to run the city's penal system in fiscal 1952.

His requests for the year starting next July 1, released yesterday by the District Commissioners, show an increase of a million dollars over the amount being spent in the current year. Most of it would be spent to feed, cloth, house and supervise the additional prisoners expected.

In the five years since the war, the average daily number of prisoners held at the District Jail, Lorton Reformatory, Occoquan Workhouse and the women's reformatory has increased from 2100 to more than 3200, Clemmer said. By fiscal 1952, he expects this figure to reach 3650. At the same time, the number of District prisoners at other Federal penitentiaries — whose keep the city must pay—also is rapidly increasing.

To meet the situation, Clemmer asked for (1) $54,000 to build a 200-bed dormitory at the workhouse; (2) $73,500 to create 21 new jobs and $250,000 increase for supplies and equipment at the four institutions; (3) an additional $267,000 to pay the keep of District prisoners at Federal institutions.

Overcrowding is worst at the workhouse, Clemmer said, where 1100 inmates are kept in space for 900. The new dormitory would relieve such "dangerous" conditions as sleeping 125 inmates in the basement of an old commissary building and crowding other dormitories with double-decked beds.

Clemmer has been reminding the Commissioners of overcrowded conditions periodically for several months. Another possible means of relief—housing of workhouse prisoners at Andrews Air Base in exchange for work—has been under consideration since midsummer.

New jobs requested include a recreation officer and two group therapists to expand the department's rehabilitation programs. Group therapy—which involves getting a group of prisoners together to talk out their experiences in an effort to get at the root of their trouble—has been tried in a few other institutions, Clemmer said, and "is a hopeful new method of rebuilding character . . ."

"How to Be Deliriously Happy"

Eating in Bed May Signify Hunger

EDITOR'S NOTE: Please don't take this series seriously, gentle reader. "How To Be Deliriously Happy" is a burlesque, in its own fashion, of all the "inspirational" and "how to" books of modern times.

Ira Wallach is a magazine writer and author of "The Horn and the Roses." These articles are selected from the recent book, "How To Be Deliriously Happy."

By Ira Wallach

CHAPTER FOUR

Marriage, which should be a contributory element in achieving Delirious Happiness, has—sadly enough—often served the opposite function.

How vividly I recall the young couple who came to me, in sorrow, to declare that their marriage was going "on the rocks."

All their grand dreams, their youthful and exuberant plans were forgotten in mutual recriminations.

I took the young woman aside and had a long talk with her. At once, I noticed that despite the differences that had arisen between her and her mate, her voice always softened when she mentioned his name, which was Rodney.

Ideal Husband—But!

"Rodney," she complained, "is an ideal husband in many respects. But at night, in bed——"

"Go on, my dear," I said, hiding my head in the desk drawer to spare her embarrassment.

"——at night, in bed, Rodney always opens a box of pretzels and eats them all. He gets the large pretzels, the ones with the big salt crystals. By the time he turns the light out, the sheets are like coarse sandpaper.

"Furthermore, he always sweeps the crumbs to my side of the bed before he goes to sleep."

I had, of course, come across similar cases in our Marriage Clinic in the Temple of Joy. I could see at once that I was dealing with a married couple the male mate of which was "pretzel-prone."

By George Price

"... When he opens his box of pretzels, she opens a bottle of beer"

Two courses were open. I could attempt to delve deeply into Rodney's personality until I uncovered the psychological impulse which had hurled him into the grim realm of the "pretzel-prone."

This, however, might take years of analysis. I chose a second course, that of encouraging the young woman to balance the home by the more scientific use of her own personality.

Today—Sheer Joy

Today that couple is Deliriously Happy. Every evening, shortly before bedtime, the female mate kicks Rodney's slippers well under the bed. In his efforts to retrieve them, he is forcibly reminded that his wife is an independent personality.

In bed, when he opens his box of pretzels, she opens a bottle of beer. This ritual of "opening something" is in reality a necessary expression of their individual personality needs.

Whereas formerly only Rodney enjoyed the release given him by this self-expression, now they both share this release. And when Rodney sweeps the pretzel crumbs to her side of the bed, she no longer remonstrates. She simply picks up his covers and drops a handful of bottlecaps on his sheet.

Both personalities have flowered, and a marriage that had been threatened by disaster is now firm and unshakeable. THIS COUPLE HAS BUILT A SPIRITO-PHYSICAL BALANCE IN THE HOME.

It is not too late to build that spirito-physical balance which will save YOUR marriage. Perhaps it has been long, too long, since you and your mate had an intimate discussion of your hopes and dreams. Reader, why not talk this chapter over with your mate tonight?

Cyclist Halts Hacker After Fall and Chase

A cab can be as dangerous a weapon as a loaded gun, police reminded Steve Dargo, 29, a hacker, of 1345 Irving st. nw., yesterday.

Cornett

Late Tuesday night Pvt. Jack D. Cornett, 29, a motorcycle policeman, took after a cab northbound on 14th st. nw., because he thought it was traveling too fast.

Cornett stopped the cab in the 1400 block of 14th st., got off his motorcycle, walked to the cab and informed the driver, later identified by police as Dargo, that he was under arrest.

With this announcement, Cornett said later, the driver stepped on the gas and the cab leaped ahead. Cornett was thrown to the street. Despite injuries, the policeman remounted his motorcycle and chased the cab several blocks to 13th and T sts. nw., where he stopped it a second time.

Dargo was charged with unreasonable speed, for which he posted $25 collateral, and with assault with a dangerous weapon (his cab) on which he was released in $1000 bond. He will be arraigned in Municipal Court this morning.

Sid Caesar

The Title's Bad, But The Show Is Good

By John Crosby

SID CAESAR is one of the wonders of this modern electronic age. Where all the other comics are moaning about the tremendous drain television exerts on material, Caesar has more genuinely funny comedy sequences than he knows what to do with in a week.

Sid Caesar

All of which is an introduction to the fact that "Your Show of Shows," a title about which I have grave reservations, is back on the air again, a full hour and a half of it (NBC-TV-WNBW 9 p. m. Saturdays) and a fine, luscious production it is. Along with Caesar, your S. of S. offers Imogene Coca, a very engaging and hard-working lady comic who is almost a perfect foil for Caesar's enormously expressive face, some of the best ballet numbers on TV and usually a guest or two of considerable importance.

STILL it's pretty much Caesar's show. The quality of Caesar's comedy is extraordinarily high. All his routines are something clearly recognizable as an extension of something that has happened in your life. Caesar, for example trying to direct his boss to his house by telephone —"Well, where are you now?" . . . No, you better get back on the ferry and take the parkway"—is something that has happened to almost anyone who has ever lived in the country.

Or take Caesar and Miss Coca discussing their children on the opening day of school, both of them brimful of platitudes about child-rearing. No parent will recognize himself but he will undoubtedly recognize every other parent in this little tidbit.

I go on at some length about this because there is very little honest comedy around these days. When, for example, Eddie Cantor employs a sketch about selling a man a suit with a belt in the back, he is reaching way back to a period when, I suppose, such a situation existed, when, in short, tailors behaved that way. They don't anymore and that particular sketch is not, as a consequence, honest comedy.

Caesar, on the other hand, appears to have looked at the world around him and fashioned his comedy out of what he sees in people, not what he saw on the stage 30 years ago. He is still at his best with a monologue and even better when he doesn't say a word. Caesar imitating a woman at her morning toilette pretty well wraps that subject up for all time. He did this same bit last year and I'm happy to see him reviving some of his best old routines. They're even funnier the second time.

After watching Caesar raise one eloquent eyebrow and panic the customers, you get awfully weary of Bob Hope's jokes about President Truman and the Marine Corps or Eddie Cantor reminiscing about his illustrious past. It has always been my contention that TV should develop its own bright youngsters rather than borrow the old names from radio or from the movies. Caesar is the best and virtually the only argument I have in support of this theory.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Has 'Old Grandpappy' Become Obsolete?

Some profound changes may lie ahead if the Journal of Alcohol is right. The Journal recently revealed that when you think you need a drink of whisky, what your system really craves is a glass of salt water.

If this theory proves correct, our after-hours clubs may be doomed. They'll be replaced by enterprising fellows who'll stand around on street corners late at night and whisper:

"Hey, Mac—hsssst! Need any salt tablets?"

Even worse, think of what will happen to our country's defenses if American guzzlers ever switch from whisky to salt water.

They'd drink the Atlantic and Pacific dry in no time, and lay us open to attack by Cossack cavalry.

I've just reminded myself of the wonderful chestnut about the Irishman who came before a stern judge on a drunk charge.

"Do you have an occupation, Mike," asked the judge, "or are you just a bum?"

"Oh, your worship," said Mike, his feelings hurt. "I'm a sailor, sir."

"A sailor, eh?" grunted hizzoner as he surveyed the dishevelled prisoner. "I don't believe you've ever been on a boat in your life."

"Indeed," snapped Mike, "and do you suppose I came over from the Old Country in a horse and wagon?"

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

My 10-year-old sister had a dog—mixture of shepherd and collie. The dog had a habit of chasing motorcycles, and was killed.

The other day your Give-Aways listed a pup like that, so I called and made arrangements to pick it up on Sunday. My little sister was so happy she decorated the doghouse with flowers, and could hardly wait to get her new pet.

At the appointed time, we drove out to pick up the pup, only to be told: "Oh, I'm so sorry but we've already given the dog away." My sister was brokenhearted.

What do you think of a person who would do a thing like that?

Mrs. J. S. Turner
1709 S. Taylor st.
Arlington, Va.

Dear Mrs. Turner:

Some folks break promises and appointments without worrying too much about the inconvenience they cause others.

I get many reports of this same situation in reverse. The Give-Away donor gets many calls, then promises to hold the animal for one particular applicant who says he'll pick it up on a certain day.

The appointed time comes and goes without any sign of the caller, or explanation as to what happened. It's a shocking display of discourtesy.

I hope that somebody with a puppy to give away will call you, and restore your sister's faith in grownups.

Bill.

SUGGESTION BOX

Henry F. Unger of 4930 S. Dakota ave. ne., thinks that Post Office revenues might be increased substantially through the application of modern merchandising methods.

Instead of making all our stamps in one unappetizing flavor, Henry points out that Mr. Donaldson might do a bigger business if he offered a variety of flavors.

For example, ones, twos and threes might be made in cola, orange and root beer. Air mail trade could be expanded considerably with beer and ale flavors (coffee in dry States). A special delivery stamp smacking of roast beef gravy would be a sure hit, and the larger denominations might lend themselves to even more exotic treatment.

All of us, from time to time, are faced with the task of sending out mountains of Christmas cards, thank-you notes and the like. Why not change a chore to a pleasant experience with such slogans as:

"Don't be a cheapskate and deny yourself the better things in life. Don't use 3-cent stamps; use Uncle Sam's new 4-centers, in six delicious flavors — strawberry, chocolate, orange, lemon, lime and veal cutlet."

QUIET, YA LUG!

N. L. W. sighs that the only thing she dislikes about radio is the fact that she can't lay hands on the knob that turns off her neighbor's.

PRETTY BABY

"I see Vice President Barkley is still kissing beauty queens," I remarked to the lady at our house the other morning. "I thought he'd quit that sort of thing after he got married."

"I don't see why," she replied. "A man who kisses hundreds of babies during an election campaign shouldn't pass up a babe just because she happens to be old enough to vote."

REAL SPORT

A few days ago I wrote an item about the way ladies and gentlemen battle for streetcar and bus seats these days.

Cartoonist Herblock tells me that when he was working in Chicago years ago, it was generally agreed that anybody who would knock a lady down in the rush for an empty seat was no gentleman.

"A real sporty gent," Herb recalls, "would tip his hat and say: 'There's an empty seat, madam. I'll race you for it'."

WISHING WELL—

Pay Is Still a Bar to Defense Jobs

By Drew Pearson

Congressional memories sometimes are very short. It was only last year that the Senate refused to confirm Carl Ilgenfritz as chairman of the Munitions Board because he declined to give up his $60,000 salary from the U. S. Steel Corporation.

Harrison

However, just about the same thing is now happening with two other high officials and nothing is being said about it. They are:

1. E. G. Plowman, another U. S. Steel executive, who gets $66,000 a year from his company while working for Uncle Sam as director of the Defense Department's military traffic service.

2. William H. Harrison, who has just assumed charge of war controls in the Commerce Department while still drawing his salary from International Telephone and Telegraph.

The excuse given for permitting men to draw a salary from private industry while working for the Government is that it is hard to get good men to serve the Government without doing so. This is true in peacetime. But in wartime, when thousands of G. I.s not only have to give up their jobs but their lives, it would seem that enough patriotic businessmen would be willing to work for a Government stipend of $15,000 to $20,000 a year.

Jimmy Roosevelt

Jimmy Roosevelt helped to place the insurance on two housing projects at an Air Force field at Victorville, Calif.

Air Force officials state, however, that they had nothing to do with placing the insurance, and that the matter was left entirely in the hands of the private promoters.

There are two housing projects at the Victorville Air Base: 400 homes built by the Victor Valley Housing Corp., and 250 homes built by Mesa Estates.

C. O. Moore is the owner of Mesa Estates and also owns 40 percent of the Victor Valley project. He, being a close friend of Roosevelt's, placed the insurance with the firm of Roosevelt and Sergeant, which in turn acted as the broker in placing the insurance on all 650 homes with various companies.

Capital Notes

After Secretary Chapman finished wiping up the Senate floor with Senator Schoeppel of Kansas, the Interior Secretary attended a Cabinet meeting. As he entered the room, President Truman said: "Here comes Joe Louis. Sit down, champ" . . . Republican leaders had planned to pick out every member of the Truman Cabinet one by one and attack them in the Senate. But Senator Schoeppel's smear of Secretary of the Interior Chapman has backfired so badly that the campaign will be abandoned . . . Donald Dawson, an aide to President Truman, is being considered as head of the New York Stock Exchange.

Seating Red China

British Foreign Minister Bevin has been nursing a plan to get Communist China admitted to the United Nations through action by the General Assembly.

Bevin has worked out his strategy with India's Premier Pandit Nehru. Both are convinced that, although Russia has been agitating for the Chinese Communsts to be admitted to the U. N., actually, Russia is dead set against Red China joining the world organization. According to British intelligence, Russia hopes that by keeping China out, she can remain as China's spokesman and apepar to the Chinese people to be their one real friend.

Bevin and Nehru are also convinced that Mao Tse-tung and the Kremlin are not getting along well. They hope Mao will become a Chinese "Tito."

Therefore, Bevin and Nehru plan to bring the question of seating the Chinese to a vote before the General Assembly where the veto cannot be used. However, it will probably require a two thirds vote to seat the Red Chinese and exclude the Nationalists. The British think they can muster the required votes to break the deadlock.

Merry-Go-Round

Industrialist Willard Rockwell almost let the cat out of the bag when he introduced Senator Byrd of Virginia as presidential timber last week in Pittsburgh. Representatives of the National Tax Association and National Association of Manufacturers have been urging Byrd privately to run for President, but Rockwell wasn't supposed to say anything about it . . . Congressman Case of South Dakota has been paying for rain-making experiments out of his own pocket. Due to the heavy expense, he now wants to shift the cost to Congress.
